Prune Bush Roses in Early Spring

The best time to prune bush roses in North Carolina is after the winter freezes are over and before growth starts in early spring.

This recommendation will apply to all the common bush roses such as the Teas, Hybrid teas and Hybrid Perpetuals," says Glenn O. Randall, floriculturist at State College. "One of the most common errors committed in pruning roses is that they are not pruned severely enough. This is true particularly for the Teas and Hybrid-teas. Varieties in these classes should be pruned to from 2 to 6 buds with the exact number of buds depending on the vigor of the variety. The most vigorous varieties should be pruned less severely. Pruning stimulates plant growth and if the weaker bushes are more severely pruned, within reasonable limits, the resulting growth will be better."

Randall points out that many persons prune their roses in the fall and sometimes heavy freezes occur to kill back the plants after they have been pruned. It is better, to wait until after all freezing weather is over and then to do the pruning. All weak and diseased canes should be removed completely and only 2 to 4 canes left. These are then pruned back to the number of buds recommended.

Pruning roses properly has much to do with the vigor of the plants, the size of the blooms and the length of the stems.

Fertilizer Mixture For Early Irish Potatoes.

Experiments conducted with Irish potatoes in eastern North Carolina during the past five years have shown the value of a mixture of 7 percent phosphoric acid, 5 percent nitrogen and 5 percent potash. E. B. Morrow, extension horticulturist at North Carolina State College, says, "Mr. Morrow also emphasizes the value of fine dolomitic limestone as a filler in the place of sand. The limestone has a beneficial action on the land and may be considered as an important ingredient of the fertilizer. He gives two formulas for the 7-5-5 mixture, one prepared commercially and the other mixed at home. Both are good, he says but the use of limestone in the home mixture gives an added merit. One ton of the commercial mixture is composed of the following materials: nitrate of soda, 222 lbs. sulphate of ammonia, 167 pounds cottonseed meal, 556 pounds - the three of which give 100 pounds of nitrogen; superphosphate, 478 lbs. which, along with the cottonseed meal, gives 140 pounds of phosphoric acid; and muriate of potash, 184 lbs. which gives approximately 100 pounds of potash. The cottonseed meal also contributes a part of the potash. Eighty-three pounds of sand for filler completes the ton. In the home mixture, the nitrogen is carried in the nitrate of soda, 200 pounds; sulphate of ammonia, 200 pounds; and cottonseed meal, 500 pounds. The phosphoric acid is contained in the 500 of superphosphate. One hundred lbs. of muriate of potash provide the bulk of potash required. And 100 pounds of dolomitic limestone are used to make the filler. Mr. Morrow will supply definite information about potato fertilizer to any grower requesting further details.

Timely Farm Questions Answered At State College

Question - Does roup kill chickens? Answer - The disease is not necessarily fatal but in acute cases the birds rarely respond to treatment and should be destroyed. Where the disease is not acute all birds showing any symptoms should be isolated and given Epsom salts - one-half a pound to each one hundred adult birds. The salts should be dissolved in the drinking water. The eyes of each bird should then be cleaned with a piece of soft cotton and treated with a ten percent solution of argyrol.

Question - Can beef be preserved on the farm? Answer - Yes. Any part of a carcass may be preserved by corning. Cut the beef into five or six pound pieces and rub with salt. Pack these chunks in a clean vessel of stoneware or hardwood and cover with a pickle made of 1 to 2 pounds of salt, 1 ounce of salt peter, one quart pound of sugar or syrup and one gallon of pure water. Allow the meat to stand in this pickle for about two weeks. It may then be smoked lightly to improve the flavor or it may be allowed to hang some time. This causes the meat to dry out well and is known as dried beef.

Question - How much will a farmer receive for reducing his cotton production? Answer - This depends as to the amount of lint cotton production in 1928, to 1932, inclusive. The average production per acre for this period is taken as a basis and payments at the rate of three and one-half cents a pound will be made on the average total amount of production. The first payment of one-half of the amount due will be made between March 1 and April 30, 1933 with the second half payable between August 1 and September 30, 1933.
