Dachshund Popularity In Sensational Gain

The lowly Dachshund is now up among the ten dog breeds which lead in the number of purebred registrations in this country, according to the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City, which states that a lot of the credit for this achievement is due to the efforts of the Dachshund Club of America which this year celebrates the golden jubilee of its affiliation with the American Kennel Club. Figures compiled by Joseph E. Balmer, Xenia, Ohio, show a sensational gain of Dachshund registrations in 1945 over the year 1928 of 5,789%. For the same years the Cocker Spaniel, the leader in registrations, showed a gain of 1,814% and Beagles a gain of 288%.

U. D. C. Meeting

The February meeting of the Graham Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy was held last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. Ernest Thompson, with Mrs. J. L. Johnson as joint hostess.

The chapter president, Mrs. Mary E. Parker, presided. The U. D. C. ritual and salute to the flags was led by the asst. chaplain, Mrs. Thompson. Mrs. E. H. William, acted as secretary. A few items of interest were read from the U. D. C. magazine and the year books were distributed by Mrs. J. J. Henderson, historian. One of the special items from the magazine was the tribute to Mrs. Walter Lamar who for over fifteen years was diligent in her work for Sidney Lanier for the Hall of Fame. Mrs. Lamar's work has been rewarded. A bust of Sidney Lanier will be placed in the Hall of Fame by the United Daughters of the Confederacy Mrs. S. S. Holt gave an interesting sketch of the short life of this versatile man who was outstanding as a soldier, poet, musician, lecturer and writer in spite of his frail body, and attained a national reputation.

Following the program, afternoon tea was served from a beautifully appointed dining table by the hostess, assisted by the president and Mrs. W. H. Hoyt.

Medical Studies Back Sister Kenny Theory

Sister Elizabeth Kenny's demonstration of her treatment for infantile paralysis at Minneapolis General hospital aroused the interest of the medical profession and resulted in a five-year study of her theories.

The result of these studies and clinical observations by six eminent medical men is told in a report made in the August issue of The Journal Lancet, a national medical publication.

Dr. Pohl was one of the six men who conducted the five-year studies in co-operation with the University of Minnesota medical school.

Other research was conducted by orthopedists at the world-famed Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minnesota and by the Rochester (New York) University.

Studied 364 Cases
The Dr. Pohl report is based on the most comprehensive study to date of Miss Kenny's revolutionary treatment and the results of that treatment.

In The Journal Lancet, Dr. Pohl points out that his evaluation of the "Kenny concept and treatment is based" upon a study of 364 patients suffering from infantile paralysis in the acute stage who were admitted and treated at Elizabeth Kenny Clinic during the years 1940 through 1944.

Of the 364 patients 341 survive. "Upon completion of the treatment 16 per cent of the patients have extensive residual paralysis of one or more extremities but 84 per cent may be considered to have good recovery from the standpoint of muscle strength and ability to move the limbs," Dr. Pohl wrote.

He explains in his article that the cases studied were not mild ones but "were of average severity" in comparison with previous experience in the same hospital (Minneapolis General).

Remarkably Successful
"A patient may be a success from the standpoint of retaining good muscle power but the same patient definitely represents a failure of treatment if he suffers permanent crippling deformities in spite of his good muscle strength as was too frequently the case under orthodox management of the disease.

"On this basis the Kenny treatment proves to be remarkably successful as 95.5 per cent of the patients in this series appeared to have an assured further existence, free of cumbersome braces, grotesque deformities and awkward methods of locomotion.

None Deformed
None of the 146, Dr. Pohl reports, had to be enrolled in Dowling school; none had a deformity; none had to wear a brace, and none had to have surgical operations.

Dr. Don Henderson, head of the orthopedic department of the Mayo Clinic, in a letter to Miss Kenny commented on her concept of the disease and her treatment of it and said:

"I am fully convinced that your method offers the infantile paralysis patient more hope for complete recovery than any other method or treatment today."

Surgery Unsuccessful
"None of the patients has required surgery to date and no indication has arisen in which surgery might

D. A. R. Meeting

The Battle of Alamance Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution held their February meeting last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Herbert Long with Mrs. Ernest Thompson assting hostess.

The Chaplain, Mrs. Long, led the ritual at the opening of the meeting. Mrs. David Harmon, Regent, presided over the business routine.

A State-wide Home-makers club project sponsored by the D. A. R.'s was presented as the program by Mrs. Thompson. Six girls from the Home Ec. Department of the Graham school modeled their home-made cotton dresses. The winners selected were Miss Sarah K. Davis of the Juniors and Miss Ruth Christy of the Seniors. They were presented with Silver bracelets and the other contestants with theatre tickets.

Delicious salads, cookies with Russian tea and other accessories, carrying out the Valentine motif, were served from the dining room by the hostess.

JUDGES WON OVER BY DRAMA, ART IN WAR DOG DESIGN

Victor in Memorial Contest a Dog Lover and Talented Sculptor

Mrs. Elizabeth Philbrick Hall, dog breeder and handler and talented young artist of Dedham, Mass., has won the Gaines Dog Research Center competition for "the most acceptable design, idea or sketch" for a projected memorial to war dogs serving in World War II. It is announced by Harry Miller, Executive Secretary of the Center, New York City.

Mrs. Hall's entry was chosen unanimously over several hundred entries from all sections of the country by a committee of prominent judges consisting of the following: Lowell Thomas, radio commentator and dog fancier; Helen Menken, star of stage and radio who is a pioneer in work for the Stage Door Canteen and the Army's K-9 Corps; Dr. Samuel Milbank, New York sportsman and officer of the Westminster Kennel Club; and George Ford Morris, one of America's best known animal artists.

The judges were greatly taken with the dramatic quality as well as artistic interpretation of Mrs. Hall's entry. They felt that her animated depiction of a soldier rising from behind cover, gun in hand, to meet approaching danger as signalled to him by the war-dog buddy at his side, caught to a remarkable degree the spirit of the service rendered by dogs on the battlefield.

Mrs. Hall has since confessed a hesitancy in submitting her entry to the competition. It was only at the strong urging of her Navy husband that she finally put it into the mails, and it arrived in New York the day before the deadline for entries.

Mrs. Hall, still in her twenties, has just had her first baby. While her husband is in America's armed services she continues to run alone their joint enterprise, "The Dog House," devoted to breeding, training, grooming and showing dogs.

Her efforts along art lines have received considerable recognition from authorities in recent years. Her drawings and sculptures of animals, in which she has pretty much specialized, have been commented on particularly for their striking, strangely lifelike qualities. Her interest in art goes back to childhood. Both her father and her mother are artists. A graduate of the Massachusetts School of Art, of which her father is president, she has, among others, exhibited at the Penn. Academy of Fine Arts. She designed the drinking fountain for children erected at the Elizabeth Peabody Settlement House on Charles Street in Boston. In 1937 she won second prize in the senior class of the National Soap Sculpture Committee competition.

According to Mr. Miller, it is the plan of the Gaines Dog Research Center to turn over the winning design to one of the dog organizations which will decide on the method of financing the memorial and work out all the details of location, construction and the like.
