Poetry.

The last rays of the acting one,
Were lingering in the West,
I stone by one whose race was run,
And some she sank to rest,
But, ore the spirit took its flight,
From this cark world of care,
To runins of overlasting light,
Size whispered, "Meet me there!"

Fit invaries may not beed bestrue,
And not at local was I,
For all were wearing when they know.
That also, yes, are, must die!
All instead for her parting worth—
Sie was so good and fair—
Buttail the screents that they heard
Were, "Mont, oh, must me there it.
