Letter Tells of Ambush.

In that letter Captain Morey had described how, fearing an ambush, the American troopers had advanced in battle formation on the Mexicans who had come out from Carrizal during a parely over permission for the Americans to pass through the town: how the Mexicans had opened fire, and how the remaining Americans had been forced to retreat and scatter, each for himself. Army officers here hope that the return of Captain Morey will serve to provide the missing links in the story of the encount er at Carrizal and determine the fate of each member of the little recon-

DEMANDS MUST BE GRANTED

Sunday's Note Gives Carranza One More Chance to Avoid War With

President Wilson will likely place the entire Mexican situation before congress at a special joint session, un-less, in the meantime, General Carranza meets the views of the United States.

Whether the president will ask for a declaration of war on the de facto government of Mexico, or will suggest passage of a resolution such as wa adopted at the time of the Vera Crus incident, permitting him to utilize the armed forces of the government to enforce the decrees of the state department, has not been decided. Congress, the leaders said, will follow any plan the president suggests. Whether a state of war shall exist between the United States and the de facto government depends upon the formal declaration of policy by General Carranza, which is expected hourly in response to the note telegraphed to Mexico Sunday by Secretary of State

The American government will in sist, as Secretary Lansing said in the note, upon the immediate release of the cavalrymen captured at Carrizal, but high officials of the administration explain that the course of the United States will be determined by Carranza's final statement of his intentions toward the American expedition in Mexico, rather than on the specific circumstances of the Carrizal inci-

The note reached Mexico City Sun day night, and James Linn Rodgers special agent, arranged to deliver it immediately, according to a cablegram from Mr. Rodgers. There was noth-ing in the message to indicate how the demand was received or when a reply might be expected.

Secretary Lansing's communication disclosed that General Carranza had admitted, in a note received by the state department, issuing orders to General Jacinto Trevino, at Chihua hua, to attack American forces moving in any direction except toward the order. In carrying out these orders, the attack at Carrizal occurred.
