Anxious for Matrimony.

Some fellow calls for a wife in the Louisville Courier in the following style:

The undersigned, feeling the need of some one to find fault with, and grumble at when business matters go wrong, and being lonely with no one to hate him; and, whereas, having arrived at a proper age, he has therefore determined to "come out."

Sealed proposals will be received until 12 o'clock p. m., of the 31st day of December, 1868. Applicants must possess beauty or its equivalent in currency. She must possess a sweet and forgiving disposition, and when one cheek is kissed turn the other, (that is if the right man is kissing.)

She may not chew gum. Nor wear long dresses on the street. Nor frequent sewing circles.

Nor go round begging for charitable purposes. Nor talk when I am sleepy.

Nor sleep when I am talking. Nor trade off all my old clothes to wandering Italians for flower vases. Nor borrow money from my vest pockets when I am sleep.

When her "old bear" comes home from a "few friends" rather affectionate, she must not take advantage of his state, and wheedle him into trips to watering places.

And above all, she may not on such occasions put ipecae into the coffee she prescribes for his "dear head."

She must not sit up for him when he happens to be detained to a late hour on his committee But when he does come tired and chilly she must be expected to roll over on the other side and give him her warm place.

A lady possessing the foregoing qualifications. positive and negative, can hear of something to her advantage by addressing the undersigned, inclosing a red stamp.

All proposals must be accompanied with satisfactory evidence of the ability of the applicant to support a husband in the style to which he has been accustomed. YUBADAM.

The Death of an Infant.

The following beautiful Hymn, is in the Spring field Collection, compiled by the Rev. W. B. C Peabody. It was written by John Quincy Adams. and will bear a comparison for harmony of versification, and elevated sentiment, with any thing of the kind in the English Language:

Sure, to the mansions of the blest, When infant innocence ascends, Some angel brighter than the rest. The spotless spirit's flight attends.

That inextinguishable beam, With dust united at our birth, Sheds a more dim, discolored gleam, The more it lingers upon earth.

But when the Lord of mortal breath,

Decrees his bounty to resume,

And points the silent shaft of death Which speeds an infant to the tomb; No passion fierce, no low desire,

Has quenched the radiance of the flame; Back to its God the living fire Reverts, unclouded as it came.

Then at the Heavenly Father's hand, Nearest the throne of living light, Behold the infant scraph stand, And dazzling shine where all are bright.
