heavy and onerous import duties of the ever faithful i-le " are sometimes evaded. A vessel, entirely empty, clears, for instance, at Havana for Matanzas, or any other domestic part, with a " constructive " cargo of flour, the customary duty on which, when arriving from foreign countries, is $9,55 per barrel. With papers all regular she goes to sea, falls in, by previous agreement, with an American vessel on the coast of Florida or elsewhere, actually freighted with the same dutiable article. The cargo is transferred, and the vessel, which left Havana entirely empty, proceeds on her voyage, and entering the port for which she had formally cleared, threas the flour upon the
