LOCAL NEWS.

The County Commissioners will meet in regular monthly session next Monday.

More nice showers fell the first of the week and the appearance of crops has greatly improved.

Col. Jas. T. Morehead and Hon. A. L. Brooks of Greensboro and Dr. J. E. Stokes of Salisbury are here attending court.

Quite a party from here attended the baseball game between Mebane and Graham in Mebane on last Saturday afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Graham Christian church will meet with Mrs. Sally F. Turner at 3:30 p. m. on Wednesday, June 7th.

The County Teachers' Institute will be held at Graham, beginning July 1st and continuing two weeks. The law requires the continuous attendance of all public school, high school and graded school teachers, unless provisionally hindered, or unless such teachers attend an accredited Summer School in lieu of an Institute. A certificate of valid attendance will be issued to all who deserve it at the close of the institute.

Memorial exercises will be held at New Providence Sunday, June 4th, the first Sunday of June, the day on which the exercises have been held ever since the first service was held.

Rev. Dr. W. W. Staley of Suffolk, Va., was heard from a day or two ago and confirmed the announcement that he would be here Sunday and preach the memorial sermon.

If the weather continues to be fair, there will be a very large crowd present, as usual.

Mr. Ralph Younger, a young man in his 20th year, was killed by a train at Mt. Zion, S. C. last Friday morning. Two trains were passing in opposite directions and in getting out of the way of one got in the way of the other. He was a telegraph operator and highly esteemed for his fine traits of character. His body was brought to Burlington, the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Younger, Saturday and the funeral was conducted Sunday from the Lutheran church of which he was a member. He is also survived by four brothers and two sisters.

Arm Broken. Last Thursday afternoon Dr. J. N. Taylor was cranking his automobile when the crank "kicked" and struck his right arm. A bone in the forearm was fractured. Such accidents occur occasionally. Several such have occurred in this county.

Dr. W. W. Staley of Suffolk, Va., to Preach Sermon at New Providence Memorial Day.

Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., of Suffolk, Va., will preach the annual Memorial Sermon at New Providence the first Sunday in June, (June 4th) at 11 a. m. The Providence Memorial Association is indebted to the Rev. Staley for his presence on this occasion, which will be the means of greatly aiding the Association in its commendable work.

Notice to Automobile Drivers. Sec. 19 No person shall drive, run or operate in the streets of said town, an automobile or other machine, operated by motor power, at a greater speed rate than ten miles an hour. Any person violating the provisions of this ordinance shall be fined ten dollars for each and every offense.

Court Notes. A two week term of the Superior Court for the trial of civil actions opened Monday with Judge W. A. Devin presiding.

Ten divorce cases headed the calendar, four of which have been tried and divorces granted.

Monday evening the case of A. M. Hadley vs. T. D. Tinnin for damages charging slander and false arrest was taken up and was given to the jury Tuesday afternoon. The jury wrestled with the case till last night and being unable to agree upon a verdict, a juror was withdrawn and a mistrial ordered. This case was tried last year and appealed to the supreme and sent back for a new trial.

H. Glenn Hall vs. Piedmont Ry. & Electric Co. was tried yesterday. This was for injury to a horse that had to be killed. The jury gave a verdict for $150. This was a new trial, the case having been to the Supreme Court.

The case of J. W. Cates vs. R. J. Hall and others for personal injury will be taken up this afternoon and is likely to consume the greater part of a day. This is a new trial, too, the case having been to the Supreme Court.

W. H. Perry, a Charlotte negro who entered a room in Charlotte where hospital nurses slept, was allowed to plead guilty to second degree burglary in Mecklenburg Superior Court and was sentenced to the State prison for life.

Last Will and Testament of Charles Lounsbury.

I, Charles Lounsbury, being of sound mind and disposing memory do hereby make and publish this, my last will and testament, in order as justly as may be to distribute my interest in the world among succeeding men.

"That part of my interest which is known in law and recognized in the sheep-bound volumes as my property, being inconsiderate and of no account, I make no disposal of in my will.

"My right to live, being but a life estate, is not at my disposal, but passes things excepted, all else in the world I now proceed to devise and bequeath:

"Item: I give to good fathers and mothers, in trust for their children, all good little words of praise and encouragement and all quaint pet names and endearments, and I charge said parents to use them justly and generously, as the needs of their children may require.

"Item: I leave to children inclusively, but only for the term of their childhood, all and every, the flowers of the fields, and the blossoms of the woods, with the right to play among them freely according to the customs of children, warping them at the same time against thistles and thorns. And I devise to children the banks of the brooks, and the golden sands beneath the waters thereof, and the odors of the willows that dip therein, and the white clouds that float high over the giant trees. And I leave the children, the long, long days to be merry in, in a thousand ways, and the night and the moon and the train of the milky way to wonder at, but subject nevertheless to the rights hereinafter given to lovers.

"Item: I devise to boys jointly all the useful fields and commons where ball may be played; all pleasant waters where one may swim; all snowclad hills where one may coast; and all streams and ponds where one may fish, or where, when grim Winter comes, one may skate; to have and to hold the same for the period of their boyhood. And all meadows with the clover blossoms and butterflies thereof, the woods and their appurtenances, the squirrels and the birds, the echoes and all distant things which may be visited, together with the adventures there found. And I give to said boys each his own place at the fireside at night with all pictures that may be seen in the burning wood, to enjoy without let or hindrance and without any encumbrance or care.

"Item: To lovers I devise their imaginary world, with whatever they may need; as the stars of the sky; the red roses by the well; the bloom of the hawthorn; the sweet strains of music; and aught else by which they may desire to figure to each other the lastings and beauty of their love.

"Item: To young men jointly, I devise and bequeath all boisterous and inspiring sports of rivalry, and I give to them the disdain of weakness and the undaunted confidence in their own strength, though they are rude; I give them the power of making lasting friendships, and to them exclusively I give all merry songs and brave choruses, to sing with lusty voices.

"Item: And to those who are no longer children or youths or lovers, I leave memory, and I bequeath to them the volumes of the poems of Burns and Shakespeare and of other poets, if they be alive, to the end that they may live over the old days again, freely and fully, without tithes or diminution.

"Item: To our loved ones with snowy crowns I bequeath the happiness of old age, the love and gratitude of their children until they fall asleep."

NOTE.—Lounsbury was poor and insane, but retained the memory of happy days which he wished to will and bequeath to all succeeding men and women.

NOT ENOUGH CHILDREN

ever receive the proper balance of food to sufficiently nourish both body and mind during the growing period when nature's demands are greater than in mature life. This is shown in so many pale faces, lean bodies, shrunken chests, and lack of ambition.

For all such children we say with unmistakable earnestness: They need Scott's Emulsion, and need it now. It possesses in concentrated form the very food elements to enrich their blood, to change weakness to strength; it makes them sturdy and strong. No alcohol.

The New Education.

Chapel Hill News Letter.

Because our fathers used candle dikes and pitch pine knots shall we refuse to wire our houses for electricity or to carry our way on a dark night? Changed conditions bring changed means and methods, but change does not always mean destruction and disintegration.

More Education. Our business men and our great industrial leaders are now demanding that their employees must have a minimum of education, and that minimum is usually the equivalent of graduation from a high school. They have come to see that in the manufacture of their products there must be brains and brain-power. One of our great manufacturing plants today refuses to hire any young man or woman who has not completed a good high school course. Many of our large department stores in the cities actually conduct a school within the walls of their stores for the further education of their salespeople and other employees. The boys and girls of today need more education than the children of 25 years ago did to give them even an equal chance with their parents.

Different Education. That education, too, must be of a different sort. A knowledge derived from books was proper and right under former conditions, when every home was an industrial center. But industry has moved out of the home and is centered in towns and villages. The farm is no longer attractive, for only the drudgery of the farm life has remained while the interests arising from producing for one's own self have been taken from the boys and the girls on the farms.

What It Must Be. We must have an education that will stimulate the country boys and girls to a personal interest in stocks and crops, that will teach them the joy of producing and preserving as well as bettering their product. Of course this will mean many readjustments in school life and in methods of teaching. It will mean more teachers, longer terms and different studies. The emphasis will not be on books and book learning but on things and learning about things.

The Trouble. Here is where the teacher and the superintendent get into trouble. Some of the school patrons whose courage is greater than their common sense will come out with a howl against the "fads and frills," demanding a return to "fundamentals." These perfectly sincere and very earnest calamity-howlers will declare with great force and almost with venom that the schools and everything related to education are now going to the "demnition bow-wow's," and all because the arithmetic lessons and the spelling lessons are taken from a child's interest in an acre of corn, or a tenth of an acre of tomatoes, or a flock of chickens, or the making of a shirtwaist, instead of being taken from a book written by a college professor who never taught a child one day in his life.

Two Questions. Let's look this question of so-called "fundamentals" squarely in the face. Did man, in the history of the race, learn first to read, to write and do sums, or did he first learn to raise crops and animals, cook food and make his clothing? Which is fundamental then, the three R's or the earning of a living and the making of a home?

By all means let us get back to real fundamentals and not stop at half way there. Let us see to it that our boys and girls are given a good chance to make a successful life in their present conditions as we had to make a successful life in our past conditions of living. From the point of view of history the three R's are a fad and frills, the playthings for an idle hour. The real fundamentals are home-making and house-keeping. By all means let's get back to fundamentals in our school!
