

THE GLEANER

GRAHAM, N. C., FEB. 4, 1932.

ISSUED EVERY THURSDAY.

J. D. KERNODLE, Editor.

$1.00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

British and American battle ships are standing by in Chinese waters, in the event their subjects are endangered by the war raging between Japan and China.

At the League of Nations Council now in session at Geneva, Switzerland, Japan has 100 delegates according to press reports. That should be sufficient to take care of her war program, if members shall be a deciding factor.

James J. Davis, Republican Senator from Pennsylvania, seeking re-election, comes out for a change in the Volstead act and favors State liquor control. That sentiment for a change in the Volstead act is growing is apparent.

Andrew W. Mellon has given up the treasury portfolio and has accepted the appointment of ambassador to the Court of St. James, succeeding Chas. G. Dawes, resigned. Mr. Mellon is financially able to "put over" anything socially that the position may need or desire.

February is notable in anniversaries relative to presidents of the United States. On the 3rd, 1923, Woodrow Wilson died, on the 12th, 1809, Abraham Lincoln was born, and on the 22nd, 1732, George Washington was born. Three who had a very conspicuous part in the three greatest military events in which the United States has ever been engaged.

A report from Raleigh indicates that the sale of auto license plates during January was around 24,000 less than a year ago, which means at least, a temporary loss of revenue to the state of about $360,000. Many of them will be licensed before the half-year is out. But this is not all—people who own automobiles buy gas and drive them. The loss in revenue to the state from gas sales tax, at a low average will amount to $40,000 or more for one month. That will not be made up. Hence there is a valid reason for curtailing road building and maintenance costs.

That a defendant in the County Court was given a term of 60 days on the roads for failing to comply with a judgment of the Court is a little puzzling. Nearly four months before the said defendant was convicted of disposing of mortgaged property. The court gave him a suspended sentence of 60 days on the roads, provided he pay the court costs and $12.00, no more, in satisfaction of the mortgage. The Court, no doubt, would have prolonged its leniency if he had paid any amount of the sum adjudged against him. But there is no evidence that he had done so. Perhaps he could get no work; perhaps he did not try to get any. It either indicates that there was no work for the man, or that he was too slothful in his efforts or that he was wholly indifferent as to results. If it had been shown that he had made an honest effort to get work and failed, no doubt the probation would have been extended.

A six percent dividend was paid to the stockholders of the Durham Farmers' Mutual Exchange last week and an additional one percent, patronage dividend was paid to both stockholders and non-stockholders on business done through the association.

JUST ONE THING AFTER ANOTHER

By Carl Goerch

"Let's," I suggested to my wife last Monday afternoon, "go over to Greenville and hear Galli-Curci sing."

She was agreeable to the suggestion, so over to Greenville we went. Carl-Goeerchi to see Galli-Curci. How perfectly euphonious!

She's a fine looking woman, is Galli. And when it comes to singing, she can just naturally make you sit up and scratch the back of your neck. There are three people in her party. There's herself and then there's her pianist, Homer Samuels, and also Raymond Williams, the flutist.

Raymond Williams, He's the guy I'd like to be. Talk about your ideal jobs, he has it. There are two numbers on Galli's program during which he appears on the stage to accompany her with his flute. Just two. Imagine going through life and having to confine one's daily labors to two selections on the flute! Could anything be more ideal?

Toot-toot-toodle-oo, and half a day's work is done. Toot-toot-toodle-oo, and another half day's work is done. Nothing, to do until tomorrow. I wish I'd learned to play the flute when I was a boy. I didn't though. I learned to play the typewriter and I somehow or other, my day's work never seems to be done.

Galli came out and sang for her first number Deh Piu a me, (1872-1154) Eucroneci. It was very good. Her second number was Chi vuol la zingarella (1741-1816), Paisiello. There's a fine word for you—zingarella. I'm going to call my wife that the next time I get mad with her. You dog-goned old zingarella you! Then came a whole lot of other numbers in rapid succession, ranging from Maggioletta (1879), Donizetti to Les Lilles de Cadix, Delibes.

There's no use talking, Galli can sing. She can ramble around in the basement and then, all of a sudden, shoot right up into the attic. Once or twice she even went up on the roof. Everybody applauded Mr. Samuels for playing the piano and then applauded Mr. Williams for playing the flute. I couldn't help but wonder if Mr. Williams ever got weary and wr. out over his strenuous work. Imagine having to play TWO selections on the flute! One, it seems to me, he'd have been enough, but then, perhaps he gets time and a half for the second selection.

Why come to think of it, that man can get up at 8:30 p. m., stay up until 12 p. m. and do his whole day's work in that length of time. What a life!

There's only one objection that I have to Galli's singing. It is impossible to understand a single word she says. She could have sung, "Carl, come up here and I'll give you ten thousand dollars," and I wouldn't have paid any attention to her. I'd have continued to sit right there in my seat, wondering about the meaning of O del mio amato ben (1879), Donaudy.

I wonder if Mr. Williams hires somebody to carry his flute for him as he travels over the country.

At the conclusion of the program, a whole lot of folks went down in front to shake hands with Galli and to congratulate her upon her splendid program she had rendered.

"Let's go down," I suggested to my wife.

"What do you want to go down for?" she wanted to know.

"I want to ask her a question," I explained.

"What kind of a question?"

"Never mind."

"What kind of a question?" she insisted.

"I want to find out whether she sings while she's in the bath-tub," I finally admitted.

We didn't go down in front. Just the same I'd give anything to know whether she does or not. And whether Mr. Williams accompanies her on the flute if she does.

I like good music. Mrs. Curci has what is known as a colored soprano voice. It is very beautiful. My personal preference, though, is a deep bass voice. There's nothing gives me a greater thrill than to sit in an audience and have some big, fat, serious-faced man bear down on "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." I can always feel my liver sinking when he gets down to that last line of "r-r-r-ocked in the cr-cradle of the (long pause) dee-dee-deep."

Galli, however, stuck to her soprano. I don't believe she's so much when it comes to singing bass.

All three of them—Galli-Curci, Mr. Samuels and Mr. Williams, came out at the conclusion of their program and took their bows. They smiled and seemed to be gloriously happy over the reception which had been accorded them. All except Mr. Williams. He looked sort of weary.

News Notes of Week on Alamance Farms.

Alamance Farmers Cooperate in Rat Control Campaign.

Over 160 Alamance County Farmers are engaged in the Rat Control Campaign which was started Thursday of last week. Realizing the enormous damage that rats are doing, these men are cooperating with the County Agent and the Bureau of Biological Survey in putting out cooperative Rat Bait. If the campaign is successful this year it is expected that a campaign will be conducted during the fall of each year hereafter.

Sheep Breeders Study Better Methods.

Mr. L. I. Case, Extension Sheep Specialist, spent Monday and Tuesday of last week in the County assisting sheep growers with their problems. Ten sheep growers were visited and advised as to better methods of feeding, breeding, etc. Mr. Case recommended the following approved practices for Alamance sheep growers:

1. Use of better rams.
2. Winter feeding of good legume hay and some grain.
3. Winter pastures, as rye, etc.
4. Disease control.

Sheep should occupy a more important place on Alamance County farms than they do at present. Most farmers in the County could support from 15 to 20 sheep which would greatly increase the farm income.

Pomona Grange Meeting.

The Alamance County Pomona Grange held its regular quarterly meeting at the Alexander Wilson school Monday night of last week. Eighteen new members from various Subordinate Granges of the County were taken in at this time. Each Subordinate Grange in the County reported on the number of new members secured since last fall. The Pleasant Grove Grange and the Elton Grange each had secured seventeen new members. Reports of all the Subordinate Granges showed much progress being made. The important feature of the program was the selection of the degree team. This team will be instructed in the degree work and will instruct Grange members in the fifth degree in other sections of the State.

The Russian Effort

Within the past two or three years another disturbing element has come into the picture. Soviet Russia is attempting a comeback fraught with possibility that cannot yet be fully evaluated. Russia is eagerly utilizing the very latest of scientific knowledge to enlarge her agricultural possibilities. With feverish anxiety she is literally pouring millions into the expansion of her university research institutes, experimental stations and breeding farms. Her scientists are combing the earth for new crops and new methods. No country in Europe is manifesting more interest and activity in laying hold of the best science, wherever it may be found.

It is of more than passing interest that the wheat yields reported on the huge trust farm known as the "Giant" ran last year as much as 18 bushels to the acre. On this single farm the crop harvested is reported to have been 3,865,000 bushels. A single farm of 427,000 acres under government control and mechanized as fast as human energy can be applied is a new factor in the world's picture.

There can be but little doubt that the Russian situation may yet assume quite a different attitude from what obtained even in pre-war days.

Bankers Hold Farm Conference

A "feeders' conference" was held in a state bank at Probo, South Dakota, attended by fifty farmers. The conference stressed the feeding of low price wheat and barley, and marketing it through livestock. Later, booklets on the feeding of wheat were distributed among the farmers, and a feeders' column was carried in the local paper each week.

"We have had more success with this conference and with the feeders' column in the local paper, than with any other undertaking we have tried," the bankers said. "As a result there is about three times as much livestock being fed out in our territory than ever before. We plan to hold other similar conferences the coming year."

The benefits of civilization exist because of the capital accumulated by those who have gone before. Through accumulation of capital our great railroads have been constructed, our public utilities have been built and our mills, office buildings and homes have been built.

GIVES NATIONAL ECONOMIC PLAN

By ROME C. STEPHENSON

Former President American Bankers Association.

WE hear much of future economic planning to save the nation from a repetition of depression and promote more stable business activity. I know no better plan to suggest to insure future better times than that every wage earner, every family and every business throughout the country lay down as soon as they are able a program of proper savings as the foundation of their financial policy.

I know of no better plan than this to build for the nation as a whole a stronger economic situation,—that is, through a common structure of individual working, earning and saving. And I know of no better plan to revive activity in a depression than to spend a proper volume of past savings to keep the momentum of business going. But unless there are savings in prosperity there cannot be spending during depression.

Those who practiced this plan during the past period of prosperity have a security and a protection against present adversity that could be provided in no other way. Those who did not are the ones who are now most dependent upon others. If there had been more preaching of this doctrine when it was more feasible to put it into effect than it is now, there would be less depression and less financial insecurity today.

However, while there should have been more emphasis on savings during prosperity, a measure of the emphasis today might properly be the other way,—at least to the extent that those who can safely do so may well increase their spending instead of overdoing their saving. While many have seen their earnings fall, there are millions who have not suffered so seriously in respect to the real purchasing power of their incomes. If we listened to all the scare stories of the day, one might get the impression that everybody was out of a job and nobody's business was earning anything. Many of our people who are able to continue a normal program of prudent buying are curtailing their expenditures beyond reason.

Under authority of a Mortgage Deed, bearing date of the 17th day of April, 1919, executed by Charles F. Boswell and wife, Lessie Boswell, to the undersigned, Thomas Byrd, which Mortgage Deed is recorded at the office of the Register of Deeds of Alamance County in Book of Mortgages No. 69, at page 521, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness thereon secured, the undersigned Mortgagee will, on
