Safety Conference

On May 20-21 the 8th Annual Statewide Safety Conference will be held in Winston-Salem, Gov. Hoey opening and making initial address.

The conference will cover the field of industrial life as well as all modes of travel and transportation. In all a higher degree of safety is the aim for those using the device as well as the public.

When one speaks of safety, naturally the operation of automobiles is the first thought, but it must be remembered that there is more or less hazard in the operation of every mechanical device. The Conference is to cover all.

As a curb, all cannot follow the suggestion of the California college president, Dr. C. F. Cheverton, in regard to automobiles—incarcerate them 10, 30 or 60 days as a means of punishing the violators of the law, the same as disarming a man likely to make harmful use of a gun.

Pie With A Twang

From reports down Raleigh way the distribution of political favors is causing some discordant notes.

The supporters of "Sandy" Graham in the first primary feel that they are not getting a square deal, in that, had they not rallied to Mr. Hoey in the second primary, another than Mr. Hoey would have been governor; and now that they helped in a time of dire need, when favors are being distributed, they are left dangling in the air. The treatment seems to be making a sore spot—naturally it would, when and if overtures were made.

Mr. Hoey is at the throttle now, but there are enough of those who were not with him in the first run-off to make his going a little precarious. Faith unkept in politics is no more excusable than elsewhere.

George VI Crowned

The crowning of George VI in London Wednesday was a world event. It was witnessed by millions. Thousands from all quarters of the globe flocked to London to look on. The ceremony went off without a hitch.

It would have been the crowning day of Edward VII, had he not preferred the love of Wallis Warfield to being King. During the event he was in seclusion in France, "listening in", but doing nothing to mar the brilliant event for his brother.

Edward's wedding day is now a matter of interest. The British government is opposed to the royal family having any part in it. The family think and feel otherwise. Blood is thicker than water.

Exceedingly Scarce

Speaking about the appointments to office being made by Gov. Hoey, the Roxboro Courier naively observes: "You will find men in office who have not served well and faithfully his party just about as scarce as perspiration on the face of the WPA workers."

Tragedy of the Hindenberg

Last Thursday evening as the great Zeppelin Hindenberg was settling down for anchorage at Lakehurst Field, New Jersey, she burst into flames, and fell to earth a burning, roaring inferno.

She had aboard 36 passengers and 61 members of the crew. The fatalities are about equally divided between passengers and crew. One person was caught and lost his life by the falling craft. The death toll aggregated 35. The Hindenberg had made around 20 trips over the Atlantic, and she was considered proof against weather conditions. But she floated, filled with inflammable gas, and this was her Nemesis.

A number of other lighter-than-air queens of the sky ways have come to grief, and with appalling fatalities, but this is the first German-operated airship to have had a passenger fatality.

Though nothing man made is indestructible, yet undaunted he starts over again, and other dirigibles will be built, perhaps safer than any heretofore produced.

The President is back in Washington from his fishing holiday in the Gulf of Mexico, but finds his court reorganizing plans no nearer a settlement than when he left. With supreme courage, or something else, he refuses any compromise. The fact is Congress rubber-stamped everything he proposed for four years and it "spoiled" him. He will not be permitted to remake in a year the fundamentals which real statesmen spent years in making and that have stood the test for a century and a half.

The Passing of a Landmark

To make room for the new Chevrolet salesroom and garage under construction next to the Oneida Mills on W. Harden street, one of the oldest dwellings in Graham was razed. We believe it was known as a McMurray home. However that may be, at one time it served as a manse for the Presbyterian church, being immediately across the street from the church. Back in the early 80's and earlier, Rev. B. W. Mebane, the then pastor of the church resided there. As time rolls on, the old landmarks vanish, until now there remains less than a dozen of them in the original or modified forms as they were in antebellum days.

The Making of Skeptics

Is it any wonder that there are skeptics? They said the Hindenberg was "disaster-proof"; the Titanic was "unsinkable"; America was "too proud to fight" in the world war; Mr. Hoover's election would assure continuance of "prosperity"; Mr. Hoey couldn't be elected governor of North Carolina over opposition of "radical" Democrats; Italy wouldn't dare rape and subject Ethiopia for fear of other European powers; that Goliath would surely chop little David into mince-meat; that Edward would never quit the throne of the British empire for a woman; and that Brother Noah would never need a boat.—Greensboro Record.

A new milk route, started in Polk county less than ten months ago, is now picking up about sixty gallons a day from thirteen farmers.

America's first globe map factory was founded by James Wilson at Brantford, Vt., in 1813.

Colder Months Best To Grow Hay Crops

Success usually smiles on the dairy farmer who grows his hay crop during the winter and early spring months, according to F. R. Farnham, extension dairy specialist at State College.

This plan, to a large extent, overcomes failures often encountered due to a lack of rainfall when summer grown hay has been depended upon.

Farnham says farmers have found that winter cereal hay crops provide an excellent roughage if cut at the right time. Most authorities now agree that the correct time to harvest small grains and legumes found in the mixture for cereal hay crops comes when this hay contains the largest quantity of digestible nutrients.

Therefore, says Farnham, it has been established that the stage of maturity will determine the nutritive value of the hay when cut. When plants are permitted to become over-ripe, the fibre content increases and the protein decreases.

Cows do not relish over-ripe hay of this type if it has been stored over a period of several months, and will not produce as much milk when fed such hay.

For winter hay crops, such as oats, wheat, barley, vetch, and Austrian winter peas, the bloom is the best indicator known for time of cutting. Harvest the hay at the end of the bloom period, Farnham advises.

When harvested at this time, the hay is palatable, high in protein, and will provide valuable roughage for dairy cows.

Old Age Pension

About the last notoriety achieved by Dr. Townsend was on the day he was sentenced to jail for contempt of a Committee of Congress. What happened about that sentence nobody knows, but the good old doctor never saw the inside of the jail, and it is not likely that he ever will. Imprisonment for him is apparently as remote as possible favorable action by Congress concerning his plan. To all appearances the scheme is defunct.

In passing it is of interest to realize that victory for old-age pensions is no longer a matter of doubt. The whole political machinery of the Government appears to favor such a system of pensioning, to include everybody who is not self-sustaining beyond the age of sixty-five.

A COMMON PHILOSOPHY

Roses are to cheer and not to scorn.

Love is not to play with but to work with.

The failures of most people are on the inside.

God will not come in until other personalities go out.

Trouble is given to climb over and not to sink under.

Some people flit from pleasure to pleasure as the humming bird flits from flower to flower.

No one who lives like a fool can hope to end like a king.

Untroubled life never realizes mighty achievements.

The places one goes soon become places one stays.

When a vocation is made too easy, society will not receive the most good.

Encourage Home Production Says Senator Ellender

Urges Farmers to Spend Money At Home

In a recent message to farmers U. S. senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, member of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, points out that there is an available source of nitrogen manufactured in this country—in Virginia, and further that part of the raw material required in the manufacture of American made nitrate of soda is produced in Louisiana. He says:

"Formerly all of our nitrates had to be imported. For this we sent large sums of money abroad each year. By using the domestic nitrate of soda, commonly known as the 'Arcadian', we can now keep this money in our country, employ our own people in its production, and thereby encourage industry at home.

"As the price of all nitrate of soda is the same and as field tests at our own experimental stations show one to be as good as the other, I urge our people to use the domestic made product."

Women Interested in Radio Recipes.

Farm women are always interested in timely recipes, specialists of the Home Demonstration Division at State College have discovered.

As an example, nearly 100 requests for preserving strawberries came in after Mrs. Cornelia C. Morris, extension economist in food conservation and marketing, gave a talk on the Carolina Farm Features program over Station WPTF, Raleigh, in which she mentioned several recipes.

With the strawberry season flourishing, farm homemakers are interested in preserving some of the fruit for use during those months when fruits and berries are scarce. Mimeographed directions for conserving the berries were sent to all those who had requested the recipes.

Mrs. Morris and others in the department expressed themselves as being well pleased with the response which has been shown by farm women to the weekly home demonstration program heard each Thursday.

Raymond Earl Dann and Evon Brinson were crowned King and Queen of Health in Pamlico county at a recent 4-H Achievement Day.

Don't let your cotton RUST

ADD EXTRA POTASH in your top-dresser

"Healthy cotton and varying degrees of cotton rust."

THERE was more cotton rust in the South last year than ever before reported. Have you checked on the fertilizer you applied at planting and made sure that it contained enough potash to carry your cotton through to a full crop and the profits you expect this year? It is not too late to add the extra potash recommended by experiment stations to control rust and reduce wilt. Use a nitrogen-potash top-dresser which will apply 50-100 pounds of muriate of potash per acre and make the application immediately after chopping. Consult your county agent or experiment station on your soil requirements. See your fertilizer manufacturer or dealer about nitrogen-potash top-dressers. Write us for further information.
