

POETRY.

(From Mrs. Hale's Magazine.)

THE SWEDISH GIRL.

"Previous to the departure of Baron de Stael from Sweden, he was enamored of his second cousin, a beautiful girl, whom he had promised to marry; but after the offers received by him from the Neckar family, he wrote to inform her of the peculiar circumstances in which he was placed, and that his union with a lady whom he did not love, would be the means of raising his family from poverty and obscurity. His cousin, without any other answer, returned him his marriage promise stained with tears, and in seven weeks she was a corpse."

"Even to pause on such a thought!
How could it cross his mind!
Vain honors traffic'd for and bought,
With happiness resigned!
And love like mine cast meekly by,
At cold ambition's call—
My heart, be calm!—why should I sigh!
Tears, tears, why will ye fall?
The Swedish girl should scorn to stand
'Tween him and his adopted land."

For him what could I not have borne,
What wo or poverty!
And rich in love, have smiled in scorn,
When heartless wealth rolled by,
I would have urged him up the steep,
Where hangs the noblest crown,
Honor may gain, or virtue keep—
An honest man's renown!
Soothed him when yielding to his toils,
And brightened each success with smiles."

Yet why thus linger o'er a dream
That my fond spirit bound,
But lent my soul no cheering beam
To light the darkness round!
Well, be it so;—I may not speak
What stirs within my heart;
The wretched spirit soon will break
Through all things, and depart:
Yet 'twould be sweet again to bless
The object of past tenderness!

Ay, take thy bride, the gifted one,
And glory in her fame!
And when, pervading in the sun,
Her genius lights thy name,
Forget, amidst its dazzling rays,
How dim thine own appears;
Nor think upon the heartfelt praise
Was thine in former years,
When mingling love, and hope, and pride,
With her now coldly thrown aside."

Ay, weep another—weep the great!
Gain wealth, but with it ease!
Soon shalt thou feel the galling weight,
And mourn each glittering snare
That wiled thee from thy pledged vow,
From first and unfeigned love;
And bade thee to a stranger bow,
A stranger's bounty prove!
Madness, that one so loved by me,
Should ever so degraded be!

It may not be! I cannot ask
Earth's happiness for one
Who hath imposed the bitterest task,
That woman's pride has done.
I'll curse not, though I may not bless
The idol of my youth,
But in my search of happiness,
I'll prove unflinching true,
And, blotted thus with tears, return
The pledge I would, but cannot spurn!"

And such is woman's love! not even pride,
That oft quells passion in its fiercest tide,
This high-souled, injured Swedish girl could save,
Fair spring wave garlands o'er her early grave.
MORNA.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Brother Jonathan's Wife's advice to her daughter on the day of her marriage.—Now Mary, as you are about to leave us, a few words seem appropriate to the occasion. Although I regret separation, yet I am pleased that your prospects are good. You must not think that all before you are Elysian Fields. Toil, care and trouble, are the companions of frail human nature. Old connexions will be dissolved by distance, time, and death. New ones will be formed. Every thing pertaining to this life is on the change.

A well cultivated mind, united with a pleasant, easy disposition is the greatest accomplishment in a lady. I have endeavored from the first to the present moment, to bring you up in such a manner as to form you for usefulness in society. Woman was never made merely to see and be seen but to fill an important space in the great chain of nature, planned and formed by the Almighty Parent of the Universe. You have been educated in habits of industry, frugality, economy and neatness, and in these you have not disappointed me.

It is for the man to provide and for the wife to take care and see that every thing, within her circle of movement, is done in order and in season, therefore, let method and order be considered important. A place for every thing, and every thing in its place—a time for every thing and every thing in its time—are good family mottoes.

A thorough knowledge of every kind of business appropriate to the kitchen is indispensable, for without such knowledge, a lady is incapable of the management of her own business, and is liable to imposition by her servants every day. But in these things you have been instructed.

You will be mistress of your own house, and observe the rules in which you have been educated.—You will endeavor, above all things to make your fire side the most agreeable place for the man of your choice. Pleasant and a happy disposition will ever be considered as necessary to this important end, but a foolish fondness is disgusting to all. Let reason and common sense ever guide: these, aided by a pleasant, friendly disposition, render life happy; and without these it is not desirable. Remember your cousin Eliza. She married with the brightest prospects; but, from petulant, peevish and complaining disposition, and negligence, every thing went wrong; and her home became a place of disquietude to her husband. To avoid this, he sought a place to pass away vacant time, where, associated with these more wicked than himself, he contracted the habit of intemperance, and all was lost—and poor Eliza was thrown on the charity of her friends.

Be pleasant and obliging to your neighbors—ready to grant assistance when necessary. Be careful of their characters, and not readily believe an ill report. Throw the mantle of charity over their failings knowing that we are all liable to err. Abhor a tattler, and give no place to the reports of such. However strong a provocation may be, never contend for the last word.

Let your bible show that it is used. Give no place to novels in your library. Let history, biography and travels be read, when time and opportunity admit—without interfering with the important duties of the family. Be not ignorant of the events of the time being, therefore read some Journal of the day.

As to friends who may call on you—never be confused nor in a hurry; treat them with hospitality and politeness; and endeavor to make them happy in their own way. Never tease them to do this, or that, which they do not prefer. True politeness consists in an easy deportment, and making our friends easy, and permitting them to enjoy themselves in that way which is most pleasing to them.

Speak with deliberation. The other sex tell us that, "the female tongue is never tired;" be it so: let it be regulated by reason and common sense.

At the close of the week, if possible let all your work for the time, be done, so that on Sunday you may improve your time in such a manner as will be appropriate to the day, and never, extraordinary excepted, let your seat be vacated at Church.

As to dress: decency is becoming to all, but extravagance opens a door to want—follow the fashions of the day so far as decency and good sense will approve, but avoid singularity. Be not troubled for what you have not; but be thankful for, and take care of what you have. A Leghorn hat loaded with flowers, will not cure the headache, nor a gold watch prevent the consumption.

As you have attended to the study of Botany and discovered a taste for flowers, I would not by any means draw your attention from so innocent and pleasing an amusement. But let your garden be small and well made out, and the plants selected to your taste. See to the management of it yourself. It is a pleasant exercise, productive of health of body, and serenity of mind. Let the order, neatness; and the display of beauty in your garden; be the index of what may be seen in your house.

One thing more; the management of domestics. See that all things go right in the kitchen. Let every thing be done according to order. Never dispute with a servant in what way a thing shall be done. Let your commands be promptly obeyed. Observe a mild dignity; but avoid all improper familiarity with those who may be placed under you. Be never hasty and impetuous; but calm and deliberate. Reprove when necessary, with mildness and determination; but never make a long harangue about matters of minor importance. Too much reproof, especially if delivered in a passion, or high tone of voice, is apt to loose its desired effect, and produce reaction on the part of the dependent. Dignity, decision and condescension, must be assimilated in such a manner as to command respect. Undue severity will so operate on the mind of domestics as to destroy respect, and create disaffection and hatred. Never charge a domestic with lying without irrefragable proof—then punish or dismiss him. To say frequently and upon all occasions to a domestic, "you lie," is perfectly ridiculous, and has an evil tendency. If he be a liar, you harden him; if otherwise, you injure his feelings and destroy his confidence.

I have done—you have my best wishes.

Hints to Mechanics and Workmen.—If you want to avoid the diseases which your particular trades are liable to produce, attend to the following hints.

Keep, if possible, regular hours. Never suppose you have done extra work, when you sit up till midnight, and do not rise till eight or nine in the morning.

Abstain from ardent spirits, cordials and malt liquors, let your drink be that of Franklin, when he was a printer—pure water.

Be particular in preserving your skin clean, by frequent washing of your hands, face and mouth, before each meal, and of your whole body, at least once a week, and by combing and brushing the hair daily.—Always have fresh air in the room in which you work, but so that you will not be in a draft.

Take a short time in the morning, if possible, and always in the evening, or towards sundown, for placing your body in a natural posture, by standing erect and extending your chest and limbs by a walk where the air is fresh.

If confined in doors, let your food consist, in a large proportion of milk and bread, and well boiled vegetables. Meat and fish ought to be used sparingly, and only at dinner.—You are better without coffee, tea, or chocolate. If you use any of them, it ought not to be more than once a day.—Journal of Health.

Hanging for a Livelihood.—A correspondent says that there is a fellow going about the villages near London who contrives to make a very profitable and easy livelihood by hanging himself. His method is, first, to select some tree by the road side, near the root of which he strows a few pieces of paper which appear to be fragments of a letter addressed to his wife. He next suspends himself with a rotten cord, which, breaking, leaves him prostrate beneath it; in this situation he remains till some passenger notices his apparently awful condition. He then counterfeits returning animation so naturally that the sympathy of the stranger is awakened; to whose inquiries he replies with a tale of distress, tells a long story of his wife and children, and says he is a reduced clerk on his way home. At Acton, a deception of this description was practised lately; the impostor succeeded in getting himself conveyed free to Birmingham, with seven or eight pounds in his pocket, subscribed by the humane gentry of the neighborhood.

Last week a similar occurrence took place at Norwood, in Surrey; the person was brought into the inn kept by Neale, the pugilist, where some 10s. or 15s. were subscribed for him; he was subsequently taken before a magistrate, who, after admonishing him upon the enormity of his suicidal attempt, discharged him. The parish clerk of Acton, who had befriended the individual first alluded to, was led by suspicion and curiosity to make some inquiries about the man at Norwood, when, from the similitude of the person described, the contents of his pockets, some religious compositions written in pencil in his pocket-book, and other corroborating circumstances,—there is no doubt it was the same person.

Knowledge.—What is it that mainly distinguishes a man from a brute? Knowledge. What makes the vast difference there is between savage and civilized nations? Knowledge. What forms the principal difference between men as they appear in the same society? Knowledge. What raised FRANKLIN from the humble station of a printer's boy to the first honors of his country? Knowledge. What took SHERMAN from his shoe maker's bench, gave him a seat in Congress, and there made his voice to be heard among the wisest and best of his compeers? Knowledge. What raised SIMPSON from the weaver's loom to a place among the first of mathematicians; and HERSCHEL from being a poor filier's boy in the army, to a station among the first of Astronomers? Knowledge. It is the philosopher's stone—the true alchymy that turns every thing it touches into gold. It is the sceptre that gives us our dominion over nature; the key that unlocks the stores of creation, and opens to us the treasures of the universe.

NEW BOOK STORE.

THE Subscriber having no prospect of being again able to perform the labors of the ministry; and feeling, in common with other men, the importance of engaging in some employment which will enable him to provide for the wants of a rising family, has opened a Book Store in Charlotte, N. C. He believes, that such an establishment was needed in the Western section of our State. He respectfully invites his friends, acquaintances, and all who feel any interest in his undertaking, to call and see his Books. He will be happy to execute orders for those who live at a distance.

Whilst he has on hand some valuable works in Law, in Medicine, most of the Greek and Latin Classics, and other books used in our Schools and Academies, many works in Theology, and many Miscellaneous books suited to almost every class of readers, he will be able to procure on favorable terms, any books to be found in the Northern Cities, or in the London Market. It will give him pleasure to assist professional gentlemen or private citizens in enlarging their Libraries, or in purchasing new ones. He looks with confidence and respect to an enlightened community for encouragement.
