

the Tower, the Traitor's Gate, the scold and the axe! Full well they know; but

They have set their lives upon the cast,
And now must stand the hazard of the die.

By threats of violence they intimidated the commander of the sloop, and he promises not to land his stamps. They seize the vessel's boat and hoisting a mast and flag, mount it upon a cart and march in triumph to Wilmington. Upon their arrival the town is illuminated. Next day, with Colonel Ashe at their head, the people go in crowds to the Governor's house, and demand of him James Houston, the stamp master. Upon his refusal to deliver him up forthwith, they set about to burn his house above his head. Terrified, the Government to the market house, where, in presence of the assembled people, he is made to take the solemn oath never to execute the duties of his office. Three giant hurrahs ring through the old market house, and the stamp act falls still-born in North-Carolina. [Cheers.] And this was more than ten years before the Declaration of Independence, and nine before the Battle of Lexington, and nearly eight before the Boston Tea Party. The destruction of the tea was done in the night by men in disguise, and history blazons it, and New England boasts of it, and the fame of it is worldwide. But this other act, more gallant and daring done in open day by well-known men, with arms in their hands, and under the King's flag—who remembers or tells of it? When will history do justice to North Carolina? Never, till some faithful and loving son of her own shall gird his loins to the task with unweary industry and unflinching devotion to the honor of his dear old mother.

AMERICAN RATIFICATION MEETING.

The meeting held last night in the Market House was certainly one of the most remarkable political incidents that we have ever seen in this place. It was remarkable for the very large number present, and for the earnestness and enthusiasm which marked its proceedings; but more than all for the association, in one common cause, of those who, time out of mind, have been political antipodes, never brought together in harmony before. In the language of a democrat, it was the millennium. The majority of the meeting was undoubtedly composed of Whigs, but there was a large proportion of those who have always sided with the democrats—not only young and ardent men, but the gray headed and considerate, the active and influential men of that party. When the estimable citizen, Alfred A. McRae, Esq., took the chair, there broke forth a feeling of exaltation, that such a stanch democrat and public spirited citizen, respected by all parties, though asking nothing from any, was to preside over the first public meeting of the new party. This was repeated when Maj. Leonard, a soldier of 1812, and another leading democrat, took his seat as Vice President, and when Maj. Shaw and Mr. Rhodes, both democrats from Harnett county, also took seats on the stand as Vice Presidents.

In the slang language of the day, this is the first time that the people of Fayetteville has "seen Sam," and they cannot but be surprised to see how large he is grown, and of what materials he is composed.—Observer.

NORTH CAROLINA RAIL ROAD.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of this road will be held in the town of Greensboro on the 2d Thursday, the 13th day of July next. We understand that there will be a meeting of the Directors on the 9th of July.

We learn that the work on the great enterprise is progressing with all possible despatch. On the eastern end, the cars are running daily to Mebaneville, 32 miles east of Greensboro, and 100 miles west of Goldsboro. On the western end the cars, it is now, will in a few days be running to Lexington, 35 miles west of Greensboro, and 64 miles east of Charlotte; making 162 miles of the road now in use, leaving some 60 miles yet to finish; and on a portion of that little to do, except to lay down the iron. We further learn that a sufficient of iron to complete the whole road has been purchased, and that there will be no delay in its reception. Every thing, so far as we can learn, gives assurance of speedy completion of the work, and the realization of the fond anticipations of its friends and the glory of the Old North State.—Gen. Post.

SAM HOUSTON A DUELING.—Judge J. tells a tale about Sam Houston which is "good enough to print." During the canvass that resulted in Sam's beating Barnett for the presidency of the Republic of Texas, some rather harsh terms having passed between the parties, Barnett took occasion to send Houston a challenge. Previous to its reception, Sam got information of the intention of his opponent; and when Dr. Ashe, who was sent by Mr. Barnett to deliver the challenge, was introduced into Mr. Houston's room, he found that gentleman in bed, groaning, and apparently suffering with the most excruciating pain. It was some time before the distinguished visitor was noticed by the invalid; but finally, after listening to the reading of the challenge, Sam groaned out—Tell him I'll fight him—I when his turn comes. I've seen you on my list before him! when they have been disposed of, this affair of honor shall be settled! The Doctor took his leave, and was ushered from the apartment by a deep groan from the invalid.—Necker Valley.

WORMS! WORMS!

TCY young theories have been started relative to the origin of intestinal worms, and yet the questions still vexed one among medical authorities. Of our fact, however, all are informed, save in which all agree—the fatal nature of the influence they exert on children. At this season of the year, few attacks of worms are most frequent as well as most dangerous. We take great pleasure in directing the attention of parents to the Vermifuge of Dr. McLane. It is one of the most extraordinary medicines ever introduced to the public, and has never failed of success when tried.

Purchasers will be careful to ask for DR. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED VERMIFUGE, and none else. All other Vermifuges, in comparison, are worthless. Dr. McLane's genuine Vermifuge, also his Celebrated Liver Pills, can now be had at all respectable Drug Stores in the United States and Canada.
