

POETRY.

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

When Freedom from her mountain height
Unfurled her Standard to the air,
She tore the azure robe of night,
And set the stars of glory there!
She mingled with its gorgeous dyes
The milky baldric of the skies,
And striped its pure celestial white,
With streakings from the morning light!
Then, from his mansion in the sun,
She called her eagle bearer down,
And gave into his mighty hand
The symbol of her chosen land!

Majestic monarch of the cloud!
Who rear'st aloft thy regal form,
To hear the tempest trumping loud,
And see the lightning lances drive,
When strides the warrior of the storm,
And rolls the thunder-drum of heaven!
Child of the sun! to the 'tis given
To guard the banner of the free—
To hover in the sulphur smoke,
To ward away the battle-stroke,
And bid its blendings shine afar,
Like rainbow on the cloud of war
The harbinger of victory!

Flag of the brave! thy folds shall fly,
The sign of hope and triumph high!
When speaks the signal trumpet's tone,
And the long line comes gleaming on,
Ere yet the life-blood, warm and wet,
Has dimmed the glistening bayonet,—
Each soldier's eye shall brightly turn
To where thy meteor glories burn,
And as his springing steps advance,
Catch war and vengeance from the glance!
And when the cannon's mouthings loud,
Heave in wild wreaths the battle shroud,
And gory sabres rise and fall,
Like sheets of flame on midnight's pall!
There shall thy victor glances glow,
And cowering foes shall sink beneath
Each gallant arm that strikes below
That lovely messenger of death!

Flag of the seas! on ocean's wave,
Thy stars shall glitter o'er the brave,
When Death careering on the gale,
Sweeps darkly round the bellied sail,
And frightened waves rush wildly back
Before the broadside's reeling rack,
The dying wanderer of the sea
Shall look to thee to heaven and thee,
And smile as see thy splendors fly,
In triumph o'er the closing eye.

Flag of the free heart's only home,
By angel hands to valor given;
Thy stars have lit the walkin dome,
And all thy hues were born in heaven!
For ever float that standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us,
With Freedom's soul beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

DRAKE.

MISCELLANEOUS.

[From the New York Evening Star.]
A Chapter on Temper.—One of the most impressive admonitions ever given to a mother, is found in the advice of her physician, never to nourish her infant when in a passion, as the pure fountain from which it derives its support, is for a time poisoned by the ebullitions of rage, and convulsions and death too frequently follow. How dreadful, therefore, is the consequence of passion when it may even endanger the life of the innocent being at the very moment when it receives the nourishment so necessary for its existence—and how frequently is every enjoyment through life poisoned by giving way to a crabbed petulant wayward temper. Something may be charged to Dame Nature in the formation of our tempers, but more to early impressions—to proper corrections, to severe admonitions in repressing and checking the gusts of passion in a child.—This watchful and anxious duty is more necessary with a daughter than with a son, because a boy is thrown upon the world, mingles with mankind, and rudeness and passion are promptly checked by prompt punishment, and the rough treatment he experiences on life's stormy billows, is an efficient corrective of a bad temper.—Not so with a girl. From her pursuits and domestic habits, she is necessarily estranged from the world until that period arrives when she is called upon to take an interest in its bustling concerns—when her accomplishments, and, probably, personal attractions, draw around her friends and admirers; and when she is about to be translated from scholastic pursuits and maiden habits to the more elevated sphere in which the wife and mother moves. Here is the trying moment. The ardent admirer sees in the object of his fond affection nothing but what is truly amiable; he finds her all that glowing fancy had painted;—but when the giddy lover is superseded by a temperate husband, and he anxiously examines with deeper scrutiny into the qualities of her head and heart, he is shocked beyond expression to find youth and beauty under the deformity of a confirmed bad temper—and he dates his misery and unhappiness from the moment of his unfortunate discovery—he finds that nature has not been sufficient in this blessing, but neglect had strengthened natural propensities, like a fair garden which is allowed to be over-run with weeds.
If he is blessed with wealth, he cannot enjoy it, from the fretful contradiction of her temper; if he has to labor with care and anxiety, his home is always hateful to him; if he advises he is treated with neglect; if he admonishes he is threatened with displeasure, if he raises his voice in anger, he is assailed with tenfold violence—his servants refuse to remain with him—his friends will not sacrifice their comfort to her spleen.

otic humors—she is unhappy herself, and makes every one unhappy around her, while her husband, driven to other sources for enjoyment, too frequently plunges into dissipation and ruin, because he cannot find the happy retreat which his ardent fancy had painted. A bad temper, therefore, in a woman, poisons all happiness and turns her milk to gall; blights her youth, and brings on premature, fretful old age; palls all her enjoyments; banishes her friends, and renders her home comfortless and barren.—
Far different is the ripe, rich harvest of a home made bright and happy by the sweet temper and mild deportment of an amiable wife, who, if afflictions cross her husband abroad, find comfort and consolation in his domicile; is happy in a companion whose temper is like the silver surface of a lake, calm, serene, and unruffled. If he is rich his admiring friends rejoice in his prosperity, and delight in his hospitality, because all around is light, airy and sunshine; if he is poor, he breaks his crust in peace and thankfulness, for it is not steeped in the waters of bitterness. An amiable temper is a jewel of inestimable value in the sum of earthly happiness, because with that alone the whims of a cross husband may be subdued; many vices may be overcome; the boisterous may be tamed; the unruly conquered; the fretful tranquilized; and the hurricane softened and hushed, as the mild zephyr that sweeps o'er the honey-suckle under the casement.

Hints to Farmers.—If you neglected your farming utensils last fall, bring them forward now and see if they are in good order. Apply a coat of paint to the wood; it costs but little and will preserve them from warping and decay. See if there is a peg or a nail lacking, and be sure to replace it.—
Look to your fences and see that they are in good order. A stone wall looks much neater than a brush fence, or a crazy, rickety, rail fence, that a poor old sheep cant rest his bones against without endangering his neck. A bad fence is a fruitful source of quarrels between neighbors. Scrape up the chips about your door yard, let them decay in heaps; they make excellent manure. Don't work your boys too hard; but be sure to keep them diligent. Don't keep them a digging and driving that you may have the better chance to lean over the fence and wrangle about politics, or loiter at "the corner," about the stores or tavern. Set them an example of industry and promptitude yourself, and they will be very likely to follow it. Let them pick up the stones about your farm, and pile them in heaps, to make a wall, repair the roads, or at least to be out of the way of your scythe, hoe and ploughshare. Don't let them work with great heavy implements requiring the strength of a man to wield them; if you are able furnish them with those of a light hand make, and they will work with greater alacrity. Give them a piece of ground of their own to cultivate; it will incite them to prudence and activity. But don't neglect their education let what will come. Employ a good teacher and be sure that your children go regularly to school. Don't keep them at home to do work you might just as well do yourself. Don't let them go a courting till they have got a thorough knowledge of grammar, geography, arithmetic, and practical farming. You had better examine the first love letter they write, and if it is misspelt, don't let them "go ahead."—
While looking after yourself and the boys, don't forget your wife and daughters. It is hard work to scour up the floors, and the expense of a coat of yellow ochre is a mere trifle. You better put it on—it will save the girls from fretting and your wife from growing old. Don't keep them a borrowing swif and reels, tubs and wheels; if you are a common manager you can do so easily. If they ask for a new gown or a pair of shoes, don't scold and rate them about extravagance, when perhaps those they have are as old as the hills, but buy them if you are able; if you are not, tell them so kindly and frankly, and if they are as reasonable as our farmer's wives and daughters generally are, they will say no more about it. Don't let them ape city dresses and fashions; a plain simple attire is always more becoming than a tawdry imitation of the prevailing mode.

Girls must know something more than merely to read and write; they cant have too much arithmetic, and a knowledge of all the English branches of education will make them contented at home, prevent gadding, tattling and romping. Finally don't borrow, but take at least one newspaper; you will find your account in the superior intelligence, capacity and capability of your family; your barn, your fields, your house and family will show it.—Portland Courier.

Carriage Making Business

NATHAN BROWN returns his sincere thanks to his friends and the public at large, for the liberal encouragement he has received in his line of business, and begs leave to inform them that he still continues to carry it on at his New Establishment, one door north-west of the Jail. He has on hand and will continue to make to order, on short notice, or sell, on accommodating terms such vehicles as are generally required in this part of the country, all of which will be disposed of at reasonable prices, for cash or good notes on demand. He is now procuring a supply of the best timber the country affords, and his materials are selected with care, and as he has good workmen in his employ, his work will be executed with neatness, durability and despatch.

Orders from a distance for work of any description in his line, will be promptly attended to and thankfully received.
REPAIRS done on the shortest notice and on the most reasonable terms.

TO THE PUBLIC.

DOCT. J. M. HAPPOLOTT
HAS established an EYE INFIRMARY and a SURGICAL WARD at his residence, for the accommodation of all persons who may commit themselves to his care. Believing that an Establishment of this kind has long since been called for, from the nature of Surgical Operations, the subsequent attention requisite in order to render them successful and the appeals to mitigate the pangs of suffering humanity; and aware of the impracticability of imparting that necessary aid, (and in most cases daily attention) imperiously demanded by those who are the subjects of surgical diseases or accidental injury, where the patients are not immediately under the eye of the Surgeon, he has been at no little expense in making preparations for the reception of those who may commit their cases to his direction. It is needless to dwell on the importance of an Establishment of this kind to the subjects of Surgery and the advantages which such may derive from it. Suffice it to say, that the daily attention of the practitioner is not only necessary, but of incalculable benefit to the patient as regards his ease and comfort, as well as the final result of the operation or case under treatment. Daily experience proves the lamentable fact that many suffer for the want of that attention which their situation demands, but which is denied them, by the disadvantageous circumstances under which a country Practitioner labors and which (unavoidably, however disagreeable) prevent him from imparting. This aid, so loudly called for, can be expected only from an Institution, where it is the province of a practitioner to give daily attendance. From the consideration that a located Surgical Department would be desirable, Dr. Happoldt is induced to offer his services to the public and solicits such cases as may require close or daily treatment (wherever practicable) to be brought to his establishment, where every attention will be rendered; that will in anywise tend to the comfort or benefit of the patient. His FEES will be reasonable, and much less than for the same services rendered at the dwelling of the patient.
From the advantages of Surgical Information derived from a course of studies at the Medical College of South Carolina and at the University of Pennsylvania, together with the experience of twelve years' practice, and the general success hitherto attendant on his operations, he hopes to merit a liberal patronage.
The counsel and assistance of a professional gentleman, of high and respectable qualifications, will be obtained in cases which may require them, without any additional charge.
Dr. H. may be found at his Establishment, 8 miles below Charlotte, on the Providence road, where he may be consulted. While he proposes to devote much of his time to Surgery, the other branches of his profession shall receive due attention.
Providence Settlement, Mecklenburg Co. N. C. May 14, 1834. 89.3m
N. B. One or two Students, of good attainments and moral character, will be received, who can enjoy the advantages of dissection, with operations on the dead subject and post mortem examination, and a well selected Library.

MALLARD CREEK CLASSICAL SCHOOL.

A CLASSICAL SCHOOL has been opened, at Mallard Creek Church, in which the Latin and Greek Languages, with English Grammar and Geography are taught. The subscribers hope by untiring exertion, and constant attention to his business, to merit a portion of the patronage of Mecklenburg and the surrounding public. Aware of the discrepancy that too often exists between the assertions made by teachers in their advertisement and the actual improvement of their pupils, he makes no extraordinary promises—he knows no royal way to learning, a faithful discharge of his duties as a teacher, and patient and vigorous application, on the part of his pupils, are the measures by which he hopes to advance the improvement of those committed to his care.
The Academy, is located near the road leading from Charlotte to Concord, about 12 miles from each. The neighborhood is healthy, moral, and retired. The students, will be exposed to as few temptations to vice or a prodigality of time, as our imperfect human condition will admit of. Care will be taken to discipline the mind, and give a healthy tone of moral sentiment to those who shall attend the school. Boarding can be had in respectable families, at the very reduced rate of $50, per year.
Price of tuition as follows:
The Greek and Latin per session $10
English Grammar and Geography 7
The next session will commence on the first day of July next. The scholastic year contains ten months, divided into two equal sessions.
