Vital Economy

Hearing that it would not be necessary for anybody to pay any federal taxes for a period of 12 months would have been good news to a lot of people any year for two decades before World War II. It would have occupied acres of front-page space in metropolitan papers, utilized hours of radio time and consumed gallons of red ink. It might have started a buying boom.

The money people used to put out in federal taxes was staggering (then) although the amount seems small in contrast to what they have been paying lately and probably will keep paying for several years. Just the same, pre-war taxes were big money and, even now, would be worth saving. That's exactly the point I want to make in this department today: It can be saved.

Over Twice Enough
Civilian employees of the United States government today number approximately 2,800,000 when 1,250,000 would be plenty. Even this low figure is about twice what we had six months after World War I. In short, government has 1,550,000 unnecessary hirelings now—more people than live in The Bronx, in Los Angeles or in St. Louis plus all of its suburbs. It is humiliating to think about.

All of this enormous host of people are eating out of the public breadbasket. They are not to be thought about as if they had private wealth and had retired to pursue some impractical hobby. Such people as that do, at least, distribute wealth previously put away. The people I am talking about are dead-weight on the rest of us. They subsist on federal tax revenue.

Five Million Grand
Since their average annual income is about $2,400 each, they are costing the taxpayers of the United States every year the staggering sum of $3,720,000,000 in salaries alone. Everybody who hires salaried people knows well that salaries are not all the expense they incur. They all have to be provided more or less space, lighted, heated and equipped.

Add to these items such matters as traveling expenses, telephone calls and incidentals and the grand annual expense, as a result of having these people employed, will swell to five billion dollars at least. If such people could be lifted off the public's neck the money could be saved and the public would surely feel the relief.

Plus Social Gains
Such shortening of payrolls would be completely justified by savings alone but there are plenty of other benefits. (1) It would help to balance the federal budget, and if it is not balanced the country will eventually go broke. (2) It would help curb the trend toward bureaucracy, toward centralization of power and toward government by whim instead of deliberate government by law.

(3) Not the least of blessings to follow laying off these people would be releasing more than one and a half million persons for productive work, letting them create something instead of living off the efforts of others. (4) Finally, it would increase the hope of saving for future generations the finest civilization the world has ever known. I submit unto you it ought to be done.

Up And Down The Streets Of Greensboro With George Delaney

Sketches Of Business and Professional Leaders in Greensboro, Who Have Played An Important Part In The Sales Of United States Savings Bonds. Buy Bonds To Your Limit.

During its history North Carolina has been the mother of many men whose names have been synonymous with public spirit, progress and spotless rectitude, business leaders as well as professional men who have achieved recognition and have added to its fame, and its business men have likewise attained distinction in the march of trade.

Important factors operating in the continued progress of the many activities of the state have been the civic pride and deep interest of its citizens in every undertaking that looks to the improvement of the condition and happiness of the whole people. We take pleasure in presenting to the readers of this publication the names of J. W. Thompson and E. S. Arthur, owners of the Thompson and Arthur Construction Company, general contractors with general offices located in Greensboro at 300 Benbow street. This concern, along with

Being at the head of an organization the size of the Alston Poultry and Produce Company, who offer the people of this area poultry and produce of all kinds poultry both dressed and live, along with fresh country eggs, located at 723 West Lee street, Greensboro, requires an order of ability not possessed by the average man. But E. L. Alston, the owner of this prominent Poultry and Produce concern, loves the responsibility which it carries.

Any city grows and prospers by reason of the public spirited men and women who take an active interest in its development. Greensboro has its share of these civic minded people, and one who is deserving of special mention in the columns of today's issue is none other than E. L. Alston. Mr. Alston's executive ability and personality have been the major factors in his maintaining this position of vice

No two men ever arrive at success by the same route. Were it a cut and dried rule, applicable in every case, then it would be easy for us all. But notwithstanding the divergence of approaches, there are certain fundamental principles in which the average man must make a part of himself before he can essay the first turning. These are judgment, integrity, perseverance and honesty.

Carl Tucker, owner of The Carl Tucker Garage located on Spring Garden Ext.; offering the autoists of this section with first class mechanical work on any make car, regardless of the model, and about whom this article is written, is one of the most valuable citizens and outstanding business leaders. He is known as an expert with a scrupulous fidelity and

The attempt to catalog the various and important Beer Distributing men throughout the city of Greensboro and surrounding area, calling into service the technical skill of a leader would require columns. But suffice it to say that no man has ever acquitted himself of the arduous duties connected with the beer distributing business in a more admirable manner than can be truthfully said of J. Paul Price, manager of the Greensboro Distributing Co., distributors of Chevy Ale, Hudepohl and Ballantine's Beer and Ale, with offices located at 320 Isley street in Greensboro.

Mr. Price is a man with years of experience and practical training that took time and effort to acquire. He has been a hard worker and never calls the day ended until the problems at hand have been finished or else put into tangible shape for the next days

It is because of the unfailing optimism and faith which he so consistently displays towards the future of Greensboro and this section of North Carolina that we are prompted to call particular attention to the readers of this publication of the fine service that Charles T. Brown, owner of the Chas. T. Brown Truck Lines, specializing in Heavy Hauling with general offices located on Asheboro Extension, in Greensboro, who has been in business for a number of years, performs in the successful conduct of his business. He is entitled to our highest praise and any tribute we can pay him.

Mr. Brown is a resourceful, dominant personality, whose progressive policies of business administration have earned for him wide spread reputation as a leader in his chosen business that has resulted in a very material gain its owners has had years of experience in serving the people throughout this section of North Carolina and they are known for their skilled work and the prompt service they render the people of the Carolinas.

Of a genial nature and honest, straightforward manner which is characteristic of Messrs Thompson and Arthur, the two abled business leaders have had a wide acquaintance with thousands of people throughout Greensboro and surrounding area. These assets together with a sincere concern for the welfare of the citizens throughout the area, has had a great influence on the growth of Greensboro as a leading metropolitan city.

J. W. Thompson and E. S. Arthur are men of magnificent bearing, a stout heart and innate figures in the business world. It is indeed a pleasure for the compiler of these facts to give "just" recognition to these two gentlemen.

tal importance in the business life of Greensboro and North Carolina. He is the type of man who makes friends and friendships once formed with him is never broken by an unfriendly act on his part. He spares no effort that the services of this prominent concern to this people throughout the city and all this area shall be unexcelled.

Mr. Alston has never been known to inject himself into a situation for the mere purpose of gaining publicity. He proceeds in a calm, unostentatious manner, and accomplishes his objective with a quiet dignity. For the reason the true estimate of his worth is sometimes missed. We do not hesitate to recommend Mr. Alston to our friends and readers as a true example of American citizenship. This writer sincerely subscribes to the estimates of Mr. Alston's worth.

distinguished ability. Few men have been so eminently successful as has Mr. Tucker.

Mr. Tucker's past bears every indication that he is fully gifted with all the knowledge that it takes to make a successful business leader. He works with unflagging zeal to bring about results that are constructive and satisfying and he is always on hand to answer a call when needed to further the growth and development of our city and state.

It is not hard to understand the personal ability of Mr. Tucker, as he is a man of good character and is both loved and trusted by his fellow-men, his ability, patriotism and sincerity are the three main factors in making his career a successful one.

work. He has held various posts but none that has ever given him more scope of exercise of his natural abilities than since he has been in the beer distributing business.

Mr. Price is a man broad of vision, forceful and energetic, always willing to co-operate with other business leaders of Greensboro in the welfare of their city and its trading area, and he merits recognition for his performance in the part he has played in making Greensboro the metropolitan city it is.

Conscientious, to the last degree, Mr. Price has won the esteem of the business people in Greensboro and its trading area and his excellent work and business methods has not gone unnoticed. It is such business leaders as J. Paul Price who well merits recognition and we prophesy a steady continuation of his success economic wealth, not only for himself and his immediate associates, but for the people of his city as well.

We are more than pleased to give such a worthy man recognition in the columns of this issue, as he has not only played an important part in the business and civic affairs of Greensboro but has aided by working indefatigably for the best interest of all.
