An Interesting Incident.

Quite an interesting incident took place at the Catholic orphans' fair room, on Main street, Thursday night last. Mr Jefferson Davis, accompanied by Judge Ould, visited the fair on that night, and, whilst he was enjoying the delicacies at the supper table, the ladies and gentlemen present agreed to raffle off a most beautiful nst., 7 miles North East of Charlotte, between the cigar stand with a musical box attached, which had been sent, with many other handsome articles, from Brussels, Belgium, the winner to present it to him. The raffle occurred, and the prize was won by a gentleman from Baltimore, Mr M., who requested that Miss M. C. H., the interesting young lady who was instrumental in getting up the raffle, should present it in the name of those who had contributed. Miss H., approaching the Ex-President, said: "Mr Davis-In the name and at the request of the gentleman who won the prize, and of those ladies and gentlemen who contributed, I present you this token of our respect for you, the President of the Confederate States. We only wish we had something more worthy of your acceptance, but, after looking around the table, find nothing more suitable, and though small the gift, we hope you will accept it. We wish from our hearts every blessing for yourself and family."

In reply, Mr Davis said: "I thank you and the ladies and gentlemen for | will soon be given to all the military commanyour kindness, and will place this with the gold- ders South to look after armed negro organizaheaded cane presented to me by the Catholic ladies of Norfolk, who held a fair for a charitaday of January 1868. It will continue six instead | ble purpose last spring. Your kindness will not of five months. Tuition and board, with washing, be forgotten. The Catholics have always been my friends, and I cannot forget the circumstance that the Holy Father, the head of your Church, was the first sovereign who sent me his blessing in my misfortunes. May God bless you all." After which, Mr Davis departed, amidst the Washington Items.

The postponement of the trial of Mr Davis surprised no well-informed person here. It is not for a moment supposed that he will be tried

The President is receiving his friends very generally now when they call. He does not feel at all alarmed at the status of affairs, and will act with great force when the proper moment arrives. It is generally understood that Commissioner of Revenue, Rollins, wil soon resign. The Reconstruction Committee has had a meeting at Thad Steven's room. A majority holds that further legislation is necessary before reconstruction can be completed.

The Judges of the Supreme Court, led by hase, visited the President on the 2d.

It is safe to predict the early removal of General Pope. His arbitrary and unnecessary orders are too often multiplied to be tolerated His recent order, that official advertisements must only be inserted in Radical papers, is considered as carrying matters too far.

A NEW SYNAGOGUE.—A new Hebrew Synagogue has just been erected in New York at a cost of $500,000. The Post, of that city, says it is larger than Trinity Church, and adds: This edifice is erected by a sect known as the Reformed Jews, who have departed from the ancient faith in many ways, but more especially in the manner of worship. In other synagogues the main floor is open and unencumbered by scats, a reading desk occupying the centre of the room. In this synagogue all is changed except the ark, which rests in its usual place in the transept. The Reformed Jews have a choir like that of the Episcopal Church, and the centre of the building is filled with pews and aisles. Under the old dispensation men and women do not He keeps on hand, and for sale at reasonable sit together, and men wear their hats during the service, and there is no organ nor choir of singers. In the Reformed synagogue the sexes occupy seats together, as in Protestant churches, and the service is read from a desk or pulpit, while Being a practical mechanic, he thinks that he can the music is furnished by an organ and the Washington and Tyrrell-Femund W Jones, rep. singers stationed in the gallery.

> LYNCHED-A negro who outraged a Mrs. Baker, of Princeton, Indiana, was caught the same night. He confessed, was stabbed, shot and beaten till dead, and then dragged through the streets. .

U. S. Treasurer's Report.

The report of the Secretary of the Treasury is a longer document than the President's Messago; and we can only give a brief synopsis of the leading points. He still adheres to the policy of contraction of the currency as the proper one to be pursued, and thinks there is no reason why the business of the country cannot be brought to a specie basis by July 1, 1869. In order to bring this about he holds that three things are necessery; first, the funding or payment of the balance of the interest-bearing notes, and a continuance of the policy of contraction; second, the full maintenance of the public faith in the payment of the public debt; and, third, the restoration of the Southern States. He argues that the question of specie payments underlies the great questions of the currency, taxation and recon-struction, and he urges this point elaborately. He is opposed to the project of abolishing the National Bank note currency; urges greater stability in our revenue laws; recommends a revision of the tariff, which he says yields a large amount of revenue, yet fails to protect American manufacturing interets; and calls attention to the decline of the American shipping interest. The Internal Revenue laws, he says would have yielded more revenue than estimated if it had not been for the whiskey frauds, and the failure of the revenue officers to collect the whiskey tax, showing that both the officers and manufacturers of the article have become thoroughly demoralized by the temptations to evade or violate the law. He urges economy in the public expenditures, and recurs to the subject of keeping faith in the payment of the bonds. On this latter subject he quotes from a speech made by Mr. Stevens in the House while one of the Loan bills was under consideration, in which he twice referred to the bonds as being payable in gold. On the question of reconstruction with the business prosperity of the country, he refers to the fact that last year, notwithstanding pled condition of the Southern States, those States furnished three-fourths of all the exports sent abroad to keep up the balance of trade, Respecting the matter of taxation of Government bonds and the funding of our loans, he makes an important recommendation in favor of a consolidated six per cent. loan, to run twenty years, from which one-sixth of the interest shall be annually withheld from the bondholders and paid over to the individual States.
