

chronicle real happenings, day by day. Don't blame them. They perform an essential public service. Find the Source

Of course there must be a few publishers who are unpatriotic, and writers who would stir up a revolu-tion if they could, but these are not the nation's chief danger. When news is really poisoned, the job is done by those who make news, not those who print and broadcast it. Let us know the truth because the truth will make us free; free from our political enemies as well as other kinds.

Journalists tell me that news articles have value (i.e. deserve prominence) in proportion to the number of people interested. Thus persons positions of power make news because a lot of people are interested in what these men think and say and do. If the rulings they decree opinions they express seem socialistic, there's nothing honor-able for news men to do but tell the people. It's their country.

Starve It Out

Radical propaganda undoubtedly does this nation damage. I believe a big majority of Americans are wholesome people, love their country and understand what makes it the world's best place to live and most influential power. Just the same, poisoned news gains converts. And so long as men in power wish to gain more power, the campaign for collectivism will be carried on

At its source is the best place to quiet the voice of socialist promo-tion. Men who hanker to boss the schools, control hospitals, limit production and eternally fix prices ought to be put where their every word and deed does not make news -out of power. There is a sure way: Stop the flow of revenue out There is a sure of the Treasury into the hands of such appointed "rulers." That will start immediately and effectively to solve the problem of collectivist propaganda.

Owls Are Destructive Bellef in the destructiveness of hawks and owls is almost universal. In very few cases is there any distinction made between hawks and owls that habitually prey on birds and small game animals and those heavy, sluggish kinds or those too small to take anything but grasshoppers, mice and destructive rodents of many sorts. A good many beneficial hawks and owls have been destroyed in the during wolf hunts. The farmer has lost many efficient allies in his fight against rats, mice and other rodents. One pair of barn owls and their young have been known to account for over 1,500 mice and 200 rats in one season. The Great Horned owl, the Cooper's hawk and the Sharp-shinn hawk do destroy large number of rabbits, quail and other birds. The Great Horned owl is identified by its very large size. The Cooper's and Sharp-shinned hawks are medi-um small to small in size, with short, blunt wings, long tails and destine darting manner of flight. They often dodge in and out of hedgerows and thickets, presenting a difficult target.

industry ticularly noteworthy because in this period the rayon industry developed. The manufacture of rayon, a man-made fiber produced from cellulose regenerated by a chemical process, expanded dynamically in the south

during the depression. Refined wood-pulp, furnishing the bulk of the industry's requirements, and cotton linters, supplying the balance, are readily available in the south. These and other natural advantages of the region have made it the center of rayon production, south-ern plants accounting for about three-fourths of the domestic output. The value of rayon and allied products of the area in 1939 is estimated at 119 milliop dollars and that of rayon broadwoven boods at 112 million dollars.

Better tire cords can be made from cotton, a valuable medicine can be extracted from the buckwheat plant, farm wastes can be used to produce alcohol, and new food prodacts have been made possible as a result of research during the pas years.

Research in the agriculture de partment's southern regional re-search laboratory in New Orleans owed that better automobile tires can be made from cotton by using varieties selected for this purpose on the basis of their physical prop-erties. Light truck tires, made from selected varieties of cotton, and used in the part of cotton. used in rear wheel positions, gave 300 per cent more mileage than tires made with regular commer-cial cotton. Passenger car tires made from both standard and im-proved cord ran nearly 70,000 miles at 60 miles an hour on highway tests with one recapping, and the carcass was still in good condition. ### Trumpeter Swan

The trumpeter swan, largest of all North American waterfowl, attaining a wingspread of eight feet, is continuing to win its fight against extinction, having increased its population four-fold in the past 10 years. The trumpeter swan in the United States numbered only 73 in 1935 when the Red Rock lakes refuge was established. The latest count reveals a total of at least 301 birds, exclusive of those in the Can adian colonies. The tally shows 60 birds in Yellowstone national park and 163 on the Red Rock lakes national wildlife refuge in Montana, with the remainder scattered near these areas, on the National Elk ref-uge in Wyoming and on the Malheur national wildlife refuge in Oregon.
