

MISCELLANEOUS.

From the New-York Evening Post.
NAVAL ANECDOTE.
 Some time in the early part of the late war, between the United States and Great Britain, as the frigate President, Commodore Rogers, was standing in for Block Island, between Gay Head and Mautaug Point: under a full complement of canvass, she espied a long sharp "clipper built" schooner with English colors, under the lee bow sailing towards her, bearing a set of signals which were not understood: the schooner was therefore pronounced to be an enemy's vessel.

The Commodore, however, by way of making a feint, ordered a flag run up, and hauled down again immediately. This had the effect intended; the schooner believing that his signal had been duly answered, and not willing to appear dull on the occasion, forthwith hauled down his signal and stood for the President, supposing her to be one of his B. M. frigates.

The President now hove too under English colors. The schooner came alongside, and was hailed, 'What schooner is that?' 'His M. schooner Highflyer,' was the answer. 'Come on board, Sir, with your papers.' 'Aye, aye, Sir.' The boat was now hoisted out and a British Lieutenant came alongside. He was piped over the gangway, and immediately ushered into the cabin, where sat Com. Rodgers, to whom he handed his instructions. 'Umph, so Sir, you are looking out for the American frigate President, Com. Rodgers.' 'Where did you leave the squadron?' 'Yesterday morning off back Long Island, Sir.' 'How was Com. Hardy?' 'He was very well, Sir.' 'Have you a sufficient description of the President to enable you to recognize her when you shall see her?' 'O yes, Sir, we cannot fail to know her immediately.' 'Well, Sir, without keeping you longer in suspense, I have the honor to inform you that you are now on board the U. S. ship President, and I am Com. Rodgers!'

Meantime all hands being piped to dinner, the officer of the deck ordered the boatswain's mate to invite the men who were in the boat to come up and partake with the crew.

The boatswain's mate accordingly looks over the side, and says—'Shipmates, come aboard and get some dinner'—'Shipmates, eh,' says a dry old fellow in the act of taking out his last hours quid of tobacco, and looking up at the same time very quizzically at the President's jib—'I say Tom, do you twig that split canvass jib? Shiver my topmasts, but Brother Jonathan has diddled us this time, as sure as the devil's in Lunnon. But never mind Tom, we'll go aboard and see our new messmates—mayhap we shall find plenty of Yankee grog, with a dish of long meetenings, and a comfortable drop of old Kentucky. Long Tom.

A man Killed with a Candle.—An inquest was held at Ciewer, on Friday last, on the body of a man, Charles Hore, who was unfortunately killed the same morning in the following thoughtless manner:—it appeared in evidence that the poor fellow had been engaged the previous evening as an extra waiter at the Cavalry Barracks, and had returned home early in the morning with a friend, with whom he was laughing and joking. As he walked down the yard at the back of his house, the other loaded a gun with powder, and put into it half a musketball, and fired with the intention of covering him with grease. The poor man instantly dropped down, and died in less than two hours afterwards, the candle having passed through his kidneys. He has left a wife and five small children destitute.—London paper.

GEORGIA vs. DOWN EAST.
 Scene—Bar Room of a Tavern.
 Nutmeg.—(Addressing Cracker, a Georgian) I say, Mister, you haint seed nothing of no umbrella no wheres about here, haint you?

Cracker.—Now I'll tell you what, stranger, if you'll jest untwist that and say it over again, I'll gin ye an answer.

Nut.—Now—do tell; I guess you are about as snappish as Deacon Holmes' new invented sheep shears; they not only took the wool clean off, but shaved the ears and tail with it!

Crack.—You're a screamer!—Come figure in with me in a mint-julep, if you know what that is. Mint's all the go South—and if you want to get the first chop go to the grave of any southern nullifier, who mought have recently died, and there you'll find the mint as they say, shooting up spontaneously.

Nut.—No!—you don't say so?—Well, now, that's a good one. Howsomdever, mister, I guess you never drink'd no blackstrap, did you? Spouse you haint. Why, bless your good soul, it is the sweetest drink that ever streaked down a common sized gullet.

Lasas and rum with a little dash o' water—Why, do you know, when Deacon Snooks died he was buried in farmer Greg's old lot, just behind Major Stakes' grocery and liquor store; you know where it is?—Well, ever since he was laid there, which may be I guess, about twelve years ago, there's been a spring of blackstrap running.

Crack.—Well, stranger, you can take the rag off the bush about a leettle the cleanness I ever heard tell. I reckon you'll beat our old nigger Coot, who once run agin a lawyer, and has never been able to tell the truth since. You can come buckleberry over my persimmon to-day.

PROSPECTUS

Of a novel and interesting Weekly Publication, to be commenced on Saturday the 6th of July, TO BE ENTITLED
The Spy in Philadelphia,

AND SPIRIT OF THE AGE.

IT is very philosophically observed by Addison, that our greatest pride arises from doing good to each other, or, in other words, from being individually serviceable to society. This can be best effected by a proper application of our intelligencies, meeting them out according to the necessities of the community, and less lamenting the decline of public virtue than checking the progress of its decline. As the direction and discussion of measures of national and state polity are the business of the daily press, the full application of Addison's remark is necessarily neglected, and the consequence is, that vice shielded by wealth and worldly influence, are abroad among the people, not only unsuspected, but courted and required; and that a publication is necessary which will not only detect, but exhibit these vices in sheep's clothing to public scorn; a mark by which others will be warned from their intent and service be rendered to society. In effecting this object we shall pursue a yet untrodden path; one where the necessary thorn shall be mingled (not concealed) with contrasting flowers. The manner of the "Spy in Philadelphia" shall be perfectly delicate, and unobscured by cant or vulgarity; its censure shall be judicious, its satire chaste. Literature and the arts shall find in it an untired friend: Dramatic and Literary criticisms shall meet with most attentive and impartial duty, and sketches of the Bar and Pulpit of Philadelphia shall occasionally appear from the pen of competent judges, unbiassed by personal acquaintance or professional attachment. To these recommendations, our Poetical column will add another, which, coming from an already popular source, will, we trust, be equal to that of more pretending publications. It is unnecessary to be more explicit, as we presume the want of the proposed journal is not only admitted, but generally felt.—We therefore place ourselves before the PEOPLE and relying upon their love of justice and of public virtue, await their decision respectfully but confidently.

CONDITIONS.

The first number of "THE SPY IN PHILADELPHIA" will be issued on the first Saturday in July. It will be printed on fine white paper, in eight quarto pages, and with good type. As it is intended to render the contents worthy of preservation, for amusing or instructive reference, the advantage of the proposed and more portable size will be evident. The terms are $2 per annum, payable in advance, or $2 50 if not paid before the expiration of six months. Agents will be allowed a discount of 10 per cent. on all subscribers they shall obtain, on remitting one year's payment in advance, or becoming responsible for the same, and a gratuitous copy of the paper.

"THE SPY IN PHILADELPHIA" will contain humorous engravings after the manner of the celebrated Cruikshank. They will be executed by skilful artists and be accompanied with comic illustrations in prose or verse from the pens of original and competent writers.

All orders must be addressed, post paid, to
 WILLIAM HILL & CO.
 No 1 Athenian Building, Philadelphia.
 Care will be taken to have the work carefully packed when sent out of the city.

Select Circulating Library.

Containing equal to Fifty volumes for 5 Dollars PROSPECTUS.

IN presenting to the public a periodical, entirely new in its character, it will be expected that the publisher should describe his plan, and the objects he hopes to accomplish.
 There is growing up in the United States a numerous population, with literary tastes, who are scattered over a large space, and who, distant from the localities where books and literary instruction emanate, feel themselves at a great disadvantage to enjoy that mental food which education has fitted them to enjoy. Books are cheap in their principles, but in the interior they cannot be procured as soon as published, nor without considerable expense. To supply this desideratum is the object of the present undertaking, the chief object of which, emphatically is, to make good reading easy, and to put it in a form that will bring it to every man's door.

Books cannot be sent by mail, while the "Select Circulating Library" may be received at the distant post office in the Union in from fifteen to twenty five days after it is published, at the trifling expense of two and a half cents or in other words, before a book could be bound in Philadelphia, or subscribers in Ohio or Vermont may be procuring it in their parlours.

To elucidate the advantages of the "Select Circulating Library" such as we propose, it is necessary to compare it with some other publications. Take the Waverley novels for example; the Chronicles of the Canongate occupy two volumes, which are sold at $1.25 to $1.50. The number would be readily contained in three numbers of this periodical, at an expense of not more than seven cents, postage included! So that more than three times the quantity of literary matter can be supplied for the same money by adopting the newspaper form. But we consider transmitted by mail, and the early receipt of a new book, a most distinguishing feature of the publication. Distant subscribers will be placed on a par with those nearer at hand, and will be enabled at their own homes with equal to those in Philadelphia of the common London news to see Five Dollars. This may not strike many as an accomplishment; for, though not longer than a week will elapse between the issuing of a number yet, when there is a press of very interesting matter, or when two or more numbers are required to contain a whole work, the printer will feel himself at liberty to publish at intervals—fifty two numbers being the equivalent for five dollars.

Arrangements have been made to receive London at an early copy of every new book, and either in that part of talent or in Edinburgh, together with the periodical literature of Great Britain.—From the former we shall select the Novels, Memoirs, Tales, Travels, Statistics, Geography, &c. and publish them with as much rapidity and accuracy as an extensive press and intelligence will admit. From the latter, such intelligence will occasionally be culled, as prove interesting and entertaining to the best knowledge and science, literature and good standard novels, and other works of merit of print, may also occasionally be reproduced in our columns.

The publisher confidently assures the book families, that they need have no dread of losing the "Select Circulating Library" into the domestic circle, as the gentleman who has taken the Editorial duty, to literary talents, habits adds a due sense of the responsibility assumed in catering for an extended and common community, and of the consequences determined otherwise, that will follow the dissemination of obnoxious or wholesome mental aliment. His situation and engagements afford him peculiar advantages and facilities for the selection of these with the additional channels created by agencies at London, Liverpool and Edinburgh, warrant the proprietor in guaranteeing a full and entire edition of the literary department.

It would be supererogatory to dilate on the special advantages and conveniences which our publication presents to people of literary taste, wherever located, but more particularly to those who reside in retired situations—they are persons that the first glance cannot fail to detect the victim of its eligibility.

TERMS.

The Select Circulating Library will be sent weekly on a double medium sheet of fine paper, octavo form, with three columns on a page, mailed with great care so as to carry safely the most distant post-offices.

It will be printed and finished with due care and accuracy as book work. The volume will consist of 1200 pages, or three volumes, of Royal Octavo size. Each volume will be accompanied with title page and index.

The price is Five Dollars for fifty-two numbers of sixteen pages each—a price at which it can be afforded unless extensively patronized. Payment at all times in advance.

Agents who procure five subscribers, shall receive a receipt in full by remitting the publisher a proportionate compensation for a larger number. This arrangement is made to increase the circulation to an extent which will make it a profitable agency liberally. Claims of five individuals may thus procure the work for $4 by uniting their remittances.

Subscribers, living near agents, may pay their subscriptions to them; those otherwise situated may remit the amount to the subscriber at his option. Our arrangements are all made in full payment of our part of the contract.

Subscribers' names should be immediately forwarded, in order that the publisher may know many to print of the future numbers.
