MORGAN ORGANIZED STEEL TRUST.

Will the Government Prosecute Him or Not?

Washington, Nov. 6.—Coincident with the belief that exists in many quarters that the Wickersham suit against the steel trust is not sincere, and that it will never be prosecuted in a way that will worry the trust, is the growing conviction that the suit was started to avert attention from the fact that as yet no individual trust magnate has been prosecuted by Wickersham.

The anti-trust law is a criminal statute, and provides that those who violate it may be sent to jail, just as a common citizen may be sent to jail for carrying off his neighbor's coal.

Therefore, if the government has a case against the trust, as Mr. Wickersham's suit would indicate, why hasn't it a case also against Mr. Morgan?

The Sherman law provides a jail sentence for conspiracy to restrain trade, if it shall be proven against any individual that he inspired or helped to inspire such restraint.

Democratic members of Congress have frequently pointed out in speeches, both in and out of Congress, that the people will never be convinced that the party in power is sincere in its purpose to prosecute the trusts until a move is made to prosecute the men who control the trusts.

In his Western tour, according to Secretary Hillis, President Taft spoke to 5,000,000 people. Democratic leaders have since pointed out that he didn't accomplish as much in all his speech making and explaining and promising as he would have done had he instructed his Attorney-General to start action against one single trust magnate.

Federal Control of All Railroads Foreshadowed.

Washington Dispatch, Oct. 20.

Complete control of all the railroads of the country by the Interstate Commerce Commission and virtual elimination of State commissions from such control, is foreshadowed in an opinion handed down today by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Members of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, who have been embarrassed on numerous occasions by clashes of authority with State commissions, are jubilant at the ruling of the Supreme Court which was unanimous.
