Important Movement to be Made in the New York Episcopal Convention.

In addition to the other topics of deep interest which are likely to occupy the attention of the General Convention of the Episcopal Church to be held in this city next month, a canon concerning marriage is to be brought before it for consideration, which will probably provoke an earnest controversy. At present there are no regulations in force in the Episcopal Church on the subject, except that its members are bound as citizens to respect the civil laws of the States in which they reside. The Power of Intemperance.

In the regions where green crops are turned Statistics are generally dry affairs, yet often under for manure, there is a diversity of practice. | carry with them a moral, and sometimes become Some plow when the crop is in the most succu-lent state. The rule for clover is when the heads are about half turned brown. The reason offered for this practice is, that the bulk of the crop is then the greatest, and it undergoes most rapid decomposition in the soil. Others do not plow in clover till late in the fall, and after it has been pastured. The reasons they give for this been pastured. But our topers and moderate drinkers swallow

Total.

A curious thing would it be, had women the in poisonous draughts four millions of dollars a day, and quaff our entire debt in two years! Fifteen hundred millions of dollars-what was obtained in-return? Such an amount of money should have purchased corresponding benefits-food, clothing, shelter, education, all the comforts necessary for a million and a half of families, allowing each to expend a thousand per annum. What did it purchase? Countless cups of poison, to injure health, to shorten life, to bloat the body and eraze the mind, to empty the purse and deprave the heart, to unfit for time and undo for eternity? It would be deemed impious waste to throw, each year, fifteen hundred millions of dollars into the sea; but that were wisdom and profit compared with the folly and loss of exchanging that sum for intoxicating drinks, in the train of which come disease, poverty, crime and death. How it makes one ache to think of the good which that money, otherwise laid out in 1867, would have accomplished! How trying to remember the struggles of good men to sustain schools, colleges, theological seminaries, churches, hospitals and other institutions of highest necessity, toiling, saving, practicing sore self-denial, while a sum which would have endowed forever fifteen hundred universities like Harvard or Yale, or would have given the Gospel to the world, supporting a minister for every community of a thousand, the earth over, has been squandered in doing men harm in body and soul! These statistics reveal incidentally, the strength of the enemy against whom temperance men contend. What must be the power which has an annual revenue of $1,500,000,000, cheerfully paid! Think of the immense capital invested in distillerics, saloons, liquor, grain, and other things connected with the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beyerages, and receiving such princely returns. Is it surprising, that good men should wish to put down this waste and destruction with a strong hand; or that they should be resisted to the last by bad men, who insist upon their right to squander thus vilely, the property which might cesily give happy homes to all? The National Temperance Society expended in 1867, about $15,000. The National Intemperance Society, expended $1,500,000,000! The devil's supporters pay the most liberally. Whis-key rings are never out of money; there are al-ways funds on hand with which to purchase favorable Congressional action, and to buy up State Legislators. The prospect does not look encouraging. We have a Goliath of Gath with account of affability of manner; and of course whom to fight. But if God be with us, a sling could always carry a big vote whenever he was in the hand of a stripling, and a smooth stone

"Very well," said the farmer, "I'll take your trap the "vile" sex. For those that have enoffer and send you the potatoes.' A few days afterward the clergyman was called on to splice a bying couple at D----, a place about four miles from where he lived When the ceremony was over the bridegroom said to the worthy minister:

"Well, parson, s'pose I must fork over some-thing for your trouble. What say you to taking In too many instances in politics, as well as in one of my terrier pups? The best breed I tell you in the country. Shocking nice to have in or two would do for the splice eh?"

The Doctor took the pup with joy. The joke was too good; he hastened to the farmer, saying : "Now, friend, here is my fee; how shall we divide it?" The farmer relished the joke so well that he increased the potatoes to half a dozen bushels.

CHEERFUL .- Ladies who are addicted to chignons, and there are few that are not, will be deeply, if not delightfully interested in knowing recently, in Europe, the flowing tresses of the poorer classes were laid under tribute to adorn and beautify their wealthy sisters. Many a poor girl sold her crowning glory to buy a meal. This source of supply seems to be exhausted, however, and dealers in human hair have resorted to more doubtful means to meet the demand. In the hospitals of Europe the hair of corpses is cut off and sold to those who retail it at home or export it to this country for the benefit of our belles.

THE EGG FROG .- The Louisiana Sugar Planter tells the following story :

ittle terrors to poultry raisers. Although not very large or handsome, its mouth has quite a taking appearance. These frogs have a curious get at the inner substance. The egg is swallowed whole, two and sometimes three being necessary for his frogship's snack; but, unfortunately for the good housewife, his appetite is unappeasable. After swallowing the eggs, the frog climbs a tree and then precipitates itself to the ground. The concussion breaks the shell, and then froggy spits out the pieces. This funny little chap has hitherto, we believe, escaped the attention of naturalists.

promise them with the darlings of the earth. They would have to praise chignons, bustles, kildee gaiters, and the d-l knows what deformities the "fair" sex may adopt in order to entrapped them, another line of argument would be adopted; the candidates would have to go round with their pockets stuffed with sugar plums and doll-babies, and in a close contest would have to go as high as velocipedes and hobby-horses.

Women have enough now to do with elections. everything else, "the gray mare is the better horse"-a fact of which our candidates in this the barn. Worth full $5, and I suppose a figure | country have been ever perfectly aware. "Old Harry" knew it well. He was great with the women. Somehow or other, he managed to get them on his side-all over the Union, and when James K. Polk beat him, many were the bright eyes red with tears for the defeat of their great champion.

Andrew Johnson owed his political elevation in a great degree to his knowing how to manage the women. On one occasion his Whig opponent was going round the district with his pockets filled with cakes. He went to a voter's house and talked with the "old man," took the whence their adventitious hair comes. Until young ones on his knee, and was stuffing the constituent with Whig doctrine and his children with gingerbread. In the course of the conversation he mentioned Andy's name. "Oh," said the man, "Andy's out there in the lot, helping the 'old woman' to milk the cow." The candidate peeped through the window, and there was Andy, milking away, pail in hand! The Whig left, knowing that there was no chance for him in that house.

If the women, then, have so much influence now, being the power upon the throne-the hearts of their husbands-all who have any regard to Anglo-Saxon liberty must refuse to give them any more; for if women have the right of suffrage, every one will then have two votes, her own and that of her husband, and the men will be forever sold into bondage to the fair despotesses, and there will be an end to all the freedom which the poor men are now supposed to possess. -Nerfolk Journal.

We will make it to your interest to give us a call before purchasing. Sent 14 1868 W. W. GRIER & Co.	pooty girl in spectacles sot near me, tellin a young man how much he reminded her of a young man she knew in Waltham. Pooty soon the young man got out, and smilling in a seductive manner, I said to the girl in specs: "Don't I remind you of some one you used to know?" "Yes," she said, "you do remind me of one man, but he was sent to the penitentiary, for stealing a barrel of mackeral; he died there, so I conclood you ain't him." I didn't pursoo the conversation. Ladies who have a disposition to punish their husbands, should recollect that a little warm sunshine will melt an icicle sooner than a North-	the devil made wry faces when he came to pay the bill yet they were all paid. One experiment after another failed; the devil counted the time, only two years that he must wait for the soul, and mocked the efforts of the despairing man. One more trial was resolved upon—the man started a newspaper! The devil growled at the bill at the end of the first quarter, was savage at the end of six months, and melancholy in nine, and broke, "dead broke," at the end of the year. So the newspaper went down but the soul was saved. If you are looking at a picture, you try to give it the advantage of a good light. Be as courte-
