Windsor and Wallis Are Married, Anglican Church Outwitted-Tax Dodging by the Rich to Be Investigated-House Rebels Yield.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Mrs. Wallis Warfield, the American woman for love of whom he gave up his throne, were married in the Chateau de Can-de, Monts, France, and are now spend-ing their honeymoon Wasserleonburg castle in lower Austria. Almost at the last moment the Church of England was outwitted by the action of an obscure provincial clergyman from the north of England, and the civil ceremony performed by the mayor of Monts was followed by a religious wedding conducted by that same minister, Rev. Robert Anderson Jardine, in flat defiance of the pro-

Duchess of Windsor

Jaroine, in hat denance of the pro-tests of the leaders of the church. Sixteen principal guests were present in the chateau when Mayor Mercier, pronouncing the English names with difficulty, and speaking in French, performed the civil ceremony and pronounced the duke and Wallis man and wife. Vicar Jardine, who had volunteered his services, recited the solemn religious rites as prescribed by the church, the duke placed the ring on the duchess' fourth finger, and they knelt on white silk cushions while the minister prayed. Throughout the entire service the famous organist, Marcel Dupre, played softly. The duchess, who cannot be called "her royal highness," wore a gown of Wallis blue and the corre-spondents privileged to be present were agreed that she was a beau-tiful, gracious and serene woman. The Chateau de Cande, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bedaux of New York, was lavishly decorated with flowers.

Vicar Jardine was reproved by the church dignitaries for performing the religious ceremony, but the Bishop of Fulham, who has jurisdiction over Anglican church af-fairs in France, after sending a telegram of protest, admitted the vicar might not be disciplined. He insisted the only valid service Mr. Jardine could perform was bene-diction after the marriage. All Anglican church ministers on the continent had been warned not to marry the duke and Wallis.

A DMINISTRATION leaders, from A the President down, "turned the heat" on the rebellious mem-bers of the house, and the latter sullenly gave in and passed the billion and a half dollar work relief bill about as Mr. Roosevelt and d it. One another the restrictive amendments earmarking $505,000,000 of the total for projects of a solid type, flood control and highways, which had been adopted in committee of the whole, were called up again and voted down by substantial majori-ties. The final vote by which the measure was sent on to the senate was 323 to 44. The revolt collapsed after Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, outlined Mr. Roosevelt's position. He said the President had agreed to provide adequate funds from the relief bill for PWA projects, highways, grade crossing elimination, flood control and water conservation work. Taunted by Minority Leader Bertrand Snell, Republican, New York, for the general character of his statement, Rayburn cd. atted he did not know the exact amount of money that the President would divert to the various projects, which have been described as "vote-getand "pork." ting Still sore, especially at Harry Hopkins, the congressmen discussed the need for investigation of the relief administration, and a resolution calling for such action was in-troduced by Maury Maverick of Texas.

E DWARD, duke of Windsor, and additional time in which war veterans may exchange their govern-ment held term insurance policies for other forms of life insurance and affects about 23,000 men who have

of the North basins. The Arkansas, Red and Rio Grande river basins. The basins of the Colorado and other rivers flowing into the Pacific south of the California-Oregon state line. The Columbia river basin.

T AX dodging by wealthy men and women, excoriated by President Roosevelt in a special message, is going to be investigated speedily by a joint committee of congress. The resolution for the in-quiry was introduced in the senate 3.5 by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the finance committee; and in the house by Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina, chairman of the

Sen. Harrison ways and means committee. The in-vestigation is designed both to focus public attention on the extent of the alleged tax evasion and to provide congress with information nec-essary for the drafting of corrective legislation. Senator Harrison said: "I am sure that congress expects that, where the law has been violated, prompt action will be taken by the government against the mal-efactors." He added that men and women referred to, not by name, in the President's message, would be giv-en the opportunity to testify before the committee if their names were disclosed.

Accompanying Mr. Roosevelt's message was a long letter to him from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau in which were outlined eight devices which he said are being employed by a minority of rich individuals to evade taxes.

Legislation asked by the President would be an emergency meas-ure. It is not to be confused with

PETER RABBIT WATCHES FOR SIGNS

Some people never see things be-Cause they never look for them. Peter Rabbit isn't that kind. My goodness, no! Peter is all the time looking and listening. You see, he is dreadfully afraid that he will miss something. So every minute that he is awake he is looking and listening. It was this way more than ever now. Sister South Wind had arrived and said that Mistress Spring was not far behind, and that she had come to waken all the sleep-land the sleepers seemed to go. But when the gentle Sister South Wind wandered through the Green Forest and over the Green Meadows call-ing in just the lowest, softest voice, why, one after another they did wake up. Peter couldn't understand it, and finally he gave up trying to.

But it was great fun to go about watching for signs that the sleepers had heard gentle Sister South Wind. Peter would listen with one long ear against a maple tree. He would hear just the softest little sound under the bark, so soft that you and I couldn't hear it if we tried. Then Peter would kick up his heels for joy. It was the sap running up to all the branches and out to the tiniest twigs of the maple tree that Peter heard, and he knew that the maple tree was awake.

Then he would go over to a swampy place where the ice had melted away and hold his nose while he peeped into the brown hood of the skunk cabbage to see if there were any signs of flowers there. It had a dreadful smell, and yet it made Peter feel glad all over, be-cause it meant that the queer little

He would carefully cover her up again with the dead leaves that she might not catch cold, after which he would kick up his heels in the funniest way, just because it made him feel so good. Everywhere there were signs, if you had eyes to see and ears to hear them. And Peter had both. The Laughing Brook, which had been silent all winter because Jack Frost had bound it with ice, was laughing a great roar of a laugh, for its banks were very full, and that was a sign. The brown buds on the willows, which all winter long Jack Frost had pinched his hardest and failed to open, had split their little brown iackets at the first touch of the soft to open, had spit their little brown jackets at the first touch of the soft fingers of gentle Sister South Wind, and out of them had popped little gray pussies, and that was a sign. Farmer Brown had begun to clean up his cornfield, and that was a sign. There were signs everywhere, and every one of them made Peter feel happier.

happier. But most of all Peter listened for something that he longed to hear. Every little while he would sit up and listen and listen, with his long ears standing straight up. Some-times he would think he heard it, but he couldn't be sure. Then he would hold his breath and listen and listen and listen. What was he list listen and listen. What was he lis-tening for? Why, for the loveliest sound he knows of-the voice of Win-some Bluebird.
