

THE GLEANER

GRAHAM, N. C., AUG. 22, 1929.

LOCAL NEWS

School days will soon be here again—they are just around the corner.

A heavy rain and thunder storm passed over this section around 6 o'clock Monday afternoon, lasting about half an hour.

County Court last Monday showed great magnetic strength, the court room was packed like an old time August court of a generation and more ago, and at least 250 automobiles were parked within a block of the court house.

The coolness of Tuesday and Wednesday was no doubt due to a severe hail storm that visited Caswell county late Monday afternoon, striking almost the same section in some weeks ago. Reports are that much tobacco and other growing stuff was destroyed.

Mr. H. W. Fenton of R. W. Hartnett Co., printers' machinists, of Philadelphia, accompanied by Mrs. Fenton, spent last Thursday night here at Graham's New Hotel, Mrs. A. B. Nicholson, proprietor. They were out for a leisure vacation trip by motor, and were bound for the Western part of the State to see some of the wonderful scenery of the "Land of the Sky" of which they had heard so much but had never tasted. It was our pleasure to meet them, and it is hoped they will enjoy the trip to the fullest. We know they will not be disappointed when it comes to the grandeur of nature's handiwork in those parts.

Little James Dick Proctor, Jr., Died in Lumberton This Morning.

Relatives here this morning received the distressing news of the death of James Dick Proctor, Jr., aged about seven years, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. D. Proctor of Lumberton.

He became ill late Tuesday. The family physician was called and it was found the child had developed appendicitis complicated with a serious intestinal trouble. An operation was performed at the local hospital Wednesday morning and the child seemed to be doing as well as could be expected, but the end came about 10:50 o'clock this morning.

The funeral services will be held at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The friends here deeply sympathize with the family in their sore bereavement.

Only last Friday Mr. and Mrs. Proctor and children, returning from a week's stay in the Western part of the State, had dinner with Mrs. Proctor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Kernodle, and spent an hour or two. At that time all appeared to be in the best of health and were in fine spirits.

Party Off For Fox Hunt.

A party composed of Robt. V. Griffin, Sam T. and Craig Johnston, Phil S. Dixon, George Stafford, Arnold and Lexie Moore, Linney and A. D. Bailey, Ollie Terry, Maj. Coble, and others to join them later in the week, left here Monday morning for Lenoir County to engage in a chase of old reynard. They carried a pack of 33 beagles and a camping outfit. They will hunt in the vicinity of Kinston and around Seven Springs which is favorite hunting ground for the sportsmen of this section. Here's hoping them success and a good time.

Estlow-Walker

On Saturday morning last at 9 o'clock in the Presbyterian church, Miss Mary Estlow, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Grant Estlow, and Robt. L. Walker, both of Graham, were united in marriage, Rev. W. E. Harrop officiating. Only members of their immediate families and a few friends were present to witness the ceremony.

The bride and groom left at once by way of Natural Bridge and the Shenandoah Valley for Washington where they will visit Mrs. Walker's brother, Elmer Estlow. Returning they will visit her other brother, John W. Estlow, in Danville, and then take a trip to the Western part of the State.

Upon their return they will make their home in Graham. The many friends of the bride and groom wish them much happiness.

Over 200 persons took part in the annual farm tour held recently in Buncombe county.

Alamance Farmers Sell Registered Jerseys At Good Prices

The gang consisted of Roscoe Williams, John Henry Thomas, James Williams, Melvin McClinton, Ed. Huston, Elsie Page and Beatrice Thomas, claiming Greensboro and Winston-Salem as their homes. McClinton and Huston will do 12 months time and the other 10 mos. each.

The court disposed of a number of other cases which entailed road sentences and fines.

State college opens for the fall term on Friday, September, 20.

Agree On Program To Improve Dairying

Farmers, dairymen and extension workers have agreed on an eight-point dairy program to be followed during the next five years in building the dairy industry of this state.

The eight points of this program are:

- 1—Produce an adequate amount of dairy products for the home and local markets.
- 2—Raise the average milk production of the North Carolina cow.
- 3—Encourage official testing.
- 4—Produce quality dairy products.
- 5—Encourage creameries, milk plants and cheese factories where needed.
- 6—Encourage dairy research.
- 7—Encourage a more general use of good dairy equipment.
- 8—Make dairy farming permanent.

In commenting on this program, John A. Arey dairy extension specialist, says that the present production of dairy products in North Carolina, especially butter and cheese, is far below local demands. The average milk production of the cows in the State is around 3,600 pounds a year which is too low for profit. At least 65 percent of the dairy sires now in use are grades or scrubs; and cows do not get enough grain and legume hay. At least one acre of good pasture is needed for each mature cow and this is not available at this time.

But he especially urges those farmers who go into the dairy business to stay in it, rather than get in one year when cotton and tobacco are low in price and out the first time these crops pay a profit. Dairy farming is not an emergency measure for low priced tobacco or cotton. It is a permanent farm industry and may be used to supplement cotton and tobacco farming with excellent results.

Build Laying Houses For Maturing Pullets

The North Carolina poultry year begins on November 1 and closes on October 31 of the following year. Most poultry records are kept between these two dates.

"If the new poultry laying house for the crop of pullets now maturing on the range is built at once, the owner will have time to get the pullets into the house by November 1," says Dr. B. F. Kaupp, head of the poultry department at the State college. "Those who wish to build new houses may get a plan of construction from either the agricultural editor or the poultry department of the college. These plans are available for houses of the size to take care of flocks ranging from 125 to 500 hens."

Where there is a suitable laying house built, it should be looked over carefully and repaired as needed. Especially, should the roof be carefully repaired and all leaks stopped, says Dr. Kaupp. Wet floors mean sick birds and sick birds do not lay winter eggs. Yet winter eggs are the ones that pay the highest profits. The walls need to be tight so that no drafts are allowed to blow on the birds. Drafts usually mean colds and possibly an attack or roup and this also reduces profits.

The laying house should face to the south and drop curtains are needed for the opening to keep out cold winds, rains and snow. Such curtains may be made very economically by ripping open old feed bags and lacing them with baling wire at the top and bottom so that they may be pushed back during the day and closed on cold nights.

For convenience in knowing what size to build the new laying house, Dr. Kaupp says that one 20 by 24 feet will accommodate from 125 to 150 hens. The college has blue prints available for different sized houses and will be glad to send these to prospective builders. Most of the county farm agents have copies of these blue prints however and it might be wise to consult the county agent before ordering a plan.

Potato growers of Avery county sold 633 bushels of No. 1 tubers to the Soldiers home at Jackson City, Tennessee.

Eighty-eight Alamance county farmers inspected the clover and hay fields of Rowan county on a recent tour.

Bermuda grass may be controlled by planting a heavy seeding of common lespedeza over the infested field, says L. E. Stewart of Cabarrus county.

Edmund Aycock, 4-H club member from Wayne county, has been invited by the United States Department of Agriculture to talk over a national chain broadcast by 31 stations from Washington at 1:30 o'clock, Saturday, September 7.

NELSON-GRAHAM ROAD

New Stretch of Highway, Just Opened, Cuts Distance Between Raleigh and Greensboro To 73 Miles While Highway 10 Route Was 86 Miles.

Highway No. 54, from Graham to Nelson, should prove popular with the traveling public as the distance between the two towns is much shorter than highway 10, by way of Durham. R. W. Madry, of Chapel Hill, under date of August 10, writes to the Greensboro News as follows:

The entire stretch of the state highway between Nelson and Graham was opened for traffic this week, and as a result the University of North Carolina was brought into much closer touch with the state and the nation.

The distance from Chapel Hill to Greensboro is now only 45 miles, whereas it formerly was 56. This new stretch of highway will divert a great deal of travel north and south that formerly passed through Durham, Hillsboro, Mebane and Haw River. In fact, it is now nearer from Durham to Greensboro via Chapel Hill than by the old route.

Raleigh-Greensboro Closer
By way of Chapel Hill it is now only 73 miles from Raleigh to Greensboro, whereas by way of Durham the distance is 86 miles.

The shortest route to points south for travelers coming via Durham will also be by way of Chapel Hill. The distance from Chapel Hill to Charlotte via Graham and Greensboro is now only 138 miles, whereas it used to be 155. Thus the northern route to Charlotte now becomes shorter than the southern route which goes by way of Pittsboro and Aberdeen. The distance from Chapel Hill to Charlotte via the southern route is 150 miles, whereas with this new road to Graham the distance via the northern route is only 138 miles. Of course the traffic on the northern route is heavier and there are more towns.

In Excellent Shape.
This new Nelson-Graham highway is in excellent shape. The section from Nelson to Chapel Hill, which intersects the Durham-Raleigh highway about 10 miles east of Durham, was recently tarred. The first 15 miles of the section from Chapel Hill to Graham is sand-clay and the last 10 miles is cement. The three miles from Graham to Burlington is all cement.

From Chapel Hill to Graham there are no towns to slow up traffic. In fact there is only one red light encountered all the way from Chapel Hill to Greensboro. It is on the main street in Graham. The red lights in Burlington may be avoided easily by following the paved street that bears to the left.

as one enters the town from the east. In coming from the west one should turn to the right at the hotel corner.

The opening of this road should prove a great boost to attendance at Carolina's home football games this season. It will be a matter of only 45 minutes to get from Raleigh to Chapel Hill or approximately an hour to get from Greensboro to Chapel Hill. This in turn means that Chapel Hill will be much more accessible to people from all over this and adjoining states.

Scotland county farmers are having a hard time finding seed with which to plant their stubble lands. Magnesium limestone is proving its value to the tobacco farmers of Martin county this year. Where sandrrown occurs, nearly every field where this limestone was not used, is affected.

Two hundred farmers and business men of Granville county made a farm tour of the county recently.

The peanut crop of Edgecombe county is reported to be above the average this summer.

Hens on which records were kept by 42 farmers last month paid a net profit of 22 1/2 cents each for the month.
