Entered at the Postoffice at Graham, N. C., as second-class matter.

There should be a decided lowering of the Administration's spending fever, if a collapse is to be forestalled.

The Court reform scheme is not making much headway. A compromise on an 11-member court is meeting with some favor.

The strike situation in the North and West shows little or no improvement. When it runs its course, maybe those concerned will be prepared to adjust their contentions in a sane way.

The past few days have been closing days for the State's universities and colleges. Graduates numbering more than a thousand—the largest number in the State's history—have finished their school days to take their places in business and social life.

Jean Harlow, outstanding film star and actress, popularly known as the "Platinum Blonde," died at the Good Samaritan hospital, Los Angeles, Monday. She was only 26 years old and was at the pinnacle of her fame. In the past year some of the most famous stars of filmdom have vanished from the stage.

With a majority of the newspaper editors attending the yearly association meeting in Elizabeth City next week and the following week off on a cruise to Bermuda, newspaper readers have something to look forward to. If the papers are not better and more interesting than formerly, at least there will be a spice about them out of the ordinary that will be appreciated and enjoyed.

The late John D. Rockefeller, regarded as one of the world's wealthiest men, in his will disposed of an estate of 25 millions. Years ago he had disposed of the great bulk of his great wealth. He had during the past years given away around half a billion to schools, churches and various institutions. The Rockefeller Foundation was his greatest gift. His gifts for the benefit of the public were made during his life time. He died quietly at his Florida home on May 23rd. If he had lived till July 8 he would have been 98 years of age. There was a time, around 50 years ago, that he was assaulted from many quarters as a grasping, oppressive, money-maker. He created a great business and an organization that practically extended to the ends of the earth, and so big was the business that a small margin of profit produced a monumental income. He had a genius for making money, which now appears was but secondary to his genius for giving where the benefits would be lasting and helpful to mankind.

MOVIE HEROINE PREACHES EVIL OF DOPE

Reporting how a former film favorite, whose career was ruined by drugs, broke herself of the habit and now crusades against the evil. One of many true stories in the June 13th issue of the American Weekly, the big magazine which comes with the Baltimore Sunday American. On sale at all news-stands.

Work Sheets Must Be Prepared By June 12

"Don't forget that June 12 is the last day to sign a worksheet for the 1937 soil conservation program," warns E. Y. Floyd, of State College.

All growers who have not signed up either last year or this year must deliver their work sheets to their county soil conservation offices by Saturday to become eligible for payments, he added.

Work sheets are necessary in helping plan a farm's program of soil conservation and in determining how much diversion and soil building payments are earned, Floyd explained.

"If you operated under a work sheet last year, but have made a change in your farm since then, notify your county agent at once," he pointed out.

Randolph farmers report an excellent small grain crop though quite a bit of rust has appeared in low land fields.

Law Makers "Put" Again

Wild Mice Tame After Cat Comes Back

By J. E. Jones

Washington, D. C., June 8 '37.—When the President went fishing his Congress went wild. They'd show them how they would earmark $505,000,000 for relief funds; how they would cut WPA Administrator Hopkins' salary from twelve to ten thousand dollars a year; how they wouldn't give the President more than a billion of the billion and a half dollars he had told them he must have. They voted the way they blustered in late May. Then came June and the repentant rebels brought forth the royal rubber stamps and voted according to the royal command. Among the questions finally determined was emphatic approval of the continuing of Federal relief. They turned "thumbs down" on all proposals looking towards returning any authority to the States.

The general idea of the Government taking and spending for the general welfare is accepted as a part of the New Deal. The manner of administration of this idea brings about great waste of the nation's wealth. Every tax device is used to raise money that might better remain in the pockets of citizens, since such tremendous sums are uselessly spent. Even the South that fought, bled and died for State rights now fights hardest of all in behalf of political control that operates the big Washington machine of "interstate rights." State rights is almost a "just cause."

Nature backs interstate commerce and interstate theories with California and Florida fruit in interstate commerce. It is the same with Maine and Idaho potatoes; or apples from New York, Washington, Virginia and other States. As for wool and cotton they are admittedly about nine-tenths interstate. State rights is still a local issue—one for the minds and brains of citizens within the states to help serve.

North Carolina Tourist Mecca

North Carolina promises to be a mecca for the nation's tourists this season, according to officials of the Esso Touring Service, which has already noted a marked increase in motorists seeking touring information on various parts of this state.

This year it is apparent that many thousands of tourists will drive to North Carolina early in the season because of increasing interest in the beautiful floral offerings that are prominently displayed throughout this section, from mountain ranges to the sea coast. "Judging from the inquiries we have thus far received it is apparent that thousands of persons will be attracted to the annual Rhododendron Festival at Asheville, N. C., June 14 to 18; as well as to many other special floral exhibits during the late spring season," Esso Touring Service officials said. "They will also visit the famous tulip gardens, the envy of Dutch horticulturists, in the North Carolina coastal communities of Bath, Terra Ceia and Castle Hayne."

The strawberry festival at Wallace, N. C., during the second week in June will also lure many visitors. Many other motorists have expressed an interest in the Federal resettlement project near Wallace where 4,500 acres have been subdivided into 142 farm units. Hundreds will journey to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and the many state parks for the trout season which opened May 16 and for rock and smallmouth bass; the season for which starts on June 16. Both the trout and bass seasons close August 31.

Early Planted Yams Make Heavier Yield

Sweet potato plants set in the before the middle of June will produce better yams and heavier acre yields, said L. P. Watson, extension horticulturist at State College.

When planted early, he explained, they have the benefit of a long growing season, and they usually have a chance to get fairly well established in the ground before extremely hot, dry weather sets in.

The crop will be improved if it receives a good grade of commercial fertilizer containing three percent nitrogen, eight percent phosphoric acid, and eight percent potash applied with a drill at the rate of 800 to 1,200 pounds per acre.

Two-thirds of the nitrogen should come from inorganic sources and one-third from organic sources. The potash should be derived from muriate or sulphate of potash, Watson stated.

Stable manure should not be used unless it is well rotted and can be broadcast at least a month before planting time.

Disease-free seedlings should be planted in clean soil, if possible. If the soil is infested with stem rot or wilt, treat the seedlings with Semesan, or dip the roots and stems in 20-20-50 Bordeaux mixture, said Dr. R. F. Poole, plant pathologist.

He warned that Bordeaux mixture may injure the plants unless used with caution. Treat only freshly dug seedlings, and set them out immediately after they are dipped. Then water the plants at once.

Or the seedlings may be dusted with a mixture of 25 percent monohydrated copper sulphate and 75 percent lime.
