LOCAL NEWS.

Capt. Don E. Scott, Regimental Adjutant, was in Durham yesterday in conference with Col. Minor.

The Priscilla Club will meet with Mrs. Walter R. Harden on Friday, June 30th, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Mrs. Walter Andrews who has been at the Rainey Hospital for appendicitis is very much improved and expects to return home today.

Miss Cora P. Jeffcoat, Rural Supervisor, who has been spending a few days at her home in Coble township, has returned and resumed her work.

The evangelistic services at the Baptist church closed Tuesday night. Though the rains interfered the services were well attended and the results were good.

The District Conference of Durham District, M. E. Church, South, has been in session this week. Rev. H. E. Myers and Mess. A. J. and W. Ernest Thompson have been in attendance.

The "longest day" of the year was yesterday as almanac makers. According to Blum's the sun rose yesterday at 4:46 and set at 7:14, which would make the day's length 14 h. 28 min.

Material is being placed for the Sunday School room addition to the Presbyterian church. For some time the Sunday school has been greatly cramped for room. The necessity for room appealed to Capt. and Mrs. Jas. N. Williamson and it is through their liberality that the much needed additional room is to be provided.

Mr. Allen B. Thompson has been over to Albemarle, Stanley county, looking up a business opening. He finds it a nice, prosperous little town and has decided to locate there and open a moving picture business. Mr. Thompson has many friends here who will regret his leaving but wish him success.

Among the Sick.

Mr. R. N. Cook went to St. Leo's, Greensboro, yesterday evening for treatment.

Mrs. J. B. Montgomery was quite sick the first of the week.

Mrs. J. B. Farrell is on the sick list.

Ship Us Your Milk.

Stop making butter and ship us your cream. If you are still selling butter at the low price that usually prevails at this season of the year, you should investigate our cream buying proposition, as our market for high class cream is exceptionally good. We handle an unlimited quantity the year round at the very highest market price for the butter fat it contains. We are sure you will find results much more satisfactory than from any other Creamery you can ship to. We want a man in every community to start a cream route. Write for particulars.

Mr. David A. White of Mebane Killed in Auto Wreck Sunday.

The death of Mr. David A. White Sunday in an auto wreck was a shock to his friends throughout the county. He and a party of friends were returning in his automobile from church at Hawfield's, some four miles south of Mebane. He was accompanied by Miss Mary Hooker of Durham who sustained three broken ribs and a severe bruise in the back, and Mr. McCoy Patton and Miss Margaret Darby of Maryland who were thrown out and sustained only slight injuries. In attempting to dodge a bad place in the road the car skidded and turned turtle. Mr. White was caught by the heavy car and crushed about the breast. He lived only about twenty minutes after the accident.

Mr. White was a son of the late Stephen A. White, one of the county's most prominent citizens during his lifetime. He was in his 56th year. Over thirty years ago he and his brother, W. E. White, started a lumber business and soon thereafter founded the White Furniture Co., which has grown to be one of the largest furniture factories in the South, as well as one of the best known this side of Grand Rapids. No citizen has done more for the growth of the town than "Dave" White. He was full of vim and push all the time and enthusiastic in whatever he engaged. He was loyal to his town, his friends and his church. The burial took place in the cemetery at Mebane Monday afternoon and was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. Besides his aged mother, there survive three brothers, William E. White, S. Arthur White, and J. Sam White, all of Mebane; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Millender of Asheville, and Mrs. W. A. Murray of Mebane.

Mr. B. R. Sellars, Prominent Citizen and Business Man, Dead.

The county has sustained a distinct loss in the death of Benjamin Rainey Sellars, who passed away at his home in Burlington Tuesday p. m. about 8 o'clock. For some months his health had not been very good. Sunday night he was stricken with paralysis and never rallied. The funeral was conducted from the Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock by his pastor, Rev. D. McVey, in the presence of a large number of friends, and the interment was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Sellars was the eldest son of the late Dr. B. A. Sellars and was 61 years of age. He was born near Long's Mills, Randolph county. He is survived by his aged mother, his widow, who was Miss Fannie Cheeks of Orange county, three children—one boy and two girls, six brothers and four sisters, as follows: Thomas L., D. Ernest, Charles V., Walter R., of Burlington; Fred Sellars of Kansas; John Sellars of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Mary Walker, Mrs. J. H. Brooks of Burlington; Mrs. Eliza White near Mebane; Mrs. H. H. Jordan of Gastonia.

More than thirty years ago Mr. Sellars and his father established the mercantile firm of B. A. Sellars & Son and ever since he has been the judicious business man that has made the house the leading dry goods house of this county. Mr. Sellars' firm has been prominent in the business life of Burlington and has helped to direct the business of some of the strongest institutions of his town. He was at one time a member of the Board of County Commissioners and at the time of his death was Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the City Graded School.

GASOLINE MUST GET LOWER.

Washington Dispatch. A fall in the price of gasoline may be looked for at any time. The price in Kansas at the refineries has already fallen from 21 cents to 17-14 cents.

A period of over production of crude oil, which brought about a price of gasoline more than a year ago, is about to be experienced again.

These are a few of the statements that started the Federal Trade Commission at the second day of its hearing of the views of the oil producers and jobbers and refiners on the high price of gasoline.

Sleeping Porches in Demand.

State Health Bulletin. "If there's one thing that recommends a house more than another these days, whether it is for sale or rent," says a real estate dealer, "it is the addition of a sleeping porch. In fifteen years," said he, "our ideas have been turned up side down as to this one thing. Today architects and builders find sleeping porches almost necessary adjuncts of new houses so great is the demand for them, whereas ten years ago an out-door sleeping was branded either as a crank or a consumptive, and a house with a sleeping porch was most particularly avoided."

Continuing the speaker said: "I could not more houses if they just had the means of out-door sleeping connected with them. I find that the better class of renters or those paying higher rents are willing to pay extra for homes having sleeping porches or places that can be converted into such arrangements. Recently a family moved here from Oregon and the husband came to me to rent a house. His first demand was a home with a 'sleeping gallery,' and when I had shown him all the houses I had to rent, he said, 'What is the matter with you folks down here that you don't have these arrangements? Why we haven't slept in doors for six years, till coming to your State, and yet you have by far the more favorable climate for out-door sleeping. One would think that you had not gotten away from the old idea that night air is poisonous. I couldn't offer an explanation as to why we didn't have more arrangements for out-door sleeping, but I could truthfully tell him that he looked the part. I never saw a healthier looking man and he was no crank, either."

Like Madmen in Volcanic Eruption.

A French staff officer describes the situation around Verdun recently in the following graphic style: Between Sunday morning and noon Tuesday we reckoned the Germans used up 100,000 men on the west Meuse front alone. That is the price they paid for the recapture of our recent gains and the seizure of our outlying positions. The valley separating Le Mort Homme from Hill 287 was choked with bodies. A full brigade was mowed down in a quarter hour's holocaust by our machine guns.

The scene there is appalling, but is dwarfed in comparison with the fighting around Douaumont. West of the Meuse, at least, one dies in the open air, but at Douaumont is the horror of darkness, where men fight in the tunnels, deafened by shells and grenades, stifled by smoke. Even the wounded refuse to abandon the struggle. As though possessed by the devils they fight on until they fall senseless or in loss of blood. A surgeon in a front line post told me that in a redoubt at the south part of the forts of 200 French dead, fully half had more than two wounds. Those he was able to treat seemed utterly insane. They kept shouting war cries and their eyes blazed, and, strange of all, they appeared indifferent to pain. At one moment anaesthetics ran out, owing to the impossibility of bringing forward fresh supplies through the bombardment. Arms, even legs were amputated without a groan, and even afterwards the men seemed not to have felt the shock. They asked for a cigarette or how the battle was going.

Our lines retaking the fort were less heavy than was expected, as the enemy was demoralized by the cannonade—by far the most furious I have ever seen from French guns—and also was taken by surprise. But the subsequent action took a terrible toll. Cover was all blown to pieces. Every German rush was preceded by two or three hours of hellstorm, and then wave after wave of attack in numbers that seemed unceasing. Again and again the defenders' ranks were renewed.

Never have attacks been pushed home so continuously. The fight at Cemetery Hill at Gettysburg was no child's play, nor for Hougomont at Waterloo, but here men have been flung 3,000 at a time at brief intervals for 48 hours. Practically the whole sector has been covered by a cannonade compared to which Waterloo was a ballroom and Waterloo mere fireworks. Some shell holes were 30 feet across, the explosion killing 50 men simultaneously.

Before our lines the German dead lie heaped in long rows. I am told one observer calculated there were 7,000 in a distance in a distance of 700 yards. Besides, they cannot succor their wounded, whereas of ours one in three at least are removed safely to the rear. Despite the bombardment supplies keep coming. Even the chloroform I spoke arrived after an hour's delay when two sets of bearers had been killed.

The dogged tenacity needed to continue the resistance far surpasses the furious plan of the attacks. We know, too, the Germans cannot long maintain their present energies. Since Saturday the enemy has lost two, if not three, for each one of us. Every bombardment without, every rush checked, brings nearer the moment of inevitable exhaustion. Then will come our recompense for these days of horror.
