CAMILLE came running into the house where her fragile little aunt sat alone in a sunny window, her fingers busy with some dainty needle-Agatha Andrews lifted her work quiet gray eyes and saw the dark sparkling beauty of the girl, the rich coloring of youth and perfect healthand radiant joy.

"Austie, I've had a darling time!" punctuate life's sad story. cried Camilla breathlessly whirling into a chair. "Guess who was thereand I met him I" she ended ecstatically.

Agatha Andrews turned hep fair face and looked out into the flower garden which seemed to waver uncertainly before her hurt eyes; all the distance. ssom seemed to nod their heads and say, "I told you so-I told you so-some day-'

"You are not listening!" reproached the girl, for this aunt was mother and father to her and had been for many years since a fatal accident had de prived the child of both parents. "You haven't heard a word-I met cuch an important person at the garden party we made heaps of money for the hospital-and he looked and looked at me until he seemed to realize that he was being rude; then Andy introduced him to me! Auntle, I have made a real conquest!"

"Goose," smiled Agatha, "Behold - the governor's future lady-"

"Camilla !" Miss Andrews had risen and was staring at her niece with wide, startled eyes in her white face. What do you mean?"

"Nothing but my foolishness, dear," explained Camilla contritely. "I real-17 did meet the governor himself and e was charming to me. He is coming to call tomorrow afternoon and we must have tea in the garden."

"Of course-" faltered Agatha

"He asked after you, auntle, said he knew you years ago, when you were my age; he said there was a resem-Andy was frightfully lealous of him. Isn't he distinguished looking, and so calm and reserved with the twinkly look in his blue eyes? I adore him !" Camilla suddenly subsided in her changeable way, and looked dreamily into the gathering twilight.

"You mustn't hurt Andy's feelings, Camilla," advised Agatha in a troubled volce; "you know how devoted he is." "He seems so young and immature beside Governor Frayne. I told him so," she ended frankly. "Told-Andy?" "Yes," carelessly "on the way home.

fault we all get over some day !" Camilla laughed and kissed her warmly, but the slim finger where Andy's diamond had proudly gleamed was quite bare. The next afternoon Camilla made preparations for serving tea in the rose-bowered veranda. Miss Andrews had silently belped her, making a loaf of very special pound cake that her mother used to bake. She gave the girl carte blanche where the china closet was concerned, and the consequence was that many bits of old china saw the light for the first time in many years. BOOKLET ON FARM CREDIT

A booklet has been published Ly the Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association, on "Factors Affecting Farm Credit," for the purpose of furthering on a national scale the taking of farm inventories and the making of credit statements as sponsored by the commission in cooperation ith the state colleges of agriculture and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The goal is better relationships between farmers and their banks. The booklet is devoted to the types of loans generally required by farmers, the need for farm credit, how it can be obtained, when it is safe to borrow, what principles to follow to establish credit in advance of needs, and how both the leader and borrower are interested in sound, productive farm credit.
