Mr. Carnegie and the Tariff.
Probably no one has been benefited more by trusts than has Andrew Carnegie. The high protection on steel was the foundation of his fortune, and the continued protection on iron and steel resulted in his becoming a multi-millionaire.

Mr. Carnegie is the greatest living authority on the production of iron and steel, and if anyone knows the actual difference in the cost of production here and abroad on those commodities, he is the man. He again declares, as he did in his testimony before the Ways and Means Committee in the spring of 1909, that the iron and steel industry requires no tariff protection.

His latest contribution to the tariff issues is published in the May Century, entitled "The A, B, C of the Tariff Question". In that article he declares that the tariff is a perfectly simple subject, with nothing obscure about it. He would construct a tariff on the following lines: (A) No duties on the necessities of life. (B) Heavy duties upon all luxuries. (C) Temporary protection for new industries when it is probable that we may be able finally to obtain a home supply as cheap or cheaper than from abroad. He insists that necessities shall be free from protection and that a tariff for revenue shall be on luxuries alone. That is very close to the Democratic doctrine of a tariff for revenue with a very low tariff on necessities and a higher tariff on luxuries.

We are glad to see that since the time when Mr. Carnegie was participating in the enormous profits that the highest tariff protection gave on iron and steel, a great light has shone upon him, and that he now advocates the evasion of the tariff downward.

No wonder the standpat Republicans are sick at heart, now that their former foremost champion has deserted them and is virtually supporting the "farmers' free list trade" bill for placing necessities on the free list.

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM

It Is An Internal Disease And Requires An Internal Remedy.

The cause of rheumatism and kindred diseases is an excess of uric acid in the blood. To cure this terrible disease this acid must be expelled and the system so regulated that no more acid will be formed in excessive quantities. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. RUBBING with Oils and Liniments WILL NOT CURE, affords only temporary relief at best, causes you to delay the proper treatment, and allows the malady to get a firmer hold on you. Liniments may ease the pain, but they will no more cure rheumatism than paint will change the fiber of rotten wood.

Science has at last discovered a perfect and complete cure, which is called RHEUMACIDE. Tested in hundreds of cases, it has effected the most marvelous cures; we believe it will cure you. Rheumacide gets at the joints from the inside, sweeps the poison out of the system, tones up the stomach, regulates the liver and kidneys and makes you well all over. Rheumacide strikes the root of the disease and removes its cause. This splendid remedy is sold by druggists and dealers generally at 50c. and $1 a bottle. In Tablet form at 25c. and 50c. a package. Write to Bobblitt Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md. Booklet free. Tablets sent by mail.
