THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

Pleasant Evening Reveries.—A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

Philosopher and poet are alike in the verdict that the safety and perpetuity of any nation lies in the homes of its people.

Many women now-a-days want to turn the home into the street, so to speak, and make "the world work" everything and the home life nothing. But a restful home, once experienced, is a joy above the promises of progress to disturb; and a restful — and intelligent — woman alone can make it.

A friend of ours lost a fine Jersey cow the other day—tied her too long. She got tangled up in the rope and broke her neck—a case of too much rope. How many instances there are in life that are counterparts of the above! The cherished of our hearts, our own flesh and blood, are often allowed to gradually slip away from us and out from under our control, all because we love them so much and hate to restrict their pleasures or say "no" to them.

The world need never shed a tear for its sainted dead. They are safe as the harvest is when the farmer has bound it into sheaves and stored it away or as the roses are when the gardener has wrapped their roots in straw and housed them from the storm. They are safe as the larks that fly singing from the green earth out of reach of the huntsman's snare and the aim of the cruel sportsman. They are safe as warriors, who march beneath worn battle-flags no more, but sit down with conquerors to festivals of song and wine. They are safe as young lambs are when shepherds fold them from the blast and carry them over rough places in tender arms. Weep for living all you choose: let your tears be unstayed above the dying bed where your darlings lie like wreaths fading snow beneath the glance of a with; but if you believe in God, and hold any faith in heaven, shed not your tears for the blessed and happy dead. Christianity gives the lie to its belief when it garbs itself in sables and mourns without comfort for those who have exchanged the inn for the palace, the wilderness for the land of peace and plenty.

The evening is the hour when crafty Satan preaches most eloquently. It is also the hour when he can gather the largest and most attentive audience. In our great cities Satan's churches are crowded every evening. But, fortunately, the evening hour is also the hour in which the good angel can gather the largest audience and he who would baffle Satan's influence must preach in the evening. The evening is the hour when the protesting power of home is greatest; it is the hour when its protection is most needed.

If men would remember that women can't always be smiling, who have to cook the dinner, answer the bell half a dozen times, get rid of a neighbor who has dropped in, tend to a sick baby, tie up the cut finger of a two-year-old, gather up the playthings of a four-year-old, tie up the head of a six year-old on skates, and get an eight-year-old ready for school, to say nothing of sweeping, cleaning, etc. A woman with all these to contend with may claim it a privilege to look and feel a little tired sometimes, and a word of sympathy would not be too much to expect from the man, who, during the honeymoon, wouldn't let her carry as much as a sunshade.

There is as much truth as poetry in the lines:

"Laugh and the world laughs with you;

Weep, and you weep alone."

And perhaps it is well. There is inevitable sadness enough in each lot without adopting that of others. Sympathy for real troubles should always be given, along with what help is possible. But there are many persons who, especially in their own families, talk too much of their own ills and troubles, although they are always smiling and genial among strangers, and ever ready with a pleasant "thank you," for every service rendered. If they can rise above their dependencies in the presence of strangers with a persistent effort they can stay above them at home till they may be in the end forget a part of them, at least in finding how much better they are liked by those around them. If you would pass successfully through life, wear a bright face and a pleasing manner even though they may sometimes mask a heavy heart.

It is painful to read the particulars of the numerous divorce suits that fill the columns of the daily papers. Many of these sad events are from good homes and the interested parties stand high in social life, and not a few in church life. This separation between husband and wife is one of the sad scenes in human existence. Many times either would prefer death to this unhappy parting. For years they have lived together and their lives have been blended into one. They have learned by bitter experience, as the years have gone by that they are not suited to one another and finally, in a moment of discord or passion, the silken cord has broken and they separate forever. Let us hope that in the world to come, when they can all see things plainer than they do in this life, they may be united again, but there is a probability that unhappy marriages, resulting from unsuited positions, will not result in union or happiness in this world or the one to come. "What God has joined together let no man put asunder?"

What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time. Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently.

Grateful endorsements should prove undoubtedly the merits of this remedy. Years ago people right in this locality testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say that time has completed the test.

Mrs. Charles Bridgers, 227 E. Davis St., Raleigh, N. C., says: "I can strongly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, for they have done me a world of good. I used them three years ago and I shall never forget how greatly I was benefited. The backaches and pains through my kidneys were removed and the trouble with the kidney secretions was also corrected. I have had no occasion to use a kidney medicine since that time. In January 1908, a member of my family publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills and at this time I do not hesitate one moment in confirming that statement."

"Don't Stop at Anything."

The committee of the Illinois Senate is getting hold of some startling testimony in the Lorimer investigation.

On witness, W.H. Cook, a Duluth lumberman, testified that Hines, a Lorimer striker, "took the telephone out of my hand and he spoke in the 'phone: 'Hello is this you, governor? Well, I just left President Taft and Senator Aldrich last night in Washington. They told me that under no consideration shall Hopkins be returned to the Senate. I will be down on the next train prepared to furnish all the money that is required. Now, don't stop at anything.'" This would indicate that the Lumber Trust, if not the Beef Trust, was furnishing "all the money that is required" to elect Lorimer.

But we are averse to believe that President was opposed to Hopkins, though we can quite readily believe that Senator Aldrich was and that he favored Lorimer. The result shows that the "governor", whoever he was, and the other Lorimer supporters carried out his instructions and "didn't stop at anything."

Some times it is better to have loved and lost than to have been the other fellow.

A woman doesn't mind her husband's having a good time according to her idea of it.

No matter how homely a man is he can always find some woman willing to marry him.

Did you ever hear of a woman who earned her pin money by running a bowling alley?
