CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

FLOWERS FOR THE LIVING.
Once while assisting in the last sad rites that so often fall on us to perform here on earth, for some dear and precious loved one stricken by the hand of death we were particularly impressed as we beheld the casket containing the still, silent form so profusely covered with flowers that it seemed.

"'T would be bliss to their repose." But we had known the pathway that that silent form had trod. Few flowers bloomed beside it, but little sunlight ever crossed it. Tired and weary, few proffered help, sad and discouraged, few spoke words of cheer. Thorns by the way, there seemed none to remove them; often cast down there seemed none near to lift up. A heart starving for a loving word, a soul bewildered for lack of a tender hand to guide. But all is over now; the pangs the regrets, the cares, the sorrows can hamper that form no longer, neither can any tender, loving administration you may now bestow take one pang, one regret, pluck one thorn or emit one ray of sunshine on the life already over, or add one jot to the bliss of the soul in its new estate. That day most beautiful flowers were proffered by those whose lips never uttered one word of cheer to the departed, nor hands never holden out to help, to remove the thorn, to smooth the way and make at least one pleasant little oasis on life's desert.

Have we friends? We trust we have. Then we pray them save not all the flowers for my burial, but sprinkle a few along my pathway now—just a few. We can appreciate ate them just now. How refreshing—how they will fill my poor heart with joy just to know someone thinks of us—cares for us, is even solicitous for our welfare. Oh, how it brightens life, lightens its burdens; the consolation even softens a dying pillow, might we not say adds bliss to the departed spirit. Yes, strew our coffin with flowers, but oh, grant us a few by the way—just a few bestowed against the day of our burial.

NUMBER ONE.

"I always take care of 'Number One,'" said one of a troop of boys at the end of a bridge, some wanting to go one way and some another.

"That's you, out and out," cried one of his companions. "You don't think or care about any one but yourself, you ought to be called Number One."

"If I did not take care of 'Number One, who would I should like to know?" cried he?

True, Number One was right. He ought to take care of himself—good care.

"But does not that smack a little of selfishness?" the boys ask. "Number One thinks of nobody but himself."

Nobody but himself that certainly is selfish, and therefore wrong. Yet Number One is committed to our own care. What sort of care is the all-important question.

Take care of his habits. Make Number One industrious, persevering, self-denying and frugal. Give him plenty of good, healthy work to do, teach him how best to do it, and keep him from lounging and all idle company.

Take care of the lips of Number One. Let truth dwell on them. Put a bridle in his mouth that no angry, backbiting tale shall come from it. Let no profane or impure word escape. Let the law of kindness rule his tongue and all his conversation be such as becomes a child of God.

Take care of the affections and feelings of Number One. Teach him to love God with all his heart and his neighbor as himself; to care for others, and share with others; to be lowly in mind, forgiving, gentle, sympathizing, willing to bear and forbear, easily entreated, doing good to all as he has opportunity.

This is the care to take of Number One, and a rich blessing will be proved to his home, and neighborhood, and himself. Buy, you all have Number One to take care of; and a responsible charge it is.

We need to remember that success in life is not success in material life alone but in the social and religious as well. That a man is not a practical man who is a merchant, a farmer, a teacher merely; he must also be a citizen, a neighbor, a friend, a son, perhaps a brother, a husband, a father—and most important of all a little child in the garden of a Heavenly King.
