MEDICAL RESEARCH.

Romance of the Discovery of the "Wha-what do you wa-want?" he

In the history of research are many romances. Of the discovery that maromances. Or the discovery that man-laria was caused by mosquitoes, it is related how Dr. Low and Dr. Sam-bon lived in the malarious Roman Campagna without quinine. They re-tired at sunset to a mosquito proof hut, with double doors and window of wire net, and they did not leave un-til sunrise. The fact that they re-mained immune, while the attendants, sleeping outside, contracted malaria

s were responsible.
how did they carry the disease At first it was thought to be by wa ter. To settle the question live mos-quitoes which had bitten infected peasants were sent bome and two members of the school submitted to be bitten by them. They both went down with malaria. Again, how did the mosquitoes transmit the germ? By cutting sections of the proboscis the malarious parasite was found. It breaks through the skin of the probo-sis and is transmitted at the time of the stine. From the first conjecture. ter. To settle the question live more the sting. From the first conjecture to the final proof was a series of care ful experiments, ending with the slic ing of the mosquito's proboscis. Now this is finer than fine hair. It is nec essary to stop to think. For it is easier to imagine the triumph of the proof than the delicate operation that produced it.—London Standard.

LIGHTING BY GAS.

It Was a Costly Process When It Was

The first incorporated gas company was the National Light and Heat Com-pany of England, established in 1800. In America the first gas company was incorporated in Baltimore in 1816, the second one in Boston in 1822, and the next one was the New York Gaslight company, incorporated in 1823.

Prior to 1830 the gas business of this ountry was nominal, but the price robably was responsible for its slow levelopment. From 1824 to 1828, says foody's Magazine, the New York Gaslight company sold gas to consumers at the rate of $10 a thousand cubic

The first artificial illuminating gas was produced in England about 1726 by one Dr. Hales, but not until 1780 was a practical test made. In that year the Earl of Dundonald of Scotyear the Earl or Dunquand of Schland arranged an apparatus by which he lighted his castle with gas. The same year William Murdock of Birmingham, England, introduced gas as a light in his workshops at Redruth

As Mr. Murdock was the first man to reap any commercial benefit from the discovery of the use of illuminat ing gas, he may properly be accredited as the father of modern public utili-ties. In 1813 London bridge was illu-minated by gas, and five years later gas was in general use throughout the main part of London.

Red Letter Days. The origin of a "red letter day" has been traced back to the third century. Gregory, bishop of Caesarea, sealous for the conversion of pagans, found nor the conversion of pagans, found them unwilling to give up their cus-tomary recreations at the festivals of their gods, so, taking a leaf out of their book, he instituted festivals in honor of saints and martyrs. This ex-ample soon led to the institution of holy days, now corrupted into helfample soon let to the instantion hold days, now corrupted into hold days. In old almanaes all such hold days were set forth in red ink, the rest being in black; benee the term "red letter day" for any notable occusion. Others say that the origin of th expression is much more recent and to due to the fact that Saints' day, the 5th of November, the Ming's bithday and accession and King Charles' day were similarly marked off in red as Maye for the Bank of England ov

Political Animosities

Political animosities today are sel-dom carried into private life. In the past just the opposite was the rule. "Coke of Norfolk" once stated that "Ceke of Norfolk" once stated that then he was a child his grandfather took him on his knee and said, "Now, remember, Tom, as long as you live never trust a Tory," and he used to add, "I never have, and, by George, I never will." G. W. E. Russell, too, tells of an eccentric maiden lady whom he knew in his youth who, having spent her life in the innermost circles of artistneratic Whiterery, always retorted from the driver an assurance

Last of the Old Orators.

The late Senator John Warwick Daniel of Virginia may be said to have been the last of the old fashoned orators in the house of the con script fathers. His fame will rest not on his lawbooks, which were excel-ient; not on his speeches in house and senate, which were strong, but on two nasterly orations on Lee and Stone them, considered simply as orations can be found in the literature of the world. They would have delighted Cicero himself.—Champ Clark in Cen-

On an Island in the Cam, at Grant-chester, is a mill pond known as "By-ron's pool" because it was here that the poet as an undergraduate enjoyed the poet as an undergraduate enjoyed his favorite recreation. Even in his day Edward Conybeare tells us in "Highways and Byways In Cam-bridge" bathing was a practice some-what frowned on by the academic authorities. A century or so earlier any student found guilty of it was publicly dlogged in the hall of his college and was again flogged on the morrow in the university schools by the proctors.
