

North Carolina Ed. Vig.

CHARLOTTE:

Tuesday, June 10, 1862

Wm. Johnston, of Mecklenburg.

Remember, That we take all kinds of country produce in exchange for the Wagon, Eggs, Butter, Lard, Chickens, in fact anything that is in the market.

Wood. Those of our country friends who intend paying their subscriptions in wood, will confer a favor upon us by bringing it in as soon as possible.

Would it not be well if the ministers of the different denominations of the City would inform these congregations at what time service commences, in the Morning and Evening. Have some stated here and it will do away with so much guessing at what time service commences.

Another accident on the N. C. R. R., who's to blame for that, it would be well hereafter to place the Engineer in front of the Engine when running, and accidents would not be heard of, especially trains running into each other.

The weather the past week has been quite mild and pleasant, thereby reminding us that all of us should keep as cool as possible, which will make us mild then we will see the milk of human kindness flowing around us, we again advise all to keep cool, keep off the handle and speak as cool as.

Local News. Again we have to call the attention of City Fathers to a "growing" nuisance that is the weeds that line our streets that should be cut up and carried out of the City limits.

Also another thing, we noticed on Sunday evening last, a large Mud Hole just in front of the Methodist Church, upon the sidewalk it seemed to us that a great deal of water had been poured out there causing the ladies to raise their dresses to keep them from getting soiled.

We hope that our City Fathers will think nothing of our calling their attention to things in the City, we pray that they will forgive our feminine weaknesses.

The Raleigh Standard. For sometime past we have depreciated the tone and temper of this paper. We thought however that surely the Editor Mr. Holden would see the error of his wicked ways and make amends for his folly. He has shown the Confederate and State Governments and all in authority—thereby was leaving the course of the South until he too became a great favorite with the Yankees. The Standard Progress now edited under Burnside's authority says: "we present our readers to day with numerous extracts from the Raleigh Standard of the 10th, 11th, and 12th, and it is refreshing to see the Editor apply the ventilating lash to the backs of the Confederate Editors and leaders. Mr. Holden has evidently kept a Hotel before and is not to be driven from the task he undertakes, who though the heavens fall. He sends the subject editorial pen in Carolina and fearlessly too." The Progress goes on with other high compliments to Editor Holden and his course. Has Holden come to this that his course is approved and endorsed by the Yankees. They say it is refreshing to read this paper, to see how he lashes the Confederate leaders, and that he is the silver Editor in Carolina. This is enough to encourage any man to attempt and follow. With Southern men read such a paper as the Standard, while our enemies say he is on their side, will they support such a course in their midst? Let those who have sons, brothers, sisters, relatives and friends in the army answer. Let those who have been despoiled and robbed of their homes and their all by these Yankee friends of Holden answer. The Progress says that the course of the Standard is an "entire sign of approaching day" and thus they are encouraged to persecute in their efforts to ventilate North Carolina and the South. If this is not giving aid and comfort to the enemy what is it?

Holden has been a traitor to every party and principle that he ever advocated and if he is true to his vote and the Ordinance of Secession let him prove it. The principles of neither Governor Graham, nor Col. Vance intended to help Holden to raise himself morally or politically. What self respect can he have who acknowledges that he libelled a gentleman and statesman for "party purposes" more soon.

The Past, the Present, and Future of our Country. Who of our readers but can look back to the past of our country's grandeur and greatness and feel but with pride of its former beauty, but our country has passed through a storm of desolation, homes once the pride of its people, now lie desolate from the track of the vandal hordes of King Abraham the first he who occupies the house once occupied by a Washington the man who was first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen, men who occupied that chair, are now no more, but their memories still live in the hearts of the people, would to God those men were living this day, their fingers would point with scorn at the Jew who now tramples the Constitution under foot, and says he is fighting for right and liberty.

The present age, the present fall of untold events, full of deeds of daring deeds that await the pen of the Historian to embellish the gallant deeds of our troops now in the tented field, who but has a beating heart for some friend, now far away from home, and the loved ones, perhaps a father, a son, a brother, and last but not least a husband, who upon the first call for men made by his country rushed on to the Camp willing to give up all for his country, to all we would say be of good cheer, if they fall, they fall in a glorious cause, my country will reward me for it, his memory still lives in the hearts of his countrymen.

The future, the dark future who can tell what is in the future, stores of misery sadness, or of glory awaits as none but the great all-seeing eye can see in the dark future our armies as far as we can see, are battling nobly, the lightning with its quick flash, brings us intelligence that all is well, Richmond has not fallen, by the action of the people there, they have sworn, that sooner than surrender, the streets shall run with blood, a noble sentiment, one worthy of a noble people, if the sunny are thoroughly routed, horse, foot, and dragoon, the future seems to us a glorious future, one full of grandeur and greatness, we pray God that in his goodness he will soon disperse the dark clouds that now hang over us as if that all way returns to their homes and the rich mines of untold wealth, that now lie buried in the sunny South may be brought to light, and the ring of the anvil, the strokes of the ore and the whirl of the wheel may be heard in every Village, Hamlet, and City throughout the length and breadth of our Confederacy. We say again be of good cheer, no matter how dark the day may open, sunshine will soon disperse the clouds that now overhang us. We have able Generals at the head of troops, who know when and where to strike, and when they strike it tells deeply upon our hireling foes.

LETTER THE SECOND. Travels, Trials and Troubles of James O'Grady, Esq.

N. C. Almost in Dixie, June 7th. My Dear Friends.—In my last letter I told you I was on my way to Raleigh I wrote, and I didn't I was on the road for that purty plain, I ain't Betty on the other woman baby for behind. THE HOSPITALS YESTERDAY—THE WOUNDED AND THEIR WANT.

We yesterday made a tour of the several private hospitals located on Main street and elsewhere. From the fact these are impromptu quarters, the accommodations are not perfect, yet between three and four hundred of the wounded in the two days' fight are comfortably quartered therein on mattresses and stretchers and receiving the best of attention from the citizens—ladies and gentlemen—who are ever present, and seem to vie with each other in their labors. Ice is being supplied in liberal quantities.

At Kent & Paine's store, on Main street, near the American Hotel, the first and second stories of which are occupied with strawberries and ice cream, the soldier-brothers standing over their bloody cushions merrily and eating out the delicious fruit. The prostrate soldiers' eyes glistened with gratitude, and we could not help reflecting how much better were those ladies regard than are the voracious dealers who deal out the luxuries as war-bait price, and lock the change in the money-drawers, without so much as a patriotic impulse for the soldier.

Little boys and girls were also there carrying ice and water, and distributing the beverages to the wounded, undisturbed by the presence of the soldiers around them.

The wounds of many at this hospital are slight, but some of a desperate character. At the Bank of Virginia hospital, on Main street, are a number of the wounded from the South Carolina Regiment, and we are glad to say, they are receiving their share of attention. Col. Beattion, of the 6th South Carolina Regiment, wounded—Among the killed in one brigade—in Long-street's division, including the 4th, 6th, 9th, and 10th South Carolina Regiments—are Captains Lyle, Alexander, Colquhoun, Walker and Gaston. The Adjutant-General of the brigade (Thomas Mills) had three ribs broken by the bursting of a shell—South Carolina has another brigade, in Smith's division, which was not severely engaged.

Of the casualties in the Texas regiments, we learn that Capt. Bryan, Company F, of the Fifth Texas, was killed, with several other officers, and a number of privates killed and wounded.

The list of the wounded, complete, has not yet been prepared, and it is impossible to furnish names with accuracy.

In order that the hospitals may be prepared for the wounded from the next battle-field, we would commend to our citizens, as far as they can, to receive the most slightly wounded into their dwellings, that their places may be taken by those who, in the progress of this battle for the defense of Richmond, must surely fall.

Amid such a general exhibition of attention and kindness, such as was shown by all classes, we regret to have to notice several glaring cases of the wounded. At the hospital, corner of Twenty first and Clay, a gentleman had his attention attracted by the cries of a soldier who, stretched on a mattress with a shattered leg, mistook him for a surgeon, and piteously implored him "For God's sake, to take off his leg or kill him." The limb had mortified from neglect. The clerk was made acquainted with his condition, and he replied that there was no surgeon in the hospital at that time. There may be many cases similar to the above, but, for the sake of humanity, we hope not.—Richmond Examiner.

FROM GEN. HETH'S COMMAND.—Important movements now being made by the command of Gen. Heth, under the immediate personal direction of Gen. Loring, have been detailed to us by gentlemen from the West, but we are not at liberty to give those particulars now. We may state, however, that it is believed these movements will result in the discomfiture of the enemy in that quarter, and his entire expulsion from it. We hope we may not be disappointed.—Lynchburg Republican, 31st ult.

COT. HENRY A. DOWD.—The Lynchburg Republican a few days ago published a statement that Col. Henry A. Dowd, who succeeded Col. McKinney in command of the 15th N. C. Regiment, was killed at Williamsburg. Col. Dowd is a resident of this town, and we are happy to learn that he is no longer in the hands of the enemy. He was not in that battle.—Torbora Southerner, 31st May.

NEWS.

From the Daily Bulletin Another Victory.

FREMONT DEFEATED.

COLUMBIA, S. C. June 9. A Dispatch to Gov. Pickens from high authority, states that Gen. Jackson has gained a complete victory over Fremont and was in close pursuit of his retreating forces.

Prisoners and Ordnance in great abundance have been captured. 'Generals Stuart and Elzy received slight wounds during the battle.

From the Petersburg Express of Saturday. Jackson Again Victorious.

We are pleased to hear that Stonewall Jackson had a fight at Strasburg on Tuesday, with the forces of Shields and Milroy, whipped them, and captured 705 prisoners. An officer who was in the fight, brought this information to Lynchburg on Thursday evening, and communicated it to the Virginian, in yesterday's issue of which paper we find it. This officer also states that Banks, Shields, Fremont, Milroy and Dix, were seeking to effect a junction of their forces to overwhelm Jackson. It is also stated that Dix sent a force up to Charlottesville, Va., on Saturday last, which was met and routed by three regiments despatched by Jackson for that purpose. We learn from the Virginian, that there were several gentlemen in Lynchburg Thursday evening, whose statement in the main confirm the foregoing.

LYNCHBURG, June 6.—Gen. Jackson's rear guard, with two pieces of cannon, had a brush with the Yankees near Woodstock, Shenandoah, last Monday. The engagement lasted only one hour.

Gen. Jackson is falling back towards Harrisonburg, having secured all his baggage and valuable stores. This is from a Lynchburg soldier who left Stanton this morning.

OUR DAY OF TRIAL AT HAND.—From the number of gun boats and vessels off the harbor of Charleston, and in the Stono River, with the landing of troops and the continued firing kept up on the shores of James Island yesterday, it seems that the attack on Charleston is imminent. It is believed that the Barbadoes fleet is here, and that the day of trial is upon us. The guns of our forts and the courage of our troops are about to come into requisition. The gun-boats of the enemy have not, we judge, been yet subjected to the fire of such batteries as protect our harbor. Unless they have a number of Monitor, which we by no means believe, they are likely to pay dearly for the venture in running such a gantlet. With the fewest works on James' Island, our troops can make a strong and, we trust, a successful defence even against greatly superior numbers, which is not very likely, if we are rightly informed.

Our people are calm, and prepared for a desperate resistance. Except the exemptions for railroads, work shops, banks and newspapers, and the foreign population, few are not in the ranks of the army. We have everything at stake in the struggle, and little to hope in case of failure. We trust the defense of Charleston in 1862, will ever be memorable for its heroism and its effect upon the country. It must be worthy of the cause, and of the old city and of the Palmetto State.—Charleston Mercury, 4th.

THE HAMPTON LEGION.—The Richmond Examiner says: According to report made at headquarters yesterday morning, the number of killed, wounded and missing in the Hampton Legion was 21 killed, 118 wounded and 15 missing.

Gen. J. B. Washington, aid to Gen. Johnston, while carrying an order on Saturday morning to the battle, got within the Yankee lines and was taken prisoner. He is a son of Lewis Washington, Esq., near Winchester.

CHARLOTTE HOTEL.

THE Proprietor of this Hotel is still at his post ready to fulfill all the duties of "mine host" to the traveling public and others who may call on him, and he flatters himself that as comfortable quarters can be found with him as anywhere in this vicinity. Being situated nearly in the centre of Charlotte, Business Men will find this Hotel a most convenient and desirable location. He has been engaged in the business for this stand nearly eighteen years, and in that time he has made several additions to his former house, and it has been greatly enlarged and improved, presenting in front a two story VERANDA 100 feet in length by 12 feet in width, handsomely shaded by trees on the side-walk, affording a pleasant promenade at all hours of the day.

The House has been thoroughly furnished throughout, and in every part of it creature comforts are abundant and tangible, especially in the DINING ROOM, where the "innocent man" is "refreshed" day by day. Connected with this Hotel are Stables affording room for 150 horses, abundantly furnished with grain and provender, attended by faithful and obliging hostlers.
