

THE GLEANER

GRAHAM, N. C., March 5, 1925.

Postoffice Hours.

Office open 7.00 a. m. to 7.00 p. m. Sunday 9.00 to 11.00 a. m. and 4.00 to 6.00 p. m. J. R. GUTHRIE, Postmaster.

LOCAL NEWS.

Mr. Geo. W. Anthony, one of Burlington's oldest and best known citizens, was stricken with paralysis on Saturday last, and since that time has been in a critical condition.

Alfred N. Roberson Passes.

On Wednesday afternoon Mr. Alfred N. Roberson, aged 78 years, died at his home in Newlin township following an attack of pneumonia. The burial is at Concord church this afternoon at 2 o'clock, funeral services by Rev. H. L. Isley.

Mr. Roberson was a prominent and highly esteemed citizen. He served a number of years as a member of the County Board of Education and also served as a County Commissioner. He had many friends over the county who regret to hear of death. He is survived by his widow and several sons and daughters.

Prominent Speakers For County-Wide Dairy Meetings.

A series of dairy development meetings will be held over the county in a few days. Places and dates of which will be announced later.

Mr. J. Arty of the Dairy Extension Service at Raleigh, Mr. H. C. Bates of the Southern Railway Development Service, Atlanta, Ga., and Mr. Oliver of the American Jersey Cattle Club New York will speak at these meetings.

For a dairy program a better trio cannot be found in the South. Plan to attend one of these meetings.

Healthy Spuds Will Bring Bigger Profits.

It will soon be time to plant Irish potatoes and to bed the sweet potatoes. Only good seed, free from disease, should be used and the best seed are cheapest because they bring larger returns than poor seed. Seed treatment will prevent diseases being carried into the new crop.

"Even the care may be exercised in selecting good seed. If there are disease spores on them, the good benefits from using such seed may be counteracted by the presence of disease in the crop," says Glenn O. Randall, extension horticulturist for the State College of Agriculture. "We may control or hold in check such diseases as rhizoctonia, scab and black leg by proper treatment with corrosive sublimate or formaldehyde solution. Either of these treatments is effective and they are given as follows:

Corrosive Sublimate Treatment. Dissolve 4 ounces corrosive sublimate in 30 gallons of water. Treat tubers for 1 1/2 hours. Solution must not be used in metallic vessels. Tubers should be soaked before they are cut. Solution can be used 4 times, but addition of one ounce corrosive sublimate to 30 gallons solution after each batch is soaked, keeps the treating solution at proper strength. Treat before seed shows any sign of sprouting. Soak 24 hours in water, then dry before treating. Use crates rather than sacks. Caution: Use with great care. Very poisonous if taken internally.

Formaldehyde Treatment. Consists of 1 pint formalin (40 percent formaldehyde) to 30 gallons water. Soak seed tubers for 2 hours and spread out on clean surface to dry. Tubers should be treated whole. This solution may be used 5 times before it becomes ineffective.

North Carolina should be a great honey producing State. A strong colony of bees will produce about 200 pounds of honey each year. Why not start one on the farm this year, suggests extension workers for the State of Agriculture.

Notice!

Application For Pardon. Notice is hereby given that application will be made to the Governor of North Carolina for the pardon of Joseph Dixon Hadley, convicted at the November, 1924, Criminal Term of Alamance Superior Court of aiding and abetting in the larceny of a bale of cotton and sentenced to six months on the roads of Alamance county. This February 7th, 1925.

PERSON. Mr. Mike A. Nicholson of Troy was a visitor here a few days ago. Joseph T. Allen, attorney, of Gibsonville is here today on business. Miss Clara Hughes leaves Monday for Aiken, S. C., to spend several weeks.

Prof. and Mrs. S. A. Holleman spent last Saturday here with the latter's brothers, Mr. Edgar Long and Dr. Will S. Long Jr.

Mrs. J. L. Scott, Jr., is a visitor in Washington this week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. S. Simmons, and will attend the inauguration ceremonies.

Mr. W. H. Boyd of Halifax county, Va., was here last Friday for a short while calling on old friends. He attended the Graham High School here 47 years ago under the late Dr. W. S. Long and Dr. D. A. Long.

$1,000 In Prizes For State Gardeners

The gardens contest in North Carolina by the Division of Horticulture and Home Demonstration of the State College Extension Service has received added impetus by the announcement from the Southern Ruralist of Atlanta, Ga., that it will give $1,000 in prizes to gardeners in the South. This South wide contest will run from May 1, 1925, to May 1, 1926, entries will be received by the Ruralist up until June 1 of this year. Anyone living on a farm in the South may enter the contest by writing to the Ruralist before this date.

The money will be distributed as follows: First prize $500; second prize, $200; third prize, $100; five prizes of $20 each and ten prizes of $10 each. The rules governing this contest were prepared by a committee of four southern horticulturists of which Prof. C. D. Matthews of State College is a member. The awards will be made by the same committee.

Called His Bluff. "When one meets one of the modern women one must be careful how one expresses oneself," remarked Binks. "How do you make that out?" asked Smith. "Why," replied Binks, "I was proposing to Ethel the other night, and I said, 'My dear, I would go to the ends of the earth with you!'" "She said, 'No, you wouldn't.' I inquired why not, and she added: 'One reason is that I wouldn't go and another is that there aren't any!'"

Painting Deceived Birds. Zeuxis, a famous Greek painter, who flourished in the latter half of the fifth century B. C., is said to have painted grapes so naturally that the birds pecked at them. Parrhasius was a young rival of Zeuxis and in a competition between them the young artist was allowed by Zeuxis to surpass him. It was on this occasion that Zeuxis, perhaps the greatest of all the Greek painters, painted a bunch of grapes which were so natural that the birds pecked at them. Or so says tradition.

Another argument for a garden this year—"Soak up the sunlight if you want to be strong bodied, vigorous and healthy."

COMPARISONS. Diamonds and charcoal are essentially carbon yet their values and usefulness are as far apart as the poles. So it is with

Scott's Emulsion

Many imagine that all oils are similar, but when the usefulness of cod-liver oil is compared with all the other fats, the difference in value is as far apart as common charcoal and diamonds. Scott's Emulsion is cod-liver oil made pleasantly available to build up those who are rundown or weak. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Many farmers have no money to pay high prices for fertilizers this year and county agents of State College are wisely assisting them in buying the crude materials, working out good formulas and mixing fertilizer at home.

GET AT THE CAUSE!

Many Graham Folks Are Showing It! To Avoid Needless Suffering.

There's nothing more annoying than kidney weakness or inability to properly control the kidney secretions. Night and day a life, the sufferer is tormented and what with the burning and scalding, the attendant backache, headache and dizziness, life is indeed a burden. Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many Graham people. Profit by this Graham resident's experience:

W. W. Garrett, hotel proprietor, says: "I had a dull ache in my back most all the time. My kidneys acted irregularly and the secretions were scanty, highly colored and burned in passage. I bought a supply of Doan's Pills at the Graham Drug Co. and after a short use, my kidneys acted regularly again and I wasn't troubled any more with backache." 60c. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

When the Board of Agriculture of Beaufort County held its first meeting in January, the members agreed that the organization of the board and the monthly meetings would do much for farming in that county, reports County Agent F. W. Risher.

Trivial Diary Entries

Best Record of Doings. A hundred times, perhaps, the pen has been taken up with reluctance to tell the story of an unexciting day. There has seemed to be nothing worth saying, no happening worth the spoiling of paper with ink, says a writer in the London Times. Yet, for habit's sake and in a determination not to be beaten, an entry has been made, and often, at the year's end, these entries, which once seemed so dull, are found to have more truth and more entertainment in them than many a record of a relatively eventful day.

When "there is nothing worth saying" a diarist is apt to fill in the gap with a little of himself, to give play to his imagination, to escape from that formality which settles over even the simplest of domestic histories, and to permit himself, as he thinks, to be trivial. Then, indeed, he is writing, as the perfect diarist must nearly always write, for no other eye but his own. He would be ashamed to publish; he would blush to imagine posterity looking at that singularly trivial page. Yet that is the page which amuses him when months later he rereads it, and that certainly is the page in which, if it survives, his great-grandchildren will have their chief delight. "An empty day," he thinks as he writes. "What on earth can I say of it?" And nine times out of ten it is on such occasions that the trivial goddess who presides over the fortunes of diarists tricks him into drawing without knowing it a portrait of himself.

Weapons of Warfare of American Indians

Though some Indians were more proficient at it than others, and the methods of some tribes were more advanced than those of others, there was very little secret about the making of warlike implements, and all the Indians knew how. Flints and similar stones were used not so much because of their hardness as for the reason they could be flaked off and fashioned into desired shapes as arrow, lance, spear or harpoon heads, knives, saws or scrapers. The flint was to be found in open fields, bowlder beds and elsewhere, and the tribes camped occasionally near the larger supplies to break off with rocks or hammers the quantities and sizes of flint chips needed. These were carried home, to be flaked off and worked into shape with the aid of sharp-pointed implements of bone. The waste and refuse of the process, as well as the tools employed in it, have often been found on the sites of early Indian dwellings. The products of this primitive industry range in size from tiny arrow tips to ceremonial spear heads more than a foot long.—Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

Moslem's Holy Period

The Ramadan is the ninth month of the Moslem year, observed as a fast in commemoration of the first revelation received by Mohammed. It commences with the new moon of the ninth month of the year and ends on the day preceding the great festival of Bairam. From dawn to sunset of each day during this period the strictest abstinence is enjoined. All eating, drinking, bathing, smoking and other bodily pleasures—even swallowing one's saliva—being forbidden. At night, however, the satisfaction of the most necessary desires is permitted. As the Mohammedan year is lunar, consisting of 354 days, 21 hours, it follows that in the course of 33 years the Ramadan passes through all the seasons. It is said that the fast of the Ramadan is much less strictly observed now than in former times.—Kansas City Star.

Slangue and Language

Slang is perpetually changing, language much more slowly. The common spoken language of any one period, is, as it were, the melting pot from which the pure gold of its literary language is distilled. The slang, having contributed its quota, dies, but the literary language lives on. It has emerged from the crucible pure coin for ever. Any great language, such as Greek or Latin, is eternal, for in the hands of a master it becomes a thing of power, a vehicle for the living truth. And once that truth has poured through it, it is immortal, a radiant garment of thought, no longer the tongue merely of merchants and artisans, but the speech of gods and heroes.—Nineteenth Century.

Fools Himself

Why is it that a woman can make a fool of a wise man and a wise man of a fool? She can't. It is true that a wise man often makes a fool of himself about a woman, but it is his own vanity and egotism that betrays him into folly. For instance, it is a common thing for an old man with a huge fortune to marry a girl young enough to be his granddaughter. In such cases the man lulls himself into the belief that he is so handsome and attractive that a girl prefers him to a boy of her own age. But it is self-conceit—not the girl—that does the trick.—Family Herald.

Origin of "Pan Out"

This expression had its origin among gold miners. The pan used by miners is a circular pan with sloping sides. In this gold is separated from earth or gravel by twirling or shaking it with water. If gold is found the miners say the gravel or sand "pans out" well. But if no gold or very little gold is found the earth does not "pan out." Hence the expression came to be applied to anything from which a result is expected.—Exchange.

Caves in Britain Well Worth Tourist's Visit

Little as some might suspect it, there are some famous caves in Great Britain, and still more that deserve to be famous. The country is rich not only in the number, but also in the variety of type of the caverns which it contains. Best known among these caves are the Peak cavern, at Castleton, in Derbyshire and the Cheddar caves, in Somerset. The Peak cavern has been known since the earliest ages. No one could help seeing it, for it yawns huge and black in the cliff-like side of that hill on whose dizzy crags Peveril of the Peak had his castle, says the Wide World Magazine.

An ice-cold stream issues from its limestone recesses, and subterranean lakes stretch far into the hillsides. This vast cavern has been explored for 2,250 feet. The Cheddar caves do not advertise in so spectacular a fashion, although the Cheddar gorge is one of the most striking pieces of scenery in Great Britain. The first series of caves was accidentally discovered in 1867, through a man at work in his garden falling into the hillside. The second series remained unknown until 1868. These limestone caves form a series of beautiful and lofty halls, hung with stalactites from the roof, and with beautifully colored stalagmites rising from the floor to meet them.

Saved From Death by Knowledge of Morse

Two employees of a telegraph company sent to repair a burglar alarm in a financial institution at Boston were accidentally locked in the vault. Bank employees in vain tried to open the massive door. It was equipped with a time lock which was set to open the following morning. The police, fire department and safe experts could do nothing. There was a safety device inside the vault which, if the prisoners knew about, would have released them but there seemed to be no way to make them acquainted with the fact. Finally someone thought of the Morse telegraph code. With huge sledge the words were sounded to the imprisoned men. Then the anxious throng waited. There was no answer. Suddenly the door swung open and the two men tottered out. They had heard the message and found the lock. They were on the point of collapse after being in the air-tight compartment for an hour.

Not the Same "Kitty"

The other evening Jimmy's mother was settling herself down for a good read when she saw her small son stride over to the window, seize the kitten that was dozing on the ledge, and, swinging it about by its tail, give it a vigorous shaking. "Jimmy! Jimmy! Stop that at once," she cried, and, making a grab at the kitten, rescued it from its tormenter. "What do you mean by being so cruel to the poor little thing?" she demanded. "I wasn't cruel," said Jimmy. "When dad was playing cards last night I heard him say, 'Now boys, there's at least five dollars in the kitty,' and well, I was trying to shake it out."—London Answers.

Not So Dumb

When the earl of Bedford was brought before the lord chancellor to be examined on the application for a statute of lunacy against him, the question was asked him from the wood-sack:

"How many feet has a sheep?" "Does your lordship," answered Lord Bradford, "mean a live-sheep, or a dead sheep?" "Is it not the same thing?" said the chancellor. "No, my lord," returned Lord Bradford. "There is much difference; a live sheep may have four legs, a dead sheep has only two; the two forelegs are shoulders, but there are only two legs of mutton!"—Yorkshire (Eng.) Post.

Cancer in Lower Animals

Scientists seeking a cure for cancer have been attempting to find a solution for their problem and to learn more of the nature of the growth, by preparing it in animal specimens. Experiments with rats and mice have shown that a certain kind of tar will cause cancerous formations six months after it is applied to the living tissue of the animals, and it was also found that cancers were produced in the stomachs of the specimens after they had eaten cockroaches in contact with a certain kind of worm. While the cure is being sought, efforts are also constantly in progress to improve existing methods of treatment, to allay the ravages of the mysterious affliction.—Chicago Herald.

An Ingenious "Alibi"

The people who are most indolent physically are often quick enough mentally. Such was the case with the British workman of whom the Teller tells. He was usually late in coming to work, and one day the foreman took him to task. "It's a funny thing, Jim," he said, "you always coming in a quarter of an hour behind the time and living next door to the works; while Teddy is always on time, and lives three miles away!" "There's nowt funny about it," returned Jim. "If he's a bit late in a morning, he can hurry a bit; but if I'm late, I'm here."—Youth's Companion.
