American Bar Association Pays Respects to President

The American Bar Association, in convention in Kansas City, Mo., took a tilt at President Roosevelt at its session Monday. Frederick H. Stinchfield of Minneapolis, president of the association, told the 5,000 delegates that President Roosevelt frequently has expressed what "amounts to a hatred of the legal profession." He said: "One must believe this seeming hatred arises out of the fact that the lawyers are the ones whom he finds greatest difficulty in controlling."

In reply to the President's description of the constitution as a "Layman's document, not a lawyer's contract," Stinchfield, told the convention's opening session:

"Of 55 men who participated in framing the constitution, 32 were lawyers. . . . If the constitution of the United States is a layman's document we may bow in respect to the 23 men of the constitution convention who were not lawyers."

James A. Reed, former Democratic Senator from Missouri, in a welcoming address castigated those who swear to uphold the Constitution while making mental reservations to evade it. He declared the framers of the constitution "knew that a honest fanatic, whether of church or state, is the most dangerous beast ever turned loose to curse the earth—all the more dangerous if his cruel purposes are masked by gentle smiles and friendly protestations calculated to lull the intended victims into security."

"Reason cannot appeal to nor compassion mitigate the fury of a fanatic. . . . The degree of fanaticism is often the measure of sanity."

A thought and a query: Suppose Big Business is trimmed to the point where it cannot make a surplus and pay dividends, where will the money come from to pay government expenses, to finance the innumerable commission and other administration set-ups, to pay bonuses, to support relief organizations, to take care of the unemployed, and so on and so on? Will it not finally reach the point where Big Business will vanish? Then what will become of the employees of Big Business, whence will the money come to take care of the jobless millions, and will they (the jobless) be able to raise the billions for government prodigal waste and spending and pay interest on government securities? When that comes to pass, what will government bonds be worth? What will money be worth—if it comes to fiat money? Other questions, plenty of them, come to mind. You answer some of them.

Mussolini has just paid a visit to Hitler in Berlin. It was a sort of love feast. Sure, of the same feather, and of course congenial.

Western Union telegraph messenger boys in Raleigh staged a strike Monday. Only off duty eight hours. Those of long service records are to get a raise in wages.

Daniel Doherty Head of American Legion

On last Thursday at its annual convention in New York City the American legion elected Daniel Doherty, of Woburn, Mass., as its national commander after recommending vast increases in the United States military establishment which would give the nation the largest navy in the world and bring the standing army to 180,000.

The 19th legion convention, too, hit obliquely at violence in labor disputes and sharply underlined its reaffirmation of the rights of personal liberty and private property.

Upon other issues it took an unexpected stand, denouncing communism, fascism and nazism, and urging national legislation "that will punish American citizens who advocate the overthrow of our government by force, fraud or violence, and deport all aliens who so advocate such overthrow."

Hugo L. Black, recently appointed a Justice of the Supreme Court landed at Norfolk Wednesday, returning from a European tour. So far every effort to extract an expression from him as to his intentions on account of his connection with the Ku Klux Klan has failed. He has kept his own counsel. There has been a clamor for his resignation or removal on account thereof. The President appointed and the Senate confirmed the appointment. What action the Supreme Court will take is yet an open matter, if perchance it can do anything at all. He was a member of the Senate from Alabama and a strenuous supporter of administration policies, but had no outstanding reputation as a learned lawyer. His appointment was as much a surprise to him as it was to the rest of the country at large. He may step down and out, which is doubted—folks don't often turn down $20,000-a-year jobs.

Postmaster General Jim Farley may resign to become the head of the Pearce-Arrow Motor Car Company. In the event of his resignation, mentioned most probable as his successor are Edward J. Flynn, of New York; Frank C. Walker, now of New York but originally from Montana, and William W. Howes, the first assistant postmaster general, a South Dakota.

But as to the Democratic national committee chairmanship Farley might retain that. It appears that the result of the President's Western tour will have a bearing on what might happen. It is the general belief that the President is feeling out the public pulse on a third term. Farley is leaning that way, it seems, and his movements will be shaped accordingly, it is surmised.

Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh, according to news reports, will probably seek citizenship in Great Britain. A year or two ago the Lindberghs became residents of Great Britain. At the time there was nothing given out as to their intentions, except that another kidnaping was dreaded. It is a sore reflection that good citizens feel they have to go elsewhere to escape the gangster bands. Other good American citizens have become English citizens and won distinction and honor. At present former American citizens are members of Parliament and political leaders.

Out in Idaho, in the capital city, Boise, the President fell in with the two Senators, Borah (Rep.) and Pope (Dem.), the former opposed to his court reorganization program and the latter a new dealer. They rode with the President over the city in an hour's parade. That Senator Borah and the President were so cordial caused some surprise. The President was a guest of his state and he was only being polite and playing the part of an agreeable host, and did not mean that he had changed one iota.

State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

Question: How can peanuts be stacked to prevent spoilage?

Answer: The stacks should be built so that the nuts are not exposed to the weather and finished in such a way that water will not run down the center. Canvas hay caps are recommended for use on top of the stack. Nail two cross arms on the center pole 12 inches from the top to keep the vines off the ground. Loose soil in the stack will also cause damage to the pods and nuts and for this reason the ground should be fairly dry when the peanuts are dug.

Question: May skim milk or buttermilk be substituted for the dried milk recommended in the poultry laying mash?

Answer: Yes. Where milk is produced on the farm this substitution can be made with a big saving in feed cost for the average farm flock. When only the dried milk is removed from the mash, one gallon of skim milk or buttermilk should be fed daily to 100 hens. When skim milk or buttermilk is fed at the rate of three gallons a day for the 100 birds, it may be substituted for all of the dried milk products, one-half of the fish meal and one-half of the meat meal recommended.

Question: How can I control cattle lice on my calves?

Answer: The following remedies have proven effective in controlling this insect. A four percent solution of creoline applied with a spray pump or brush; cotton seed oil and kerosene, equal parts, and ground sabadilla seed and flowers of sulphur, equal parts, applied in powder form. A dip of liquid remedy should be applied in an even layer over the entire body of the animal. Oils, however, should not be used on very hot or cold days. When powder is used the hair should be clipped from the affected parts of the body and the powder applied only on the clipped places. A second treatment should be given within fifteen days to kill lice which hatch after the first treatment.

Try Roasting a Rib This Way

IF YOU have tried the modern method of roasting meats in a constant temperature of 350 degrees Fahrenheit to achieve tenderness and avoid shrinkage, then add another trick to your list! Use the broiler rack and pan in the oven of your up-to-date gas range and place the meat on it fat side up as pictured. This permits the circulating heat to surround the meat evenly, and the dripping fat drains into the receiving tray—about one-half cupful from a five to six pound standing rib roast. Once placed in the preheated oven, the meat needs no further attention until the roasting period is ended, for the oven heat-control manages everything properly. Should your modern gas range have a special type of broiler such as a circular rack fitting into a chrome-plated pan, the pan itself may be placed under an oven rack on which the roast reposes. Or you may put the meat in a shallow roasting pan—but never, never use a cover!

Illinois Fence for New York Fair

NEW YORK (Special).—Illinois-made fencing is being shipped to the New York World Fair for enclosure of the 389.8 acres comprising the central exhibit area. This was learned when Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, announced the award of a first fencing contract to the Cyclone Fence Company, whose New York offices are at 370 Lexington Avenue.

Officials of the manufacturing firm announced that its Waukegan plant was shipping the fencing and that installation would start as soon as the first steel reached the 1216 1/2-acre exposition site on Flushing Meadow.

The contract price of the nine-foot steel fence installed, complete with gates and concrete footings at ten-foot centres, as derived from figures submitted by pre-qualified bidders, is $32,812. About three miles of fence are required to enclose the central exhibit area along three sides and down to the Flushing river.

Immediate enclosure of the tract was made necessary, Mr. Whalen said, by the great and varied construction work that is already taking place on the site two years in advance of the Fair's opening date. The Illinois-made fence will enclose all of the Transportation Zone of the exposition and the area that will be dominated by the two Theme Centre wonders, the Perisphere and Trylon.

J. T. Horne, route 3, Wadesboro, Anson county, recently planted some of the best land on his farm to pasture for his herd of thirty Jerseys.

New York Fair Hall to Feature Radio and Television

NEW YORK (Special).—Radio, television, movies, telephone, telegraph, photography, news and magazine print—all those factors as they relate to communications in American life—will have their own pavilion and ten-acre exhibit zone at the New York World's Fair of 1939, according to an announcement by Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation.

The Hall of Communications will be built this year on the 1216 1/2-acre exposition site within a few minutes ride from mid-town Manhattan. Its location is adjacent to that of the unique Theme Centre structures, which with their "thousand wonders" will dominate the Fair grounds. About the Hall will be grouped ten acres of buildings to be erected by private exhibitors in the communications industry, said Mr. Whalen. Before the building will be two ultramarine pylons, 160 feet high and faced with continuous glass lighting fixtures. Features of the structure are a great hall, in which will be placed the focal exhibit summing up the role of communications in the World of Tomorrow, and a glass-walled restaurant opening onto a dining terrace and garden. The total length of the Hall of Communications will be over 400 feet. Its cost is estimated at $400,000. Numerous other Fair structures are emerging from stages of design. Construction of the exposition, however, will not reach its peak until early next year.

SOUTHERN PINE GOES TO NEW YORK FAIR

NEW YORK (Special).—Southern yellow pine from the Eastern Shore, Maryland, and from points in Delaware, Virginia and North Carolina is already going into foundations in the central area of the New York World's Fair of 1939. Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, has just announced the purchase of 430 sticks of pine piling, in lengths up to 80 feet, from Nichols Brothers, of 90 West Street, Manhattan, and Norfolk, Virginia. Shipments of this lot are originating at Frankfort, Delaware; Freston, Maryland, and Melba and Cheriton, Virginia. An order for piling of similar size is being filled at points in North Carolina.

The pine sticks are being driven into the ash-meadow all of the 1216 1/2-acre exposition site where they will serve as part of the foundations for bridge abutments near the Theme Centre and amusement areas of the Fair.

The American Legion

By J. E. Jones

New York, Sept. 25, '37—I saw the American Expeditionary forces shove off to war in 1917, and I saw General Pershing astride his famous war-horse "Jeff" leading that never-to-be-forgotten procession of returning soldiers down Pennsylvania Avenue past President Wilson in his reviewing stand. They were as chaste and serious-looking young men as I shall ever see in my lifetime.

Again, I have been among these same men for several days here in New York City. The "big parade" up Fifth Avenue was as fine a spectacle as ever pleased and satisfied the eyes of 2,000,000 spectators, of whom I was one Tuesday. I say the "satisfied" because these men are the walking proof of the strength and progress of our great Republic. The chastened serious lads of 18 years past who broke out into riotous disorders at their earlier gatherings still retain a very noticeable love for fun. But I give testimony that they are far more orderly, en masse, than most of the crowds I have seen in great conventions of certain fraternal organizations and national societies. National political gatherings are more disorderly.

A veteran policeman in answer to my question said: "Behave—why they are far above the average; the police are letting them run the city, he laughed, they seem to have improved on the work of the police."

Tonight I have been reading with great care the proceedings of their meetings, in which it is plain that they stand united behind their country—in peace or in war, in prosperity or depressions.

So I have sat down in this hotel bedroom to write the above lines, and to add my words of approval, and prayers of thankfulness that we have in this country such men as have spoken in thundering tones these days for peace, and against more hellish wars such as they saw with their own eyes, in foreign lands, from which many of their friends and comrades never returned.

Annual State Music Teachers' Conference, Woman's College, in Oct.

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 27—October 15 and 16 have been announced as the dates for the Ninth Annual State Music Teachers' Conference to be held at Woman's College, University of North Carolina. H. Hugh Aitwater, Dean of the School of Music, is expecting a large attendance, of approximately 200 music supervisors, choral directors, band and orchestra directors, teachers of voice, piano, violin and other instruments.

Started eight years ago by Dr. Wade Brown, then head of the Department of Music at Woman's College, the Conference is held each fall as a prelude to the State Music Contest which comes in the spring. This contest, which brings about 5000 school children to Woman's College, after elimination contests in 16 districts, has become an event of national prominence in school music.

Three nationally famous musicians will be at the Conference in October to conduct the music clinics; Edwin Hughes, distinguished concert pianist and teacher, of New York City; Max Krone, of Northwestern University, director of the famous A Capella Choir; and Frank Simon, conductor of Armo Band, of radio fame, and past president of the Bandmasters Association.
