TO YOUR TENTS, OH ISRAEL!

Yesterday the Republican party in convention assembled at Greensboro made clear and definite the issue in the campaign in North Carolina this year. In the open daylight it took to its arms that political renegade, Marion Butler, accepted his leadership and crowned him king. Butlerism is the issue—and there is none other. The men in North Carolina who believe that this renegade should be called from his mysterious employment in and around the Nations Capital and be placed in control of this sovereign state should vote the Republican ticket. The men in North Carolina who believe that Marion Butler is a traitor to the best interests of the State, that his highest thought is to trade and traffic in the offices of the people, will vote and work and pray for the Democratic party. Butlerism, cunning and conscienceless, loving all that is low, and despising all that is high, poison to all that is pure and death to all that is decent is forming its line of battle. The issue is vital and plain. To your tents, Oh Israel!

The Republicans of North Carolina will either have to swallow Butlerism this year or vote the Democratic ticket.

All the visiting statesmen are reported as coming away from Oyster Bay "with a smile." What does the Colonel say to them?

YESTERDAYS News-Observer gives the Republican slogan, as adopted at Greensboro Wednesday as follows: "Butler, Booze, Boodle, Bonds." Isn't that nice for decent people?

Out of a class of thirty-three who stood the examination before the State Dental Society at Wrightsville Beach, July 11-13, only fifteen passed, among whom we notice the name of Dr. J. B. Cone, of Spring Hope.

It is reported that John Hays Hammond, the head of the National Republican Club, has embarked in the new Cotton Trust "to help the planters." His assistance should not lead the cotton growers to order new automobiles just yet. The coming campaign will be expensive and J. H. H. will need all of his spare cash to finance Republican candidates for Congress; and the planters will be fortunate if the Cotton Trust does not call on them for cash.

The Boston Transcript persists in saying that the Democrats have no affirmative program, or any coherence of purpose, and this is echoed by another Republican newspaper. How about real tariff reform; home rule; turn the rascals out; and economy instead of extravagance in National expenditures? With that program facing it, upon which all Democrats are agreed, no wonder the Transcript is worried.

A DEMOCRATIC candidate for Congress may be one of the luxuries, but it certainly is not one of the necessities of our form of national government.—Greensboro News.

Oh, yes, it is! In order to get Democratic Congressmen there must be Democratic candidates for Congress; and Democratic Congressmen are necessary to preservation, if not of "our form of national government," certainly of the spirit of our governmental institutions. Its founders intended this to be a government of the people, by the people, and for the people, and that is what Democracy would keep it. Under continued Republican control it is fast degenerating, if it has not already reached that point, into a government of the few for the benefit of the few and the oppression of the many. The one hope of its redemption lies in placing Democracy in charge of both the legislative and executive departments at Washington.—Virginian Pilot.

HISTORY WILL REPEAT ITSELF

Mr. Lincoln said that this country could not exist half slave and half free. War demonstrated that he was right. Senator Cummins says the Republicans cannot win half stand-pat and half insurgent. The election returns will demonstrate that Cummins is as correct as was Lincoln. It was demonstrated in 1890 when the Democrats in Congress were bitterly assailing the position of each other, that "a house divided against itself cannot stand."

Hon. Richmond Pearson has read the signs of the times aright and clearly interpreted them when he said the results of an election in a Massachusetts and in a New York district presage the repudiation that November would go to the Taft administration.

In 1908, in all parts of the country except in two or three States, the tide set strongly toward the Republicans, and not even in North Carolina could the Democrats save their Congressmen who were carried out under Republican undertow. In 1910 the conditions are reversed. The tide sets more strongly toward Democracy than it set toward Republicanism in 1908. Then republicans were united and confident. Now the Republicans are divided. Mr. Pence's letter in Sunday's paper showed how far apart are the leaders and gave the opinion each side has of the other. The extracts he gives today of the speech of Senator Dolliver show the great gulf between Regulars and Insurgents. The same wide division that defeated the Democrats in 1894 exists in the Republican party in 1910. Will the Republican division and inductive did for the Democratic party in 1894?

The national outlook for Democracy in 1910 is very bright from every point of view. In his letter today Mr. Pence shows that after the passage of the McKinley act the people of America repudiated it and only 86 Republicans were elected to the 1890 House of Representatives, and a majority of the Representatives chosen from New England were Democrats. The McKinley tariff was not as bad as the Payne-Aldrich tariff, and if the people of the whole country swept the party out of power for that bill, is not the vote in the Massachusetts, the Rochester and the Missouri districts, but a precursor of what may be expected in most districts in November? Do not "coming events cast their shadows before."—News-Observer.

No Laggard Democrats.

The campaign for Congress which is just now being entered upon is the most important from a partisan standpoint since the memorable struggle of 1896. It is the first time since then that the Democrats started in with an even chance with their Republican opponents.

There must be no laggard Democrats this year. Every speaker of prominence will be expected to take the stump in the interest of the Democratic Congressional candidates. The main issues are plain, and there is no difference of opinion about essentials such as our Republican friends are plagued with.

It is pleasant to note that such an eminent Democrat as Gov. Austin L. Crothers, of Maryland, has lately declared that when the speaking campaign opens, he will "take off his coat" and use his best efforts for the Democratic candidates in close Congressional districts. Those who know the striking style of Governor Crothers and his power as a political speaker will not be surprised to hear that already there is a great demand for his services to uphold the banner of Democracy.

TO OUR

Friends & Customers

As we stated last week in the TIMES we would open our house for the sale of the new crop of tobacco on

Thursday, August 18th

We feel like that we need no introduction to the tobacco growers of this section, having been in the business for twenty years and during all this time it has been our highest aim and greatest ambition to serve our customers to the best advantage, thereby giving them the benefit of our long experience in selling their tobacco. We flatter ourselves when we say that we know tobacco, as we have been raising, selling and buying it for all these years. Aye from the plant bed to the factory we know it. If you should think that experience don't count come and let us show you our averages for all the time we have been in business. Our force this season will be Mr. R. T. Bailey, Auctioneer, a man who has no superior in selling the weed. Book-keeper—Mr. Walter Farrow, who was with us last season and who gave our customers and ourselves perfect satisfaction by his honest and courteous treatment of each and every one. Our assistant book-keeper and weigh master will be Mr. G. C. Harris, who will see that every pile of tobacco is carefully and correctly weighed. We have associated with Mr. J. Edgar Harris who has had years of experience, as our floor and general manager and who will see that every pile of your tobacco is properly and neatly placed on the floor and who will look out for your interest and comfort in every way. In conclusion we would say that we have the most modern and best lighted house in the whole tobacco belt. We also have nice and well ventilated camp rooms, also a good baggage room so that we can take care of your baggage. We have plenty of water in the warehouse for your team, also nice and well littered stalls for them. We are in the business to serve and please you. Thanking you heartily and kindly for your patronage in the past. We hope and believe that the short crop of this year will endeavor us with hard work and untiring efforts to better please you in the future. Don't forget the day, Thursday, August 18th, 1910.
