CHRIST IN GETHSEMANE.

The events in the garden of Gethsemane, with their scenes of horror, have passed in review before us. If we are not entitled to regard the position in which we find the Saviour there, as altogether extraordinary, super-human and singular; we should do better to close the gate that inclosure, and withdraw the Holy One of Israel from the eyes of the world if we wish to save his honor, and that of his Father.

If pork next fall is scarce and high, those who have it to sell may think it is a prosperous time for them, but it will be more so if the people generally have planted corn. It is not true, as it is said, that if all did so the price would be "ruinously low."

We advise you, therefore, every man of you that owns an acre of soil, to plant corn—in the English acceptation of the word, anything that will make bread—but more particularly we entreat you to plant maize, or Indian corn. We ask it for the good of the country—for the benefit of the farmer.

Last spring a general effort was made to increase the product of the land. Heaven smiled upon it, and the people were made glad. There was cause then—there is cause now—that the people should plant corn—more than was planted last year, for nowhere are the granaries full; nowhere is there a surplus laid up against an unfruitful year, and without such a surplus no country can be independent, no people prosperous and happy.

Let them plant corn. We have had a winter of severity such as those who are most able to work have never known before, and may never know again. But that is not certain; the next may be one of still greater severity, and if so, what a demand there will be for grain—the poor will cry out for bread. Let the farmers plant corn.

Owing to the fact that the ground has been covered with snow for many weeks, and that snow is an absorbent of fertilizing elements for the earth, we have reason to believe that this will be a great grain-producing season. Let the people plant corn.

Not a day is to be lost. We know that the ground is still frozen—that the snows of January still linger on the surface; but, we repeat, not a day is to be lost from your preparation, if you intend, more than last year, to plant corn.

Let it not be argued that the price of corn is falling—it is still largely remunerative, while all its products are equally so. Look at the prices that farmers have realized for beef and pork, and though the latter has fallen, it is still above the point of profit to the maker. There is no prospect that beef will fall to cents a pound on the hoof for all that it is corn fed during the year.

PLANT CORN.

The question of cheap bread for the work-man, and whether there will be a good supply of beef, depend upon how the people plant corn.

If pork next fall is scarce and high, those who have it to sell may think it is a prosperous time for them, but it will be more so if the people generally have planted corn.

We advise you, therefore, every man of you that owns an acre of soil, to plant corn—in the English acceptation of the word, anything that will make bread—but more particularly we entreat you to plant maize, or Indian corn.

There is no prospect that beef will fall to cents a pound on the hoof for all that it is corn fed during the year. At that rate it will pay to plant corn.

There is pressing need now for a great crop, as great, or greater than that of last year, and we may have it, if those who read this article will bear in mind the burden of it, and urge upon all with whom they have any influence, to plant corn—plant more than you intended, more than you did last year, if only by one grain, one hill, one rod, one row, one acre, one field—will let your motto be that which begins and ends this appeal: Plant Corn.

SWEET POTATOES, PLANTING IN LEVEL GROUND.

The old method of planting Sweet Potatoes in hill and ridges, in this dry climate and on our hard upper country lands, is all wrong. Potatoes must have moisture and soft earth to do well. But they lack both in common culture. Hills and ridges are the driest forms in which you can put the soil. Flat culture is the only right kind for Potatoes, or anything else, in burning climate and on our clay upland. Potatoes should be planted as flat, and may, in that way, be planted as easily, as corn.

First break up the land well; then lay off rows 4 feet wide with a shovel plow; run deep in the same tract with a roller, and then if you want it perfect, deeper still in the same furrow with a common nee ground coultter. Next, set upon both sides of this in the same way; that is, with shovel, roller and coultter—one right in the other. This makes deep work, and the deeper the better. It is soon done. Your ground is now ready—deep loose and moist, and will keep so all summer.

Now for planting and culture. With a roller draw a shallow furrow on the top of the list, just over the first shovel tract, to guide in dropping. In this drop the seed cut the roots, sprouts or vine cuttings, 12 or 15 inches apart, and cover lightly. Plow them a few times, just like corn, running close to the potatoes, with a roller, and finish off each working with a cultivator, or some other plow to keep the middle flat.

This mode of culture is not one-fourth as troublesome as hills; the crop is wonderful. It is not theory, but is my constant practice. By this mode the vines never turn yellow; the crop comes forward early in August, and the owner has no chance to talk about "small potatoes."—Southern Cultivator.
