More Houses Needed. Parties have been here lately inquiring for houses with the intention of moving here. It would pay some one to build some nice cottages for rent and at the same time would be helpful to the town. For a year or two the prices of building materials and workmen have been so high that many have been deterred from building, and for sometime to come it does not look like the prices will be very materially lower. However, people must and will have homes to live in and of course those who build and those who rent will have to face higher prices than prevailed a few years ago.

To Raise $125,000 For Endowment of Elon College. A campaign is now starting to raise $125,000 for the endowment fund of Elon College. The College needs this amount to put it in the proper place among American Colleges—to give it the proper rating as a high class college. It has done a wonderful work with a meagre endowment and the income from tuition fees, but its possibilities are large and promising and to meet them a new source of revenue must be provided. The church will do to the limit of its ability, but that will not be enough. This is an Alamance institution and right at our door. Now, isn't it time that Alamance as a County should do something for the one and only college within her borders?

The story that Villa has embraced Bolshevik doctrine does him injustice. He was the originator of it on this continent. "Don't you think a man ought to tell his wife everything?" "I never tell mine any more than I think she'll believe." "Mama, did you love to flirt when you were young?" "I'm afraid I did, dear." "And were you ever punished for it, mama?" "Yes, dear, I married your father."

Nothing Succeeds Like Success. This old saying is given an added meaning by Mr. F. S. Royster, whose advertisement appears in another part of this paper, when he says, "I like to think that the success of the Royster brands of fertilizer is due to the success of their users; that their growth is due to the growth of the crops they feed. I am proud of the success of my business but proud or sill of the success of the customers who made it. The Royster business has grown under my own eyes from 250 tons to 400,000 tons in the 33 years which I have devoted to it but the satisfaction in this growth is nothing compared to that which I have in the knowledge that it is an expression of the appreciation by my customers of values given them."

Mr. Royster wants his customers to know that he still owns and controls the business and is personally interested in his customers, old and new. He will be glad to hear from them, with accounts of their use of the goods or have them submit for advice any of their plant-food problems.

BETTER DRINKING WATER ON THE FARM.

Experiment Station Bacteriologist Gives Excellent Advice. Co-operative Station Service, B. W. Kilgore, Director.

If you suspected that the water you drink was mixed with leeches from the manure pits and was full of wriggling bacteria, what would you do about it? The thought is bad enough, but the reality is worse. To drink such water is the same as taking a mild dose of poison, due to the presence of decaying organic matter and also to the activities of the bacteria. Not only may the water be poisonous, but the bacteria themselves are very likely to be of such a species that they would be able to cause typhoid, dysentery, or other forms of sickness.

The reality may be found in many North Carolina wells or cisterns, because of overlooked or neglected contamination in the source of supply. This is the time of the year when repairs may be most conveniently made to both well or cistern, and a pure supply of water assured for use during the summer.

Pure water is clear, absolutely without taste or odor, and when freshly drawn, sparkles. If the water used for drinking purposes has either a smell or taste, something is wrong and that something should be attended to at once. The "At Once" part of the program is emphasized in order that future cases of sickness may be avoided. Even if the water is apparently in good shape, a thorough examination should be made to be sure that there are no cracks or crevices through which an outside contamination might enter.

A well is merely a reservoir for the storage of underground water, just as a cistern is a reservoir for storing rain water. If surface, or polluted water gets into either of them, the whole supply is contaminated and its use for drinking purposes becomes a dangerous practice.

Avoid such a condition of affairs by repairing all possible leaks in and about the well or cistern. The well curbing should be cemented on the outside from a point three feet below the ground level, to the top and earth banked against this in such a manner that all surplus water will drain away from and not into the well. The water should be pumped off and all sediment removed from the bottom and sides of well or cistern. The cover should receive careful attention to avoid a leak of any kind. If the cover is

STATE ROAD FUND BILL.

Proposes to Replace Stacy Substitute — Provides for 50c. Automobile Tax.

Cor. of The Gleaner. Chapel Hill, Feb. 18.—The Stevens-Scales road bill for the establishment of a State road construction fund for the building of State Highways and meeting Federal Aid has been voted down in the Senate and displaced by the Stacy substitute. The Stevens-Scales bill insures by what we believe to be the fairest method a fund sufficient to meet the Federal Aid allotment and at the same time a maintenance fund for taking care of the roads until the more permanent roads are built. Also it insures a square deal to the smaller rural counties, as it guarantees roads connecting all county seats. The Stevens-Scales bill provides the fund through increased licenses on automobiles and other motor vehicles plus a State bond issue not to exceed a million dollars in any one year, which would distribute the burden fairly between the class of people who would use these through highways most, and the general public. If such a tax is on a class of people, it is also for the benefit of a class of roads which will benefit that class of people most. This bill also makes it possible to meet the Federal Aid throughout the ten year period contemplated in the Bankhead bill.

The Stacy substitute calls for two and a quarter million dollars in bonds a year, for two years, does not provide for a sufficient maintenance fund (which will queer the whole project two years from now) and does not provide for adequate support of the State Highway Commission. It also gives the richer and more thickly settled counties a very decided advantage over the smaller, poorer rural counties.

A bill has been introduced into the House this week providing a 50c. tax on automobiles and allowing the counties, through tax or bond issue, to pay one-fourth of the cost of the construction of the State Highways. Next to the Stevens-Scales bill we think this the most favorable bill for the State generally. This House measure was introduced by Representative McCain of Vance county.

This is the most constructive measure ever proposed for North Carolina and will place our State among the progressive States of the Union and put us in a better position to take advantage of the great era of expansion which we believe is immediately ahead of the United States.

Holland should be asked to declare whether it considers the Hohenzollerns as guests or as an infection.

Cordially yours, M. C. TERRELL, Superintendent.

SUNKEN TREASURE SHIPS.

Millions Gold and Silver Went Down With Ships. From Exchange.

One of the most interesting wrecks on record is that of the British frigate Lutina, which was sunk off the coast of Holland in 1799. It was customary in those days to carry much gold and silver on war vessels, and this particular ship was known to have 1,900 gold bars and 500 bars of silver with a total value of over six million dollars. It was driven around in a storm and sank in comparatively shallow water. Great Britain at that time was at war with France, and Holland, an ally of France, claimed the frigate as a prize of war. The water was so shallow that at low tide it was possible for a fisherman to reach it with scoops and grapples and recover some of its treasure. A salvage company organized by the Dutch people to recover the wealth of the Lutina succeeded in getting not more than half a million dollars' worth of gold and silver. The position of the wreck, however, was decidedly unfavorable. It was in an exposed spot and the bottom was swept by strong tidal currents. Gradually it became buried in sand, and all salvage operations had to cease.

There are other rich treasures in the sea, writes A. Russell Bond in Everybody's. In Cumana Bay, Venezuela, lies the wreck of the Spanish flagship, San Pedro, with $2,000,000 worth of gold on board, which so far has defied all attempts to salvage. The richest treasure of all is probably a Spanish galleon, sunk off Lizard Point on the Cornish coast, in 1784, which is believed to have aboard $55,000,000 worth of gold.

But we need not go so far afield for valuable wrecks. Our own lakes are filled with them. In fact, Lake Huron is known locally as the "Lake of Sunken Treasure." It is estimated that some $12,000,000 worth of gold and silver is buried in the depths of the Great Lakes.

A big story of the Colorado—the 2,000-mile river that dug the Grand Canyon, the "Great Yellow-Dragon-That-Cannot-Be-Harnessed-of-the-Indian-when-it-bursts-its-banks-and-threatened-to-turn-the-Imperial-Valley-of-California-into-an-inland-sea."

"The River" is the story of that titanic struggle to balk the Colorado of its prey that thrilled the nation; of the man who saved the Imperial Valley and lost his heart to the girl who hated him.

"The River" is the story of Innes Hardin, whose hatred of the engineer turned to love as she watched him lead the battle against the Great Yellow Dragon for the lives and homes of the settlers.

"The River" is the thrilling story of that thrilling time.
