result of his study and thought. Governor Cooper has a broad vision of the future greatness of these states, as he explained during a rather extended conversation. Much of the importance he attaches to the Made-in-Carolinas Exposition is due to its educational value, particularly to those who are not industrial executives. One of the first outspoken of South Carolina's exponents of compulsory education, Governor Cooper invariably throws the weight of his in-

uence and efforts back of every plan intended to broaden the understanding of the rank and file of the people, for he pointed out that progress of every nature is based on knowledge and made stable by loyalty, faith and co-operation.
