Mark-Resistant Floors
Test showed that two or three coats of water emulsion wax were helpful in making any floor resistant to marking. The best method of procedure is as follows: After cleaning off the marks by gently rubbing with a damp cloth, wipe the area with clean water and immediately dry with a dry cloth. Use as little water as possible and dry it rapidly. When dry, apply a thin coat of water-emulsion wax with a cloth or applicator. Allow to dry for 30 minutes before applying the second coat.

Insects Chief Problem in Making Dog Comfortable on Hot Days
Summer "dog days" would not nearly be as uncomfortable for our canine pets were they given adequate protection against insect parasites, states the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City.
The flea-ridden dog, scratching, biting and squirming, is a pathetic sight. In addition to causing the dog extreme annoyance, the flea carries dog tapeworm and also appears to be connected in some way with canine summer eczema.
The tick is another culprit preying on dogs that has come to the fore in the past several years. An insidious individual of tenacious habits, he makes a practice of hiding in underbrush and grass along paths and trails, waiting to attach himself to the first passing animal. In addition to inflicting irritating bites, the tick is a potential carrier of disease.
According to the Center, DDT powder of 5 per cent strength, used as a dust, has been found extremely effective against fleas. The powder should be scattered through the hair next to the skin, especially in the region of the abdomen, inner thighs and tail areas. The treatment should be repeated at two-week intervals during the summer months.
Washing the animal in water containing derris or cube powder is another excellent method of control. Two ounces of the powder and an ounce of neutral soap—preferably in flaked form—are mixed with a gallon of water. This is applied to the dog either by dipping or sponging, or may be used as a final rinse following an ordinary soap-and-water bath. If bathing is not convenient, derris powder can be dusted into the coat and skin. The powder may cause vomiting if the dog breathes or swallows it, but does no serious harm. Keep the solution or powder away from the dog's eyes.
Control measures for the tick are not much more difficult, but do require persistence. The simplest method of removal, when only a few ticks are present, is to pick them off with tweezers. Dogs should be examined frequently for re-infestation, with special attention given to the ears, the neck and the spaces between the toes. A dusting powder containing 10 per cent DDT is usually very effective. Care should be taken that the powder penetrates the hair and reaches the dog's skin. This treatment should provide protection for as long as two weeks. The use of DDT in liquid or spray form may not be safe. Where 10 per cent DDT powder is not obtainable, a twice-weekly use of a derris dip is suggested. For this dip, dissolve one ounce of mild soap in a gallon of warm water, then stir three to four ounces of fine derris or cube powder (5% rotenone) into the solution. Pour the liquid over the dog and work into the coat with the fingers; keep repouring until the hair and skin are completely saturated. For greatest efficacy the dip should be allowed to dry on the dog.
A ready-to-use tick remedy, of high pyrethrum and rotenone content with an alcohol base, has recently come on the market. The full-strength fluid is sponged on the dog with a cloth or brush and is allowed to dry on the coat.
Long-haired dogs require more care than other breeds in the control of ticks. Clipping the coat is helpful but by no means necessary. A daily brushing with a stiff bristled brush is advisable, followed by use of a steel-toothed comb. The comb should be repeatedly dipped in pine oil or a light turpentine solution.
In combating fleas, ticks and other parasites, periodic attention should also be given to the dog's sleeping quarters and accessories, states the Gaines Dog Research Center. Wooden or wicker dog beds should be carefully wiped with a cloth dampened with pine oil or a commercially prepared dip, and blankets and cushions sprayed with fly spray and put outdoors to air. Outdoor kennels are best treated by spraying with creosote oil.

The Indispensable Tomato — Can It in a Variety of Ways
Canned tomatoes have an important place in every home canner's pantry. That is as it should be because tomatoes are the most all-round useful of home canned products. But why stop with plain canned tomatoes when there are so many other delightful things to do with that beautiful fruit of the garden?
For example, there is chili sauce to have at hand when sea-food cocktail or Thousand Island dressing is on the menu, and tomato paste when an Italian dish is to be prepared, and conserve to go with hot muffins and relishes to go with—oh well, you know with what. But here are two choice recipes you may like. They were given us by Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director for Ball Brothers Company and editor of that famous Blue Book of home canning and preserving recipes.

Chili Sauce
1 gallon tomatoes
2 cups onion
2 cups sweet red pepper
1 pod hot red pepper
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 tablespoon celery seed
3 tablespoons mixed spices
2 1/2 cups vinegar
Skin tomatoes before chopping. Chop all vegetables before measuring. Tie mixed spices in bag. Mix all ingredients except spice bag and vinegar. Add spice bag after mixture has boiled 30 minutes. Cook until very thick, then add vinegar and boil until there seems to be no more "free" liquid. Taste and add more seasoning if necessary. Pour, while boiling hot, into hot jars; seal at once.

Tomato Conserve
2 quarts chopped tomatoes
1 orange
2 lemons
8 cups sugar or 5 cups sugar and 3 cups corn sirup (light or dark)
2 cups seedless raisins
1 cup English walnut meats
1/4 teaspoon salt
Scald, skin, core, and chop sound, ripe tomatoes. Cut orange peel in paper thin slices. Cook tomatoes, lemon juice, orange pulp and peel until tomatoes are reduced to a pulp. If convenient, let stand over night. Add sugar and raisins, preferably Sultanas, and boil rapidly until thick. Add nuts and salt. Pour, boiling hot, into hot jars; seal at once.
