THE ALAMANCE GLEANER.

GRAHAM, N C., WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER

THE GLEANER

. VOL 5

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY E. S. PARKER Graham. N. C.

Rates of Subscruption. Postaye Paid :

Every person sending us a club of ten sub-scribers with the cash, entitles himself to one ropy free, for the lengh of time for which the club is made up. Papers sent to different offices No Departure from the Cash System

Rates of Advertising

Transient advertisements payable in advance nts quarterly in advan yearly advertis 1 m. 2 m. 3 m. 6 m. 12 m. $2 00 $3 00 $4 00 $ 6 00 $10 00 3 00 4 50 6 00 10 00 15 00 1 quare Transient advertisements $1 per square for he first, and fifty cents for each subse quentinsertion.

ADVERTISEMENTS

Prices reduced

Perfected Farmers Friend Plows madein Petersburg Va. Oue Horse No. 5 Price $4.00 fwo Horse No. 7 "" 6.00 fwo Horse No. 7% " 6.50 fwo Horse No. 8 7.00 For sale at Graham by SCOTT & DONNEJ.L. NEW Photograph Gallery AΤ Company Shops I wish to m/orm my friends and the surround-ing country that 1 have opened a first class Gallery in the GRANGE HALL where I am prepared to do all kind of work-such as Photographs, Chromotypes, Chromo crayon &c. Old faded pictures copied, enlarged and made new in the most approved style. Respectfully W. F. PRATHER. Knitting Cotton & Zephyr Wool, at SCOTT Fainer From Plows at SCOTT & DON THE GENUINE DR. C. McLANE'S Celebrated American WORM SPECIFIC OR VERMIFUGE. SYMPTOMS OF WORMS. THE countenance is pale and leadencolored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious. with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive ; uneas and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth ; temper variable, but gener-ally irritable, &c.

By Col. W. L., Saunders, President of the North Carolina Press Association, Gentlemen of the Press Association of

AN ADDRESS.

REALIZED THERE PARTY

10.

North Carolina. I congratulate you that so many of the brethren have found time and inclination to take part in our annual reunion, by far the largest number I have ever seen present on such an occasion.

As many of you know, I am one of hose who seek to encourage these reunions of the gentlemen of the press and who believe there is a higher and better and more useful end to be subserved by them than the promotion of mere social pleasure alone.

It is true that the average editor, being human, needs an occasional season of rest and recreation. Ilis bed is not entirely a bed of ease, neither is his pathway always strewn with flowers. Thorns as well as roses beset his feet as well as others, and to him also comes days of wearying labor followed by long nights of sleepless care,

And so if the rest from our toils and the forgetfulness of corroding care that come to us amid the pleasures of these ocial reunions were all the good in them he would be a churl indeed who would begrudge us their few fleeting moments. But rest and recreation are not all that come to us from such assemblages as this in which we are about to take part. It is needless for me in this day and generation and in this presence to say a word as to the power of the press. Whether it be exercised for weal or woe, the gentlemen who constitute the as-ociation now before me carry in their hands a power that overshadows every other power in the State. Neither the bar nor the pulpit nor yet the hustings has a tithe of the fluence in shaping men's opinions that you have. They occasionally reach the ears of hundreds with varying uncertain sounds while you constantly reach the eyes of thousands with fixed forms of unmistabable meaning. But just in proportion to the greatness of the power is the necessity for its intelligent exercise. and how can that be better promoted than by bringing the possessors of this great power into such relations as shall make them know and appreciate them, each at his true worth. And then meeting together as we do in different sections of the State how can it happen that we will not thereby become better acgainted with the wants and necessities of those different sections and thus in time of the whole State? What does the eastern man know of the railways of the west or the western man of the waterways of the east unless he learn from actual travel? Western editors must know and understand and discuss the grievances of the people of the east and the remedies proposed therefor and so also must not the editors of the east be ignor aut of the wants of the people of the west. Let us hope then that the time beating with fierce appalling fary.

But thank God there were brave hearts there and strong arms. Thank God there told me that upon the narrow, tottering, trembling, frail plank way upon which she passed from the doomed building to the mainland, first went the wee toddling all the men. Thank God, say 1, that the North Carolina. Thank God, we still have men and women who prove not recreant in the hour of langer though they may teel the chill breath of death in their very faces. I couf ss my friends, that last night as I heard from the lips of the Governor of our State, himselt an eye wituess and participant, a brief account of by all there, but especially by the citizens of Beautort, black and white, North Carolinians all, my heart swelled with gratitude and with pride, that I too, was a heroes. After such exhibition of daring our day are inferior to those of any form- fame. er time.

But my friends while there is so much. so very much to fill our hearts with gratitude to Almighty God in this hour of our re-assembling, the feelings that possess me and that I know possess you, are not unmingled with pain. When I remember who sat by my side when last I had the honor to preside over your deliberations. I can but recall the great loss that we. and not only we the members of his chosen profession, but the entire people of the State have met with in the death of our honored and lamented brother, Joseph Adolphus Engelhard, To me his character and his services both to the profession and to the people of the State at large have been a study as well before his untimely death as since. As an individual his impulses were kindly, generous and a time must be our future home, until I noble, charitable and considerate in his adgements of men, sensitive too and tender in his feelings as a woman; himself and all that he had was ready always to from our door.' spend in behalf of his friends or in the discharge of a daty to his State. How pleasant and how genial tco he was in his intercourse with us all you cannot tail to remember. As and editor he was home, when, like a thunderbolt from a wise, prudent; sagacious far-seeing and endowed in a rare degree with that rare quality known as good judgement Poss sessed of literary taste, and culture, his editorials were in manner easy and graceful, blessed with a vigorous mind and one well stored, they were full of force and strength, and with a bosom that knew no fear, he never failed to ex-less women, helpless children, helpless the path to emolument, and to honor so invalids suddenly roused from sleep called, was a broad and well beaten one without time even to dress, could be sav- very unlike the mugged one Englehard ed harmless from the tottering talling trod and many there be who weat therebuilding, against which the biflows were in. From the beginning of that struggle and through all its varying phases all his strivings were for the good of the State, and of the whole State. To redeem the were men there to whom death presented State from the hand of the oppress it and no terror while giving succor to the to unify and consolidate its conflicting weak and helpless. One brave mother interests and antagonistic sections into one grand, happ ., harmonious and prosperons community, was the great goal of his ambition from the beginning until the contest culminated in the crowning children, next their mothers, and last of .triumph that gave us the convention of 1875, in which he was especially conbreed of noble bloods has not died out in spitnons as a bold skillful leader, and thanks to which North Carolinans to-day rule North Carolina, To him the effort to array one section of the State again-1 another or to stir up one interest in strike against another, seemed but little short of treason. - I say then after the heroism displayed in that awful hour fully and impartially, according to all his comrades, to each his full meed of merit, that to our dead brother belongs the citizen of a State that could boast such appropriate remembrance only so long and devotion and self sacrifice as that at his labors in her be half, no man could can toil tor you and yours it you will Beautort, let no one say that the men of ask higher honor or more lasting give me the precions assurance I seek.

Imake no apology gentlemer, for thus dwelling up on the virtues of our dead brother. To have said less would have been unjust to him, to you, and to North Carolina.

IRENL'S AUCTION.

'And all must go? Can nothing be say edi' querulously, questioned Mrs. Arher lap, her air betokening utter helpless-ness, as he looked pitifully toward the beautiful girl whom she addressed. Nothing, mamma,' answered the latter, drawing nearer as she spoke, and kneeling by the other's side, while she laid her finger caressingly upon her moth-er's pale cheek-only each other; but papa's death has taught us how much that is. Don't worry, dearest. I hope the sale will enable us to buy furniture more suitable to the few rooms which for can secure some pupils and get the little home in the country where you are to live, surrounded by birds and flowers, and forget that the red flag ever waved clear summer sky, came her father's failure and death in quick succession, with the lessons experience only teaches, of friends deserting in the hour of needlittle by little learning the necessity of standing alone and sceing hope drifting further and further in the distance, until the present with its absolute emergencies, roused her to action. The small head, set so regally upon the slight, sloping shoulders, held itself more regally still, the red, full curved lips, mother had been told the worst which could befall them. She must now take deed. her from this spot, hallowed by memory, before the desecrating foot of strangers entered it. /A few days search and she was rewarded by finding in a quiet house a suit of rooms which met at once her purse and her requirements, in sad contrast to the elegant loxuriance with which she had beeu surrounded her life long, but where at least, her mother was saved, the sight of the red flig, which seemed to her to be dyed in her heart's blood. 'Is there nothing you would wish to save, Miss Arthur?' questioned a voice at her side the morning of the sale. She turned haughtily toward the stranwith. They were indeed like cld friends sent to comfort her, as, in the weary days that followed, her eyes would rest upon them in her bitter struggle for the daily necessities of life for herseit the hyperie which to her mother had become necessities. Business had thrown her more than once with Earl Kenneth, the owner of the blue eyes. There had been matters connected with the sale which compelled her to meet him, until he grew to her almost as a friend, and at times she would forget the social gulf which separated them-she, the once wealthy banker's daughter; he, a man who had risen trom the humblest ranks, but whose soul was that of a nobleman. The friends she had once known she no longer knew. They rode; she walked, and must stand on the curb to let their fruit he even laid so quietly in Mrs. Ar-thur's hand, growing daily paler and thin-

They were brave words, bravely spoken -so bravely as not to betray the effort tlicy cost the speaker.

3 1879

But one evening as he sat by Irene's mature deliberation and recalling the bid one event calling, set by Irche's set by rene se he loved her, and asked her to become his wile. 'I cannot bear to see you struggle,' he said. 'Once, as you well know. I could chief pre eminence. If the State of North Carolina shall bear his name in a propriate remembrance only so long appropriate remembrance only so long ambition, I yet can take you from this as her children shall enjoy the fruits of life of toil, can shield you with my breast,

Was the man mad? The pride she had forgotten in these quiet months now surged apward as she turned toward him with pale and sparking eyes.

"Sir, you insult me!" 'No man insults a woman with his nonestatove, Miss Arthur,' he answered; the pride in hers bearing its reflex on his ace. 'I loved you-nay, love you! My love you spurn. I can never offer it again Miss Irene; but remember-should you ever need it, it is slways yours, ready to do for you, to suffer for you, to die for you!'

"Why does not Earl come?" questioned the invalid. I want to see him—I miss him. Write, Irene, and tell him-he must call this evening." She wrote in obedience. "Mamma asks for you. She knows nothing. If you will drop in occasion-ally to see her I will be glad." It cost her pride a struggle to send

It cost her pride a struggle to send even this: but was it possible, it also brought a thrill of something like pleas-ure that she would meethim once more. The weeks had seemed strangely long without him. Why had she thus ans-wered him? Of course the thing he asked was impossible; cut. ah, how cruelly some trace of sorrow on his handsome brow; but when he entered, in obedience to her summons, the frank smile lit up his face as devoting himself to the invalid, he spoke to her only when courtesy required. Somehow, these weeks seemed to have improved him, too. He had acquired a nolish: or was it only indifference, where love had reigued?

'Men early forget,' she thought, and with the thought she sighed. The winter wore to an end, and slow-Is the invalid grew weaker and more weak. The shock had been greater than her nervous system could bear, and she regally still, the red, full curved lips, were pressed more proudly together, as tion of moving from her bed to her couch Irene buckled on her armor for the fray. became too great, when, for the first time The hardest part was over now. Her the realization burst upon her daughter she was soon to be left desolate in-

Had he, then, forgotten all his words the love he had said was hers forever -or dil its pale ghost lie buried, too? But she must speak; she must not let him know. "Good hy !' she taltered; then, spite of herself, the words she-thought locked in her heart burst from her: 'Earl do not go; I cannot bear ill'

NO. 26

'Irene!' where had his icy indifference fled now? his face was pale; his voice trembled in his struggle for calunces. "What matters it to you?"

'Everything she exclaimed, us pride lay with foldel wings at teet.

'Or if you must go, take me with you!' frene do you know what your words ean-that I can early take you as my ife? My darling is it true?'

But in answer she sprang into his pen arms, dimly realizing that the color mantling her cheek was the al horred red flag with which she had announced herself to the highest bidder, but Earl, holding her close to his heart will yiel his prize never more.

Gleanings.

Pennsylvania has two lady superin tendents of schools.

There are 450 lady dentists in the United States, and three times as many studying dentistry.

A iaw has been passed in Sweden giving to married wonmen undivided control of their property and earnings.

It is better to be laughed at for not being married than to be unable to laugh because you are.

At an evening party a county girl de-clined frosted cake because she thought it might give her a cold.

Queen Victoria has $9,000,000 worth of royal plate in her castle at Windsor but this does not keep her awake at night. .

An editor being asked, "Do hogs pay?" says a great many do not. They take the paper several years and then have the postmaster send it back marked "re-fused."-Boston Post.

A society liss been established in London for the prevention of street accidents and dangerous driving. It is estimated that 16,000 persons were in-jured by vehicles in the streets of London ast year.

Nothing LEFT .- Magistrate: "You eem to have been drinking, and have left your wits at the bottom of your tumbler."

Prisoner (blandly): "Impossible, your Honor. I never leave anything at the bottom of my tumbler,"

"Come home, my son," said a parent to one who had been absent from home for some time; "come home, and your mother will kill the fatted calf for you.'

"Tell her not to do it, father," replied the offspring, "for I have lived on veal ever since I've been here. Tell her to kill a quarter of a pig instead."

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist. DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE will certainly effect a cure. IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form ; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine Dr. McLane's Ver-MIFUGE bears the signatures of C. Mc-LANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper. -:0:-

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases or that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

BEWARE OF INITATIONS. The genuine are never sugar coated. Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS. Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. MCLANE and FLEMING BROS. Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. Mc-LANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

will be far distant when a year will pass without a full gathering of the editorial clans from the mountains to the seashore, from the north border to the southernmost limit. Good must come of the reform and nothing but good.

Last year we met at the toot of the mountains the lovely Piendmont section of the State, a section the beauty of whose cenery is equalled only by the sturdy onesty and generous hospitality of its people. This year, to-day, this hour we were to have met not here in this populous railway center above the tide water. but upon the sea shore and with the beating of the waves of Ocean sounding in our ears we were to have conducted our deliterations, but fate ruled far otherwise. Man proposes and God disposes. The hospitable village, the once happy resort of scekers for health, for rest, or for pleasure is now a desolate wreck strewn beach. But little more than forty-eight hours ago upon its devoted site the storm fiend for a time held high carnival, and with his accursed devouring breath lashed the waves into fury. In an instant almost houses were swept away, trees torn up by the roots, and indeed all manimate things engulphed in the merciless waves. But amid all that terrible uproar, amid all that fierce din of the warring elements, amid the darkness of that trying hour, the mercy of the great Jehovah, the everliving God who saith to the winds and to the waves thus far shalt thou go and no farther, shone round about and everywhere cutside, ere the shock of the great disaster could be realized, men's hearts were gladdened by the intelligence that first greeted their ears that there were "no lives lost." And though later intellis gence forces upon us the sad conviction of the gallant deaths ot two noble and devoted men, yet still it is a wonder and hibit the courage of his opinions, and yet always courteously. Indeed in him courage and capacity and courcesy were most happily blended. As a citizen he was ever ready to do his duty whether in peace or in war.

After much study and careful reflection then it is my deliberate opinion that to no one of the many men who were prominent in the era of reconstruction does North Carolina owe more, I will say indeed that to no one does she owe as much as she does to our dead brother, Joseph Adolphas Englehard. In the great fight that lasted from September 1865 until November 1876, he was always to the front and always doing valliant battle in behalf of the State he loved so well. The character of that eleven years struggle, the fierceness and the bitter ness of it none know but those who passed through it. Step by step, year after year, Englehard proceeded with fixed purpose and unfaltering determination to wrest the State from the hand of the oppressor. His rule and his motto was to fight the enemy wherever he could be found. Others might be disposed to temporize if not to fraternize with the enemy, but in Englehard there was never the slightest variableness or shadow of turning from the straight narrow way he had marked out as the path of honor for hunself and of safety for the State. Whatever taint others might have upon their records, upon his there was neither halls spot nor blemish. And to him, perhaps, more than to all others, North Carolina owes it that she may boast that she accomplished ber redemption from the accursed thraidom that bound her hand and foot without any truckling, Few States there be in this South land of ours that can truly boast as much. It is easy ger, but something in his clear, blue eyes bent upon her witnessed the words held honest meaning. 'I beg your parlon, sir,' she answered unable to disguise wholly the pride these latter days had developed so forcibly-"I have not the pleasure of your acquain-1 tonce.' "It is for me to beg pardon. I forgot I might not be known to you personally, though I am the suctioneer appointed by the estate. You" father once did me a great kindness, and, though I would not seem intrusive, I should like yery much to preserve any article you may desire.' 'With many thanks, sir, I desire to reshe fled to the place she must now learn to call home, to be hannted all day by the sound of the auctioncer's hammer and the voices of strangers desecrating the

But when, in the dusk of the evening, a cart stopped before the door, and one by one, articles hallowed by associationher father's cnsir, her own desk, her mother's favorite pictures-were brought in, the feelings so long repressed gave to come. way to a burst of tears

Who had done this thing? For one moment the houest blue eyes that had met her own that day rose before her. But devoted men, yet still it is a wonder and a miracle how in that supreme hour of peril,—a peril that, not felt, the heart of a man can never concerve, how, in that hour, I say, so many men, so many help-

Earl, during these months, came and went as of old : but sometimes Irene asked herself it his words to her had not been a dream.

Not once did his eyes rest on her with the old look—not once did he hold for a single moment the little fingers within his own! and a sense of empty disap-pointment, none the less bitter because unacknowledged, brought to the proud young eyes many an unshed tear. But the bitter sorrow was in store, as the invalids rest approached more and more near, until the angel of death storped and gathered her to his breast. Earl was there at the time, and as she lay so quietly on her pillows-they thought her spirit had flown-she suddenly roused and laid her daghters hand in his.

'Take her! she said, I give her to you!'

Then the eyes closed forever.

'Do not mind it; she meant only as a brother Irene,' he said, to comfort. days after to the weeping girl, and Irene wondered she could not as such accept

So the weary days merged into weeks the weeks luto months, and the prond young spirit learned its own bitterness. She saw Earl rarely now-there was no longer the invalid's impatient demands ceive no tavors,' she replied coldly, and upon his time. Some of the old friensd passed on, to take one flesting lock cre had come forward in this second hour of suffering but through all she missed him, and the thought that he learned forgettalness brought her no comfort. She was thinking of him one evening when he entered.

when he entered. 'I am going away Miss Irene,' he said, will you bid me God speed?' The old pride stuggled for mastery against the choking in her slender thron but the words she strove to-utter refused

'I have been studying law during these Years of hard work, and am now able to wait for the practice that will come. You will think of me sometimes, Irene; and if in trouble remember the words I once said; that I always stand ready to act the part of a friend. Is even this asking too much? he added, as her si-lence continued.

A good colored man ouce said, in class meeting: 'Brethren, when I was a boy, I took a hatchet and went into de woods. When I found a tree dat was straight, big and solid, I didn't touch dat tree; but when I foun | one leaving a little and hollow inside, I soon had him down. So when the debbil goes after Christians, de don't touch dem dat stand straight and true; but dem dat lean a little and are hollow inside."

LISTENERS TO SCANDAL. - 'As no one,' says Mrs. Steele, 'is abused save to a willing listener, the friend who tells you she has heard you calumniated must ranked with the calumniators.' She is ranked with the calumniators.' She is even worse than they are; tor, if at ha i not been for her, you might never have known the unpleasant things they said of you. This, at any rate, is one of those numerous circumstances in which ignors Earl ance is really bliss.

USED UP FRIENDSHIP .--- We can cat up Used OF TRIENDSHIP. — We can cat up a friendship as we can eat up everything else, and leave ourselves no crumbs to go on with out of all that large cake that was once was ours. If we throw too much on our friends—make too many demands on their primetry-make too many de-mands on their sympathy, their patience, their good nature, their allowance, their generosity—we shall end by eating up in a short time the cake of love that sound have lasted us to the end.

PRESENCE OF MIND .- There were not less than fifty or sixty at table and when the guests were in the height of animated conversation, and just as the cloth was drawn, they were interrupted by a crash. A servant, in removing a cut glass eporgne, which formed the central ornament of the table, let it fall, and it was dashed into a thousand pieces. An awk ward silence fell upon the company, who ward silence fell upon the company, who scarcely knew how to treat the accident, when the host, then the well-known George Payne, releived their embarrass-ment by cheerfuly exclaiming, "Janua break as much as you like, but don't make such a confounded noise about it!" make such a contounded noise about it!" And under cover of the langh this ex-cited, the fragments were removed, and the talk went on as if nothing had hap-hened. This, it strikes us, was the pres-there of mind of good-breeding.