Liquor Stores

The necessary number of petitioners here have been secured and the County Board of Elections has called an election for Tuesday, June 29th, to give the voters the opportunity to say whether Alamance County shall or shall not have liquor stores where liquor may be legally sold.

North Carolina has had open barrooms and "bone dry" prohibition, dispensaries, and prohibition under an amendment to the constitution of the United States, but, as a matter of fact, has never been dry only in theory.

Mention is made of an organized effort, which has not been perfected, to work against approval of liquor stores.

The liquor question has more than one side from an economical standpoint, depending on the angle from which one looks at it.

Liquor is produced legally in the United States and pays the government a revenue tax. It is sold in this State and pays no tax, except in the few counties in which the sale is legalized. In other counties the "bootlegger" sells it and pays no tax. In the bootleg territory, whatever of crime is charged to liquor, the tax payer foots the bills for apprehending and convicting the law breakers.

National prohibition was a failure and the constitutional amendment was repealed. State laws have failed to attain their purpose, and now it is proposed to try other means—through liquor stores—to control the sale.

At no time, under any law that has been passed, has there been a time when the liquor thirsty could not get what he wanted.

If liquor stores are favored and opened, it is as certain as day follows night, that there will not be less drinking and drunkenness, but more, we verily believe.

Liquor stores are but another experiment to manage an existing evil that can be combated only through the preaching, teaching and practicing of temperance.

Today is the 162nd anniversary of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, if the history books are correct. Years ago the date was a big day for Charlotte and the occasion of a flood of patriotic eloquence. In these latter years the day has been practically overlooked; that is, has not had the prominence it deserved. There needs to be a big revival of patriotism "lest we forget" the struggle and sacrifice of the founders that their children and children's children might have greater freedom and better living conditions. On this anniversary Senator Reynolds is the orator at the dedication of the municipal stadium, but Senator Reynolds, no doubt, after paying his compliments to the new stadium and those who backed the enterprise, will avail himself of a fine opportunity to say something about the Declaration and extol the brave men who dared to do it.

Her Royal Highness

The Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield, (the Simpson has been dropped) have fixed June 3rd, his father's birth date, for the date of their marriage. They will be married in France without the presence of any of the royalty. Immediately upon their marriage Mrs. Warfield will become "Her Royal Highness" and the ranking 8th lady of the realm.

Edward was determined and won. His family stood with him against the Church and the Ministry.

Perhaps there was policy in acceding to the demands of Edward. It is possible for him, strong-willed and popular, to exercise an influence behind the curtains.

Looks Like Failure

Mr. Roosevelt's Court reorganization program appears to be crumbling. He went off on a fishing jaunt. Almost his last words on leaving were "no compromise." With a little time to think, calmly and deliberately, the judiciary committee made up its mind and reported adversely on the bill. In the meantime Justice Willis Van Devanter, 78-year-old dean of the court, prepared his resignation to be effective June 2nd.

The resignation and the adverse report at the same time was a jolt. An adversely reported bill has a hard time getting by. Besides there was no evidence of a growing demand for the proposed reorganization. The way appears clear now for the opposition to do whatever is reasonable and leave the Supreme Court an untrammelled, independent branch of the Government and not the mouthpiece of anyone man or group.

Debts and Economy

By J. E. Jones

Washington, D. C., May 15, 37.—The national debt has now reached $35,000,000,000 for the first time in history. On Capitol Hill in Washington legislative work is almost at a standstill. The demands on Congress for appropriations would increase the public debt by extra billions. If Congressmen had the nerve that its members claim to possess they would promptly kill the Supreme Court scheme that President Roosevelt laid in their laps. Congress actually is not in favor of the plan to pack the Court. Congress, under-the-hide, would like to reduce the public debt, practice economy and meet the budget—but Congress hasn't started any such program thus far.

The large cities are still crying out for Federal relief. They have tremendous power. And they know how to lobby? Evidently the balance of the country wants to control its own relief affairs. That's the news—as it appears in Washington.

A bi-party bloc is gaining strength in Congress, and influential democrats and republicans are back of proposals, such as the bill by senator King, democrat of Utah—a measure that would dismantle WPA as a federal project and appropriate about $850,000,000 to which the States would contribute between 25 to 50 percent for relief work, to be carried on by local authorities.

One hears a good deal in Washington these days to the effect that the people in local communities feel that "emergency" relief days are over, and that the system should not be made "permanent."

After all, approximately two-thirds of all members of the House and Senate come from districts outside the metropolitan sections, and they can represent their constituencies any time they want to live up to their pledges to the voters who elected them.

Question—What is the best time to apply nitrogen to corn and cotton as a side dressing?

Answer—Applications should be made to corn when it is about knee high and to cotton immediately after chopping. Much of the fertilizing value is lost when late applications are made. Apply the nitrogen as early as possible so as to get all the fertilizing value. Late applications may delay the maturity of cotton and make the crop more susceptible to boll weevil damage. With corn, late applications will increase the plant growth, but will not increase the yield of grain.

Question—At what age should chicks be fed grain?

Answer—This depends largely on the mash fed. If a combined starter and growing mash is used, the scratch feed should be started at the fourth week. Where a 20 percent starter mash is used, the grain feeding should begin from the 6th to the tenth day. There are, however, some "all mash" systems of feeding with which no scratch supplement is fed. Most commercial mash feed tags have directions for feeding on the back and these directions should be carefully followed for best results.

Question—How can I keep the terrapin bugs out of my garden?

Answer—Applications of a Rotenone-Talc dust containing one percent of rotenone will give good control of this insect. Sprinkle sufficient dust to cover the plants thoroughly and repeat every week as long as it is necessary for control. Applications should be made after every rain. A dust containing three-quarters of one percent of rotenone can also be used, but this requires very liberal applications. Rotenone is not poisonous to humans.

Now I Lay Me

The miracle of history is the way little things are remembered and great things are forgotten. The deep writings of Cardinal Newman are passing but "Lead Kindly Light" is immortal. We are now reminded that the childhood prayer "Now I lay me down to sleep" has a history. Its author Eugene H. Pullen was born 150 years ago, March, 1837. People do not like "If I should die before I wake" and many attempts have been made to improve on the original but the old version is tenacious and the child mind is not afraid of death. In commenting on this little prayer William Lyon Phelps tells a beautiful story. "Billy Sunday," he says, "told me that when his little girl was obliged to have an operation in the hospital just before receiving the anesthetic, she asked the doctor, 'What are you going to do to me? And the doctor said, 'My dear, I am going to operate, and then you will be well again, and can run and play as you used to do.' 'Well, what is going to happen now?' 'Why, darling, we are going to put you to sleep, so you will not feel any pain.' Then the child said, 'But before going to sleep I always say my prayer!' and in the presence of the physicians, internes, orderlies and nurses, the little girl climbed down, got on her knees on the floor and said aloud:

"Now I lay me down to sleep: I pray the Lord my soul to keep, If I should die before I wake I pray the Lord my soul to take." —Banner.

Rocky Mt. Red Sox, Durham Bulls Series of Three Night Games, at Durham, Starting 24th

Durham, May 18—Responding to the expert handling of Manager Red O'Malley, the Durham Bulls, away from an uncertain start, are rapidly climbing in the Piedmont League race. O'Malley has whipped his youngsters into a fast, fighting aggregation, bubbling over with spirit and the will to win.

Pushing the leaders for hitting honors and setting the pace in stolen bases with over 30, the Bulls are pleasing the fans with their display of vivacious hitting and leg power.

Scheduled at Richmond and Winston-Salem the current week, skipper O'Malley's hustling crew is in a strategic position near the top to smash into the leadership the moment Asheville or Norfolk indicate any tendency to falter under the gruelling pace that promises to make this year's Piedmont race one of the toughest in years. Only a few games separate the first and seventh place clubs, all of which means the pennant chase is wide open.

Returning to the Durham park Monday night, May 24, the Bulls will engage the Rocky Mount Red Sox in a three-game nocturnal series. The starting time for night games has been moved up to 8:15 o'clock. President Paul Florence announced, Monday will be "ladies' night," when the fair fanettes will be admitted to the grandstand upon payment of a 10-cent tax ticket.

The Rocky Mount entry is a snappy crew of young players, led by the veteran Harry, Nemo, Leibold, a star outfielder in the major leagues for many years. His best playing days were spent with the Chicago White Sox, and he was in two world's series with this team and another with the Washington Senators in 1924. He has also played with the Boston Red Sox, has had managerial experience in the American Association, the international and New York-Pennsylvania Leagues. This series will mark the first Durham appearance of the popular little manager.

I'll Say It Again

By J. E. Jones

(This article was first printed in 1923) Running water is an inexhaustible resource. Unlike the exhaustible products of coal mines, it does not weigh down steel rails and freight cars to reach the point at which it does its work. It does better than that.

Running water commands millions of horsepower of electric energy. It loads the wires at the river, or stream, and fire-wire travels noiselessly, steadily and certainly to every point where it is needed in the conveniences of home life, or in the affairs of industry.

Electricity built cities and improved civilization. But electricity with the aid of water power and with power transmission lines has already undertaken a far bigger task than anything previously credited to its marvelous influence. The comforts and advantages of the cities are all becoming available to people who live in the country. Huddled, congested humanity, is being shown the way to the open spaces of the country, and it is there it will find a civilization better than it ever dreamed existed.

The promise of decentralization is not an idle dream. Industrial progress is essential to maintain the system under which we live. The land values are too high, the rents too expensive, the taxes too burdensome, and the physical restraints and disadvantages are too many in the city districts.

Things always are changing in our forward-moving age, and industrial organizations are being strengthened by taking them "out into the country." Of course population moves with industry, or one cannot exist without the other.

Thus we may clearly trace the future processes of decentralization, a natural movement in American progress. Industry and humanity are on the way back to the country.

Timely Farm Questions Answered at State College

Question—What is the best control for cabbage worms?

Answer—Rotenone dust will, in all probability, give the best control. The dust should contain 75 percent of the rotenone and the first application should be made just as soon as you see the first small white butterfly in the cabbage field. Dust as often as worms are found and be sure and get the dust down into the center of the plants. This dust will also control bean beetles and should be applied when the first cluster of eggs are found on the under side of the bean leaves. For bean beetles the dust should be applied under the leaves and not on top.

Question—Is there any cure for bumblefoot in chickens?

Answer—Where the trouble is not too severe it is possible to cure it by making an incision in the injured foot and carefully removing the infected material. The area should then be sterilized with iodine and bandaged and the bird kept closely confined while the wound is healing. However, unless the bird is of exceptional value no cure should be attempted as these attempts in the majority of cases are unsuccessful.

Question—When is the best time to treat sheep for stomach worms?

Answer—Drenching for stomach worms should begin about June 1. As a usual thing one or two treatments are sufficient for mature animals, but in cases of severe infestation both the lambs and ewes should be drenched every two to four weeks until frost. Keep the animals to be treated off feed for 24 hours before and off feed and water for five hours after drenching. The copper sulphate solution is most generally used for stomach worms, but the nicotine sulphate has also proven valuable, especially where tape worms are present. The nicotine sulphate solution is made by mixing one-half ounce of 40 percent nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf 40) and one quart of water. Mature sheep should receive two to three ounces of this solution at each treatment and lambs from one to two ounces.
