OUR EARTHLY FRIENDS IN BELVEN. The following lines were found in the coat-pocket belonging to a young man, soon after his testly which was occasioned by consumption.

- Is it wrong to wish to see them Who were dear to us, on earth, Who have gone to heavenly man-roos.
- White surround a brighter hearth ! Is it wrong to mourn their absence
- From the parted household hand? Should we check the eigh of saddens, Though they're in a better land? Is it wrong to hope to meet them. Yet upon the blessed shore,
- And with songs of joy to greet them. When this tool or life is o'er? Is it wrong to think them dearer
- Who to us were strangers?
  Must we love them like the cest? I've a mother up to Heaven
- And, oh ! tell me, if ye raw, Will that mother know her idalden? Will she recedied them stil'
- To this dark and distant shore Will she know when I am coming Will she meet me at the door
- Will she clasp me to her buson
- Will she ever be my mother? Shall I ever be fer boy? And thou, loved one, wim dist'et feave us, Dearest sister, shall I meet then
- When I go beyond the to Shall I see thy levely features !
- Like the midody of hirds And I think me of another-
- Of a darling little one— Who went up among the sugels, Ere his hie had scarce begun.
- Out I long once more to see him, And to fold him or my sems! As I did when he was with us, With his thousand budding charms. Ali t 'lie true the soul must suffer,
- And be bound with arguest down, For 'tie fitted for its dwelling, Ere 'tie ready for its crown.
