Fifty Millions for Hard Surface Roads

Power to Enforce Prohibition Wanted—Senator Long Puts Through Stock Law Measure—Judge's Pay Increased.

TRAVELING MEN WANT RELIEF.

(By Maxwell Gorman.)

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 7.—The hard surfaced State system of good roads is the leading issue with the Legislature this week and after the hearings the last few days of the various and sundry delegations from all parts of the State before the committee, the indications today point to fifty millions for roads without any ad valorem tax, with a system of State maintenance and control. Governor Morrison states that the measure that has come to be known as the Doughton-Connor bill will be satisfactory to him (and presumably to Hon. Heriot Clarkson who has, as chairman of the State association, done most of the engineering and hard work on the subject for months in preparing the way for the enactment of a satisfactory and effective law), with some minor alterations which can be made on the floor of the two Houses when the bill is taken up. In short, all the contending forces appear to have reached a common agreement and are standing together and that means the enactment of the law—notwithstanding the bad news of high rates for money as brought back from New York by State Treasurer Lacy, who got a good bargain after in his sale of bonds at six and a quarter per cent, considering the conditions in the financial market just now.

More Power to the Law Enforcement Arm.

Within a few days there will be presented to the Legislature a most important measure to provide for the better enforcement of State prohibition laws. It will provide for State-wide control. Some of its provisions include the following:

For a chief officer to be named by a department of special law enforcement which the bill would create, consisting of the Governor as chairman, the Attorney General and three other citizens of the State to be appointed by the Governor, and the assistants shall have all the authority now vested in sheriffs in the matter of enforcing the dry laws "regardless of counties throughout the State".

Other features of the bill are: "It shall be unlawful to transport or assist in transporting intoxicating liquors in quantities of as much as one-half gallon; and upon conviction of such, the person convicted shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished in the discretion of the court and the property, vehicle, or animals used in such transportation shall be subject to seizure, confiscation and sale."

"Not exceeding forty field officers" for the State is the plan of the bill. That would mean the chief officer, five assistants, and 40 others. For the maintenance of this force, $125,000 is requested.

It is estimated, however, that the money collected from dry laws violators and the sales of property confiscated would not only repay the $125,000, but add enough to keep the schools of the State going, instead of the bar-room tax used for educational purposes it would be the other way round.

Legislative Notes.

Senator Elmer Long of Alamance, who is one of the most effective and energetic members of the "Upper House," has put through the stock law measure which he has been nursing for some time, and did so with an overwhelming majority. By the terms of this measure the entire eastern section of the State comes under the law.

The tick eradication bill has been set as the special order for Wednesday in both houses, and there promises to be a long-winded debate. Some of the eastern Senators and Representatives are greatly opposed to the bill and will fight it ferociously.

The bill passed the Senate Friday last increasing the pay of the Superior Court Judges and the State departmental officers not included in the first bill, in the House at this writing, and there will be some opposition developed there, as was the case in the Senate. But the chances are that there are enough broad-visioned men there to pass the measure. Even then North Carolina will be well to the foot of the list of States in the amount of salaries paid its public officials.

The workman's compensation measures, four of which are now in the hands of committees, are as far from action as at the beginning of the session, largely because the legislators know scarcely anything of the subject. The judiciary committee took a week's recess to allow the members to study the subject and it will be taken up again the last of the week.

The traveling men held a meeting here and appointed a committee to secure the drafting of a bill to be presented to the Legislature for relief from the alleged continued profiteering of hotel and cafe men.

Burgwyn, of Northampton, has introduced a bill to reduce the amount of household property exempt from taxation from $300 to $25. But it has no chance of passing.

Alumni of Methodist Colleges to Meet in Durham.

Alumni of Methodist colleges residing in the Durham District will meet in the High School building at Durham Friday morning at 8 o'clock to make preparations for the $33,000,000 educational campaign soon to be waged by the Southern Methodist church.

The meeting is to be held under the direction of M. A. Briggs of Durham, alumni director for Trinity College, Mrs. M. T. Plyler of Dnabam, alumni director for Greensboro College, and Miss Giles Mebane of Blanche, alumni director for Louisburg Female College. These directors are making special efforts to have all alumni of Methodist institutions residing in the district present for the meeting.

The features of the meeting will be the exhibition of moving pictures showing life at Methodist institutions of learning in the State at the present time. Students of Greensboro College for Women and Trinity College will unite in supplying a musical program. Five minute talks will be delivered by a number of prominent speakers.

Chapel Hill Letter.

Cor. of The Gleaner.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Feb. 8.—Prof. Charles H. Grandgent, head of the department of romance languages at Harvard University, is at the University of North Carolina and will spend the week there in conducting a brief, intensive course for advanced students in language and literature on "Dante, His Period and His Relation to Human Thought."

Prof. Grandgent is following the policy adopted by the English department of bringing to the university every year one of the country's leading scholars for a week's work with special students. He will give lectures every afternoon to a selected group of students who have been required to do a certain amount of reading in preparation for his lectures.

Three more original North Carolina folk plays will be produced by the Carolina Playmakers at their Playhouse in Chapel Hill, Feb. 11 and 12. The plays chosen, all written by university students, are "The Vamp," a modern college comedy, the work of William A. Royall of Goldsboro; "The Miner," a tragedy of North Carolina country life, and "The Old Man of Edenton," a melodrama of the period of 1760, both written by Paul E. Greene of Lillington, who has been one of the most successful of the local playwrights.

The entire production of the plays will be handled by the Playmakers, including the staging, scenery, lighting, costumes, and acting. It is probable, the Playmakers have announced, that a road trip will be taken later in the spring. Greensboro, Salisbury, High Point, Charlotte, Raleigh, Goldsboro, and other cities have requested that some of the local folk lore plays be presented in their theaters.

Reorganization of correspondence courses and marked increases in the number of courses offered North Carolinians for home study by the university have been announced by the bureau of extension. Chester D. Snell, newly appointed assistant director of the bureau, who is in charge of the work, has said that the change will go into effect March 1.

The new plan throws open new courses in economics, education, English, History, Latin, and Mathematics. Arrangements have been made to give credit toward a university degree for those taking these courses and announcement has also been made that the State department of education has agreed that university credit on this work will be accepted by the State board of examiners and institute conductors as credit toward State teachers' certificates.

Under this plan any person in North Carolina who wants to carry college work further can do the studying at home under supervision of university professors. A number of students have already enrolled for the correspondence courses and the increase in the number of courses is expected to add many new names.
