

THE GLEANER

GRAHAM, N. C., NOV. 15, 1928.

LOCAL NEWS.

Thanksgiving is just two weeks off from to-day.

County Court is trying jury cases this week, and it seems it will be in session the entire week.

The weather has gradually moderated since the first of the week and is now as fine as could be desired.

The coldest morning yet this Fall was Monday. Ice was fairly plentiful and accompanying was the first real killing frost of the season.

Fall furniture sale at Green & McClure's is reported as going good. The display embraces real works of art in design and quality, and it is a pleasure to look at it.

A carload of fine Virginia apples was landed here Friday and opened up Saturday. The car consisted of 480 baskets (bushels) and by early Monday morning all had been sold. The varieties were Stayman Winesap, Lowery and Delicious.

The local Red Cross made its drive for membership last Friday, but the period is not confined to a single day. The period is from Nov. 11th to Nov. 29th, inclusive. So, if you have not taken a membership and paid a $1.00, see the president, Mrs. J. J. Henderson, or the treasurer, Mr. Chas. A. Scott, at the National Bank of Alamance.

AMONG THE SICK.

Mr. Wm. I. Ward is confined to his home with a case of flu.

Mrs. W. J. Nicks, who has been sick for several days, is improving.

Important Jr. Order Meeting.

On Thursday evening, Nov. 22, an important meeting of Graham Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be held. All members are urgently requested to be present. Plans for the benefit of the Council will be considered.

Deaths.

Mr. J. Frank Garrison, aged 73, prominent farmer and highly esteemed citizen of the Cross Roads Church community, died Saturday afternoon following a short illness. He was one of the county's best citizens and known throughout the county. The burial was at Cross Roads Presbyterian Church, of which he was a faithful member, Sunday at 3:30 p. m.

Three sons and three daughters survive him.

Mrs. Della Ann Bradshaw, widow of T. Lafayette Bradshaw, died early Sunday night at her home in Thompson township, near Phillips Chapel, aged 92 years, 10 months and 3 days. She was perhaps the oldest woman in that section and was held in high esteem. She is survived by four sons, Thos. C. of Graham, J. Pope of Swensonville, A. L. and I. W. of near the old home, 20 grandchildren and 5 great grand children. Interment was at Phillips' Chappel Monday afternoon.

Every Man's Best Friend.

A man's job is his best friend. It clothes and feeds his wife and children, pays the rent and supplies them with the wherewithal to develop and become cultivated. The least a man can do in return is to love his job.

A man's job is grateful. It is like a garden that thrives on love. It will one day flower into fruit worth while for him and his to enjoy. If you ask any successful man the reason for his making good, he will tell you that first and foremost it is because he likes his work; indeed he loves it.

His whole heart and soul is wrapped up in it. His whole physical and mental energies are focused on it. He walks his work, he talks his work; and that is the way every man worth his salt ought to be if he wants to make of his work what it should be, and make of himself what he wants to be.

Mr. Goode is attending the State Baptist Convention in High Point. Up to a month ago he was pastor of the Baptist Church in Reidsville. Mr. and Mrs. Goode expect to leave for their home this afternoon.

Active Spindles.

Cotton Growing States Far In Lead of New England.

For the month of September 1928 the active spindle hours of the textile mills of the United States totaled 6,961,189,730. Of this total the cotton growing States contributed 4,948,300,013 or seventy-one per cent, and the New England States 1,791,926,003 spindle hours. North and South Carolina are practically tied for the first position, with more than sixteen hundred million spindle hours each.

Either of these two States has almost as many spindle hours as all the New England States combined.

Bees do not hibernate in the winter and do other insects and therefore they must be protected from cold. In protecting bees from cold in winter, the hives may be packed in chaff, leaves, or similar dry material. Hives made with double walls, the space between which is filled with insulating material. Hives made with double walls, the space between which is filled with insulating material, are good for outdoor wintering. With proper protection the moisture given off by bees in winter does not condense within the hive. This, if not prevented, would cause a great deal of damage.

Red Cross Roll Call.

Graham Has Given a Good Response.

Last Friday Graham Red Cross organization started its drive for membership enrollment for the ensuing year. Committees from the Parent-Teacher Association and the Grade Mothers of Graham School made the canvass. They are grateful for the hearty response given.

One-half of the receipts will be retained and used by the local chapter in relief work.

Doubtless there are others who would like to have a part in the splendid work that is done by the Red Cross. Any such can hand their contributions to the president, Mrs. J. J. Henderson, or the treasurer, Mr. Chas. A. Scott, at the National Bank of Alamance.

If you have a sweet corn patch in your garden and live in the corn-borer infested area, see that all the left-over corn fodder is completely burned, stubble and all. A small patch can provide enough borers to infest the whole community next season.

Potatoes for table use should be stored where it is dark. Exposure to light quickly injures their food quality.

Cow Comfort.

Cow Needs Care In Winter Months For Paying Results.

Extra food cannot be substituted for shelter. For the comfortable cow is the profitable cow. When the animals are exposed to wintry winds and rains, much of the feed goes to keep the bodies warm instead of to produce milk.

"Therefore, some effort should be made to keep the dairy cow comfortable during periods of disagreeable weather," says John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at State College. "Their stalls should be well lighted and properly ventilated but free from air currents. Ventilation is important but should be so arranged as to prevent the air currents from striking the cow's body. This is accomplished by making the sides of the barn or cow-shed tight and admitting fresh air through properly arranged windows."

Mr. Arey states that the practice of requiring the cow to wade through mud and ice for some distance to get drinking water is too common in the State and too expensive on the dairy industry. Such needless exposure chills the animal and prevents her from drinking the amount of water that she normally would consume. Normal milk, says Mr. Arey, contains 87 per cent water and a cow producing around 30 pounds of milk daily will need from 85 to 90 pounds of water each day. She will not drink this much on a cold day unless the supply is convenient and not too cold.

The dairy cow of high producing breeds is a creature of habit. Unusual treatment makes her nervous. If she is accustomed to a regular routine of feeding and care a change from this system will make her nervous and distrustful. She should never be run with horses or dogs nor treated roughly while being put in a barn. No other farm animal, says Mr. Arey, will give greater returns for good care than the cow and the herdsman who keeps his animals comfortable in winter will be amply repaid.

Death Rate Declines

There are some things in which a decline is a sign of health and a matter of pride. One of these is the death rate. North Carolina has just cause to be proud of the way in which she has gradually lowered her death rate. No investment pays bigger dividends than an investment in the conservation of public health. We have a State health department second to none in the nation. Whole-time country health officers now serve about one-half of the State's population.

The population of North Carolina in 1927 was larger by fifty thousand than it was in 1926, yet the official mortality statistics show that, while we had 34,562 deaths in 1926, we had only 32,917 in 1927. The rate per one hundred thousand population dropped from 1,209 to 1,136.

The decrease is accounted for by decrease in the death rates from influenza, pneumonia, diarrhea enteritis, tuberculosis, puerperal causes, typhoid fever, malaria. There was an increase in deaths from whooping cough, pellagra, and measles.

The following are the main causes of deaths, with the number for the year 1927 as reported by the Vital Statistics Division of the U. S. Department of Commerce. Diseases of the heart 3,858; nephritis 2,735; tuberculosis 2,578; congenital malformations and diseases of early infancy 2,481; cerebral hemorrhage and softening 2,189; pneumonia 2,186; accidents 1839 (motor car accidents leading with 503); cancer and other malignant tumors 1,458; diarrhea and enteritis 1,430; influenza 1,988; pellagra 671; whooping cough 624; puerperal causes 547; and paralysis 384. There were 280 deaths resulting from homicide, while 132 persons committed suicide. Deaths from other defined causes numbered 5,677, while deaths from unknown and ill-defined causes totaled 2,760.—News Letter.

Keep your timberland working. One of the outstanding reasons for the present low farm income is the large number of practically idle acres. Many of these have been stripped. Timberland is very different from oil, coal, or mineral land. When pumped or mined, these natural resources are gone forever. Timberlands, however, when rightly handled, can be kept producing successive crops of wood.
