TAR DROPS.

—Read the new advertisements in this issue.

—And Christmas gets closer and closer. Are you ready for it?

—Removing the tree in front of F. W. Wheelers' residence on Church Street made a great improvement.

—Don't forget to pay up your subscription by Christmas Eve as the editor wants to enjoy the holidays.

—Messrs. John E. Williams and Osmond J. Hale have taken positions in the Times office.

—Attention is called to the advertisement of Frank Ballard in this issue. All who wish to buy things of this kind can no doubt save money by attending this sale.

—Mr. H. G. Ellington was a pleasant caller at the Times office this week and paid up and also renewed his subscription for which we extend to him our many thanks.

—The time is not far hence when music will be as much a part of the curriculum of our public schools as reading, writing and arithmetic. The progressive schools always lead off and bring to the world new light and knowledge of new and beneficial reforms and surely our public school does not want to be the last in line with this new order of things already proven to be of intrinsic worth and value.

—No, the dearest man on earth is not numbered in Father Times harvest. You cannot find his tomb stone in the cemetery, neither does a mossy mound mark his lowly bed. His last resting place was on a cracker box in the grocery, and there he will remain dead to everything good, dead to all activity, dead to friendship and dead to his home ties until Gabriel shall awaken him to a more active life in a future world. Boys, don't stagnate, don't be a living corpse, don't vegetate like any other cabbage head. Be something. Make every minute count. Why, I would much rather be a first-class corpse, with my body nurturing the green grass above me and taking my chances of developing into the liveliest kind of an angel "over there," than to exist in such a mental fog of stupidity, as if the undertaker had judged I was not worth a coffin.

—A pretended "widow" wrote to an attorney in Washington asking what steps she should take to secure a pension on account of the death of her husband while serving in the army. The attorney sent back a list of questions to be answered by the applicant. She replied to the question, "What was the name of the dead soldier?" as follows: "Although I cannot give my husband's name nor describe him, I insist that he was killed in the army; also where he is, and why so long gone? For surely, of all the brave boys who left home and friends to fight for our country, one must have been my husband, and, for the sake of that unnamed, unknown grave where my dear brave boy is sleeping his last long sleep, I have never married. I have never married. I think I have told you all you will care to know, as you are only interested in pensions, and I am not a pensioner. I have said many times that my husband died in the army, never thinking I should be called to account for it. But you won't forget the poor little unknown widow, will you? Yours most sincerely,

Notice

Master Harold Jackson spent a few days with his grandmother Mrs. M. E. Beddingfield this week.

Young men don't forget to bring your pennies and dimes along with you to the Apron Party. A good time is in store for all. X.

Pocomoke Items.

As I am writing these items all things are covered with a mantle of snow. This snow represents purity, but not the purity that characterizes our lives, for we too often deviate from the right, but in its perfect whiteness it typifies the purity of the only perfect man that ever lived on earth. There are many things in nature which present beautiful and imposing scenes, and if we would but stop to look and think of these things, we might learn to look up more often with reverence through nature to nature's God.

We have been having quite an interesting time about Pocomoke. Three marriages have been solemnized near us, and all the wedding crowds passed through our place. The contracting parties were Mr. Fleming Fuller and Miss Mamie Garner, Mr. Wayland Hookday and Miss Beasie Evans, Mr. Morton Bailey and Miss Audrey Fuller. Everything passed off nicely with the exception of one accident. One of the automobiles that came out from Franklinton ran over and killed one of our old hens.

We are sorry to know that Mrs. Martha Catlett is seriously sick.

W. M. Jones, who has been very sick, is reported better.

Miss Lizzie Whitfield is teaching at Pope's.

That young man in Cat Town who expected to set up to keeping house last summer is still boarding with his parents. He says he made a complete failure in his efforts to secure a housekeeper. I hope he will

HARTS WAREHOUSE

LOUISBURG, N. C.

October 28th—Prices reached high water mark for tobacco at Harts Warehouse this week, all grades from the lowest up to the highest are now selling higher than at any previous time for a number of years. Our advice is to market your tobacco as fast as you can, as there is never a better time to sell than when prices are high. I am not paying, or asking you to pay a lot of drummers to tell you where to sell your tobacco, or to persuade you to sell it where you do not want to, but as a matter of business will guarantee to put more dollars and cents in your pocket for your tobacco than any other warehouseman in North Carolina, quality considered. Get you a piece of paper and pencil and see if you can count up how many men have been to see you for the past week, trying to persuade you to carry your tobacco to them and if not trying to buy your tobacco at home, what does this mean? Just this, tobacco has gone up, and they think perhaps you are not wise to the fact. Just remember this, that J. R. Collie at Harts Warehouse sells it higher and treats you better.

TRY THIS HOUSE AND MAN AND BE CONVINCED

J. R. COLLIE, Louisburg, N. C.
