Where a man practices a good
 He showed me large spots which were formerly bare galls. He covered them two feet deep with wheat straw and let it lie there to stop the frosting off and washing until it was completely rotted. Then the rotten straw plowed down deeply put some humus into the soil and the galls was no more. In the gullies filled with straw the soil collected, and soon the gullies could be plowed in and were no more.

twelve things to do in January.

- (1) Start the year like a business man. Take an inventory of your property, and begin at once to account of receipts and expenses.
- (2) See that all 1909 debts are promptly cleared off. There was never a better time to get even with this world and then stay so.
- (3) No land should be left in winter, but if and is without cover crops, plow in readiness for spring planting.
- (4) See that all stock and poultry are properly sheltered. Shelter is cheaper than feed.
- (5) Send for catalogue of dealers in improved seeds, implements and machinery. Plan to grow more productive varieties of all crops and cultivate with all possible cheap horse power instead of expensive hand labor.
- (6) Set about getting an improved breed of poultry, hogs and cattle this year.
- (7) Clean up the spruce and brush and fill up the gullies that separate your patches and unite them in great broad, evenly cultivated field.
- (8) Don't go crazy about the old line "money crops." There is money in corn and hay and cattle as well as in cotton and tobacco.
- (9) Drain that wet place on your farm. It will probably be the most fertile spot you have.
- (10) Map out a scheme for your whole farm, indicating the crops to go in each field, all arranged with due regard to the value of rotation.
- (11) Keep in health by using warm sloping, fresh air in sleeping rooms, moderation in eating, and prompt attention to colds. Let patent medicines alone.
- (12) See your county school superintendent and co-operate with him in organizing boys' corn clubs in your county.—Raleigh Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

The Gold Mine of the Farm.

I visited once an intelligent farmer in Alabama, who was breeding fine stock and making large crops of wheat in a section that had been devoted to all-cotton, and though he kept many cattle, I found his barnyard so clean that a lady could have walked over it in slippers. This man realized that his manure was a gold mine and did not let it run to waste. He said that when he began to grow wheat, he was laughed at, but he persevered, though his first crop was but six bushels per acre, and when I was there he was making 4,000 to 5,000 bushels of wheat at the rate of thirty-five bushels per acre. He was a man who found that it paid to feed cattle in the South and make manure. Growing large crops of wheat he did not have to rake pine straw for bedding, but had a great surplus of straw, and some of this he used for covering old ren galls and gullies on his farm.
 He showed me large spots which were formerly bare galls. He covered them two feet deep with wheat straw and let it lie there to stop the frosting off and washing until it was completely rotted. Then the rotten straw plowed down deeply put some humus into the soil and the galls was no more. In the gullies filled with straw the soil collected, and soon the gullies could be plowed in and were no more.

rotation of crops, grows small grain and feeds good forage to cattle, plows deeply and subsoils the red hills, in soon finds that in the manure made on the farm he had a real gold mine that increases in value and production year after year. The more manure used, the more feed can be grown; the more feed, the more cattle can be fed; and the more manure, the more corn and cotton, until the farmer is independent of the fertilizer mixer.—Raleigh Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

The mere mixing of materials to obtain analysis requires no special knowledge. The value of a fertilizer lies in the source from which the plant food is obtained.
