TAR DROPS.

—Chamber of Commerce tonight.
—The attention of our readers is called to the ad of Dr. S. Rapport in this issue.
—Deitz Bros. have a change of ad in this week's issue. Be sure and read what they have to say.
—The many Carnival attractions are creating right much attention among some of our people.
—Mr. D. G. Pearce has opened a meat market in the old dispensary building and will be glad to serve all his friends and customers. Read his ad.

—Gentlemen remember that Friday night is the time for another meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. Better go out as there will be something doing.

—Dr. S. P. Rapport will be in Louisburg at the Louisburg Hotel Wednesday September 8th for one day only. Remember, that you pay nothing for examination of your eyes in buying glasses of him, and he finishes only the best quality of glasses at moderate prices.

—We are requested to state that Rev. W. D. Morton, of the Presbyterian church, will preach in the Methodist church on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and at the Baptist church Sunday night at 8 o'clock. Also that there will be no services in the Baptist church in the morning and Methodist church in the evening of the above day.

—The Maryland Amusement Company is presenting quite an interesting Carnival here this week and from what we can learn those who attended their many places of amusement are getting their money's worth and is satisfactory. Mr. Wolcott, the manager, is a very clever gentleman and is doing all he can to please our pleasure loving people. They will go from here to Oxford next week.

—In conversation with one of the warehousemen here yesterday, he said "The primings which had been put on the market this season were very, very short, but seemed to show more quality than usual, that prices were better than on the opening, and the feeling among the buyers were all in favor of the seller, and that for himself he was not at all discouraged, as his past experience had taught him a bad beginning made a good ending." We feel sure that Louisburg's market has as never a set of buyers as any market in the State, and the farmer that puts his tobacco on the Louisburg market, can compare his bill with one from any other market in North Carolina.

The Times Will be Continued.

In answer to several inquiries since the death of Mr. Thomas, in regard to the continuation of the FRANKLIN TIMES, we will say to his friends and the friends of the paper that the paper will be continued and that the management will endeavor to make the paper measure up to its former good standard and will at all times be at the service of the public. The personnel of this paper will appear in a future issue.

Mr. J. A. Thomas

Mr. Editor—This is a humble tribute of the colored people of Franklin County to the memory of our best friend, Mr. Thomas. He was a true friend to the poor, the humble and the needy. The colored teachers of our county trusted him implicitly. It is very sad indeed that in this hour of our greatest need, when the races seem to be drifting apart, that our true and influential white friends should be away. This twilight race needs the friendship of influential white people. This is a personal loss to JOHN A. SAVAGE.

GOLDEN NEEDLES.

They Were Used When Gallants in France Did Fancy Work.

During the old regime in France, about which so much glamour remains to us, the very men who were living and making the history of the empire of Louis passed their leisure time in a way that seems to us of today utterly ridiculous. In all the fancy work on which ladies employed themselves the men seem to have taken part.

Poinsinet in one of his comedies represents a young marquis entering a room where two fair damsels are embroidering. One is working a piece of dress-trimming, the other a Marly founce. The beau examines the embroidery with the eye of a connoisseur, points out here and there the specially good touches and is too polite to notice any defects. He takes a little gold tube out of the pocket of his richly decorated waistcoat and selects a dainty gold needle. He goes to the frame at which Cidalise is working and finishes the flower which she had begun. From her he moves to the sofa and, seizing one end of the founce, assists Ismene, to whom he pays special attention, to complete her task.

At this time it was the custom of the ladies invariably to carry their workbags with them to the evening receptions, in which they had not only their embroidery materials, but the last novel, the popular songs, their patch boxes and rouge pots. Gentlemen also carried deftly embroidered little bags into company, which held "a whole arsenal of cutlery and fancy articles, such as boxes of different shapes filled with lozenges, bonbons, snuff and scent."

At another period the fashion of the day was to cut out drawings from books and pamphlets and to paste them on screens, lamp shades, boxes and vases. The skill in this was to so arrange the drawings or parts of different drawings as to produce a curious or amusing effect. Then there came a season when all the rage was for charades and riddles, which gave a peculiarly good opportunity to exercise the light and rapid wit so conspicuous in the French. Every evening the drawing rooms were converted into impromptu charades. Some lady would suggest a word or phrase, and forthwith it would be converted into the subject of a sprightly little play. Many of the word games now current with us in America had their origin in the necessity the French salons were under in the last century to divert themselves. In some of the salons the fashion of keeping a daily chronicle of news, which was too often a mere chronicle of scandal, was adopted. Mme. Doublet de Persan issued bulletins which she called "nouvelles a la main." In her apartments two registers were kept, one of the authentic news received here and there by her guests, the other of floating rumors and on dits, and from these the budget of her chronicle was made up and circulated throughout France.—Appleton's Magazine.

Telegrapher's Cramp.

An interesting feature of telegrapher's cramp is that certain letters are nearly always the stumbling block. The most frequent are C and Y—that is, the code signals used for these letters. When a sender begins to be "conscious" about so common a letter as C his case soon becomes hopeless. Another form of cramp attacks the receiver of the message. It takes the form of inability to write fast enough to take down a message quickly transmitted. This is easily understood when it is remembered that a receiver often has to write continuously to code dictation, so to speak, for hours at a time. The strain involved is enormous and leads fairly commonly to what is practically a form of nervous breakdown.—Dundee Advertiser.

The Black Sheep.

"What," asked the man who had returned to his native town after an absence of many years, "became of Ed Ferguson?"
"Ed? Oh, he's doin' fine. Got the best livery stable anywhere around here and runs the depot hack."

"Let's see! He had a younger brother, hadn't he?"
"Yes—Lem. He never amounted to much. Wrote poetry and painted pictures. I guess the family kind of disowned him. At least he went away several years ago, and I dunno what ever became of him."—Chicago Tribune.

His One Chance.

Mother (coming swiftly)—Why, Willie! Striking your little sister!
Willie (doggedly)—Aunt Frost-face made me.
Aunt Frost-face—Why, Willie, I said if you did strike her I would never kiss you again.
Willie (still dogged)—Well, I couldn't let a chance like that slip.
