Secretary Daniels and the Navy.

Kansas City Post.
Joseph Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, has proven himself amply big enough for the job he holds—and, there's no denying the size of the job. Of course, Mr. Daniels has had his share of criticism, but with becoming placidity he went ahead with his business—his country's business, we may say—and, right well has he done. Even his most rabid critics are beginning to change their views. Some of them, at least, are changing, and whether changed as to views or not, many others are maintaining discreet silence.

So, it has come about that when Mr. Daniels speaks, the country is inclined to listen, for he is not given to dealing in platitudes. It is interesting, therefore, to note that Mr. Daniels says: "The time has arrived when this country must choose between the League of Nations or a big navy. We can be a hermit nation—go it alone—but if we so decide, we must make the consequences. This country must arm to the teeth. She must have a powerful navy that will be able to meet all comers, for it is unthinkable that we should allow our rights or liberties to be interfered with by any nation. The second course, and to my mind the better better course, is to enter into some international agreement which would mean fellowship and comradeship among the nations and make it unnecessary to continue colossal expenditures for armaments as we know them today." Commenting on the attitude of Mr. Daniels, the Detroit News, a newspaper noted for its independence of thought, says: "Mr. Daniels is right. The interests that oppose the League of Nations know Mr. Daniels is right. They know that keeping the nations from agreement, setting up balances of power through secret treaties, and teaching each independent people that they must be prepared to fight at the drop of the hat in defense of their boasted rights, mean scrapping old ships to build new, buying guns and ammunition and armored airships and all the costly things for which terrified peoples can be forced to pour their money without asking the price. And the interests that profit by the perpetuation of terror oppose the League of Nations."

"Mr. Daniels is right in this, too, that there is a better way, and that is to enter into some international agreement which would mean fellowship and comradeship among the nations and make it unnecessary to continue the colossal expenditures for armaments."

Stable Manure and Wood Ashes for Tobacco

These will cut down the fertilizer bill, says W. F. Pate, Agronomist in Soils. The farmer who has stable manure and wood ashes can cut down his fertilizer bill for tobacco very materially if he uses caution in handling these materials.

Wood ashes should not be mixed with stable manure or commercial fertilizer as this would set the ammonia free. In using stable manure under tobacco apply one ton to the acre in the drill from 30 to 60 days before the tobacco is transplanted. Cover this well. The time of application will be governed by the condition of the manure. The coarser the material the sooner it should be applied before transplanting. When time to put on the fertilizer, open the drill row with a plow, then put out the wood ashes, mix thoroughly with the soil, and then apply the fertilizer and cover again.

On tobacco soils of medium fertility the following amount of materials should be used to the acre:

Stable manure	2,000 Pounds
Cotton-seed meal	400
Acid phosphate	300
Hardwood ashes	400
Total	3,100

When used as above this mixture of materials would equal about 800 pounds per acre of a fertilizer analyzing 8 per cent phosphoric acid, 4.7 per cent ammonia, and 5 per cent potash.

PROMINENT MEN IN XMAS APPEAL FOR ARMENIANS

Former President Taft Leads in Eloquent Plea for Support of Near East Relief.

To save the lives of 800,000 people in Armenia and other western Asian countries and to care for more than 250,000 orphans who are homeless these former President William Howard Taft, Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, and Alexander J. Hemphill, the New York banker, as members of the Executive Committee of Near East Relief, the former American Committee on Armenian and Syrian Relief, have issued a Christmas appeal for continued support of this organization and its work. "Near East Relief is now operating under a government charter and is practically alone in the western Asian field, the Red Cross several months ago having announced its withdrawal. The Christmas letter, a classic of its kind, is as follows: "Dear Friend—Another little child has shriveled up and died. "The mother, creeping back, gaunt and cold, from the desert, has put down the thin little bones with those that strew the road and has sunk beside them, never to rise again. "Only a little child and a mother on the bleak Armenian road! But what is that vision hovering there and what is that voice the cold winds bear to the ears of our souls—I was hungry and ye gave me no meat; I was naked and ye clothed me not. "Today—yes, today—while we are preparing our gifts for Christmas, many more of these little children—not a hundred nor a thousand, but 250,000 of them—are still wandering uncaared for and alone in that dead land, their weakened skins clinging in fear to their rattling bones, and they are crying out with gasping breath, "I am hungry, I am hungry!" And the voice of one who watches us as we prepare gifts to celebrate his birthday comes again to the ears of our souls—"I am hungry! I am hungry!" "Now, the children and the mothers in Armenia are dreading the winter. Just human remnants they are, not protected, many of them, from the elements by even the dignity of rags. The most favored have merely shredded rags." How shall we sing our Christmas songs and laugh and light the candles and give beautiful gifts while that pleading voice cries in the ears of our souls, "I am naked and cold—naked and cold? "But we can feed and clothe these perishing ones—some of them—before it is too late. Herbert Hoover has called from the Caucasus, "It is impossible that the loss of 200,000 lives can at this day be prevented, but the remaining 600,000 can possibly be saved. They need not starve and freeze and die if we will save them. In the name of him who saw the multitude "as sheep not having a shepherd" and who moved with compassion toward them, who exclaimed when his disciples would turn them away, "They need not depart, give ye them to eat!" open your heart and purse and give to these Christians whom he loves, who are suffering for him and with whom he is suffering. They need not die. Give ye them to eat. "Fifteen dollars a month will provide food, clothes, shelter and education toward self support for one orphan child. "Ten dollars a month will provide food, clothes and shelter for one orphan child. "Five dollars a month will provide food for one orphan child. "He fed 5,000 hungry people in the wilderness and said to his followers, "The things that I do shall ye do also, and greater things than these shall ye do." Today nearly 800,000 destitute Armenians—his people—need food and clothing. "He took little children in his arms and blessed them. Today will you take one or more of these sad, cold, hungry little children of Armenia into your arms and heart in his name and give them food and warmth and life? "What a joyful Christmas it will be when with your songs and your laughter you hear a voice of wondrous sweetness speaking to you, "O, ye blessed of my Father, I was hungry and ye gave me meat, I was naked and ye clothed me, inasmuch as ye have done it to these, my brethren, ye have done it to me." "In his name, "PATULLY yours, "WILLIAM H. TAFT. "ALEXANDER J. HEMPHILL. "HENRY MORGENTHAU." For Executive Committee, Near East Relief.

BANDITS ATTACK HARBORD, THINKING HIM ARMENIAN

Because he and members of his party were mistaken for Armenians, Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, head of the American Mission to Armenia, narrowly escaped death at the hands of a band of marauding bandits a few miles from Mount Ararat. Major General Harbord has just returned to the United States and made a report to President Wilson on the distressing conditions in the Near East, where American charity is saving thousands of lives through the Near East Relief.
