The Real Farmer.

And who is the Real Farmer

The man who farms, simply to see how many dollars he can get out of his year's labors? Not for moment. That is all too narrow a conception of the Real Farmer. Rather, it is the farmer to whom farm life and farm surroundings constitute the ideal of human hap-piness; the farmer who knows as well how many children he has as how many cattle and hogs; the plness; the farmer who knows as well how many cattle and hogs; the farmer to whom it is as great a pleasure to find in his rambles afield a baby calf, colt, lamb, or litter of pigs, with attendant manifest maternal affection, as it is to grasp the price of a fatted steer; the farmer who finds satisfaction in binding up a broken leg and oftimes succeeds when the veterinary said, Oh, shoot it, setting varanteed by every drure, and needs no remoded in bull never succeed; the farmer to whom every horse, dog, cat and even the diminutive bantams look to, and justly so, as a friend; the farmer who finds pleasure in the realization that a great part of his mission is to feed the world—this type alone constitutes the Real Farmer.—Quoted by Dr. H. temperature.
Sweet potatoes should be left in the ground until they are mature, but they should be dug before the first heavy frost, as frosted potatoes soon begin to decay.

Careful handling is very important. No amount of curing or careful manipulation of the storage house can save sweet poatoes which have been cut digging, or bruised by handling in the field or on their way to the storage house. The heaviest loss is usually due to excessive mois ture in the sweet potatoes, which cau only be removed by using the proper storage house.

A day or two before digging be gins, the house should be dried out by building a fire in it. A cast-iron stove is best, and wood or coal may be burned. Ventilators are provided in the floor and ceiling, which, together with open doors and windows, afford a frequent change of air, thus properly drying the house.

Foch and the Bible.

Commander-in-Chief Foch has expressed his opinion of the value of the Bible. He sent a message to the American Bible Society eloquent in its force fulness. The French Commander said, "The Bible is certainly the best preparation that you can give to an American soldier going into battle to sustain his magnificent flowing and faith."—The wonderful success of Marshal Foch is more easily understood since the message was read.

take the floor, Judge Clark says:

The man who takes advantage of the abnormal conditions of war time to exact unreasonable and unjust profits for the necessities of life may be a "respected citizen" of the community; he may occupy the chief seats in the synagogue and may make long prayers; but the man who runs away from military service, or the highwayman who robs at the point of a gun, are patriots, gentlemen an i Christians compared with the hypocrites who rob under the guise of legitimate business. The American farmer in large degree will determine the trend of human history for all time to come, because the enormous ultimate consequences of this conflict rest primarily upon the farmer's production of food and feed to sustain the fighting forces. They might fail even with an adequate food supply; without it they are certain to fail.

But in his field, far from the fury of battle, far from either the adventures or the horrors of the firing line, the American farmer will say whether autocracy or de-mocracy shall rule the world during the seasons that are to come a sense the war will be won or
