MOST BEAUTIFUL EVENT

MR. AND MRS. J. A. TURNER CELEBRATE

Their Crystal Wedding-The Occasion one of the Largest Social Events of the Season.

Mr. and Mrs. James Archbald Tur-ner celebrated their "Crystal Wedding" onday evening from nine until eleven o'clock, receiving more than three hundred, who called to extend their most cordial greetings.

Mesdames Thomas B. Wilder and Ivey Allen met the guests at the door. In the hall, near by, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Boddie and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Ford served punch. Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. McKinne presented the guests to the receiving line: Mr. and Mrs. James A. Turner, Mrs. James Fearing, of Elizabeth City, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Palmer, Dr. and Mrs. S. C. Ford, of Franklinton, Dr. and Mrs. S. P. Burt, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice S. Clifton. Mrs. Palmer was Mrs. Turner's maid of honor, and Dr. Burt, Dr. Ford and Mr. Clifton were attendants at the wedding fifteen years ago.

Mrs. R. R. Harris ushered the guests into the dining room where Mesdame Brantley G. Hicks, L. L. Joyner, J. B. Yarborough and T. W. Watson, school friends of Mrs. Turner, received. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. White pileted the callers from the dining room into the cof-fee room where Mesdames W. B. Morton and R. C. Beck, Misses Cora Bagley and Mary Best served. In the gift room, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. McKinne showed the guests around where more than three hundred and fifty crystal gifts were displayed. As the guests were about to leave, Mr. Harry L. Candler presented to each lady a growing narcissus in a crystal bowl, while Miss Eleanor Cooke gave the gentiemen pink carnations.

The handsome Turner home was decorated with great skill, and brilliantly lighted. The hall with palms, ferns and red carnations; the parlor, color scheme, white and green, carried out in banked ferns and chrysanthemums; the dining room, with smilax, pink carnations and North Carolina pine; the gift and coffee rooms, with ivey and yellow carnations. From the rear of the hall, Falte's orchestra filled the house with pleasing music.

Mrs Turner wore white brocaded charmeuse, pearl trimmings, carried white carnations; Mrs. Fearing, yellow crepe de chine over mossaline dew drop trimmings, yellow chrysanthe mums; Mrs. Palmer, chiffen over pink massaline, pearl trimmings, pink car-nations; Mrs. Burt, black crepe de chine over massaline, jet trimmings, white carnations; Mrs. Clifton, blue massaline, draped in dew drop net, white carnations; Mrs. Ford, blue messaline, pearl trimmings, pink carnations.

The out-of-town guests were. Mrs. James G. Fearing, Elizabeth City; Dr. and Mrs. S. C. Ford, Franklinton; Miss Clementine Miller, Ocolona, Miss; Miss Emma Page, Aberdeen, Mr. J. W. Mann. Nashville.

The evening was at its best, even for early November; the home splendid appointment, especially beautiful with the decorations; so many ladies splendidly gowned and jeweled; the general good fellowship and gracious ness of the Turners; these and other things made this one of the happiest social affairs of many moons.

After the reception, the young peo ple, enjoyed until one o'clock a very pleasing dance at the opera house.

Literature Club.

The Current Literature Club met en Thursday afternoon, November 7, with Mrs, Malcolm McKinne and it was indeed a delightful occasion.

In spite of the inclemency of the weather a goodly number gathered at the appointed hour.

After the minutes of the last meetng, a most charming evening with Mrs. ever Allen, the roll was called and the members answered with some current event; a pleasant discussion of these vari ous items of news followed, after which came the discussion of "Mill on the Floss," the book chosen by Mrs. Me-Kinne for her meeting.

A most complete and interesting outline of the story was given by Mrs. Jor. dan Barrow after which several de-lightful character sketches were read. Mrs. Cralli in a brief and charmingly written paper brought vividly, before us the sensitive, high, soules. Philip im-ternanted in the deserged body of a mass back, Miss Alles in LOUISBURG, N. Mrs. Bickett wrote of loving impulsive Maggie—whose life was a contin-ious struggle and yet who at the last made of herself a supreme sacrifice.

Mrs. McKinne then read an intesest-ing sketch of "George Elirt "of whose life "Mill on the Floss" is said to be largely descriptive, and "Maggie" herself, in a great measure, a repreduc tion of the author's self.

After a discussion of the various points and characters of the book, delicious and elaborate refreshments were served, and the members adjourned to meet with Mrs. Perry Neul, for a "Thanksgiving meeting" November 21.

The Current Literature Club has reorganized with much enthusiasm for the coming year.

Mrs. Jordan Barrow is the charming president of this club, and the meet-ings promise to be both instructive and interesting.

The programme for the year includes a short discussion of "Current Events" at each meeting, and the review of some good sook chosen from those best known and loved and in this delightful association of the new and oid, the members are anticipating many pleasant honors.

seen sold on the local market here the past week and at good strong prices. There was a 27,000 pound sale here that brought $6,300.00, which is recognized as an extra high average for an entire sale. A great demand for all grades of tobacco is evident at this time and the buyers are all bidding strong for their share. During the past week many farmers from abroad have been on the lecal market and seems especially, well pleased with the prices. Friday's sale was another large sale and both our warehouses were well filled.

Sale Pestponed.

Mr. K. P. Bill informs us that on account of his not being able to get arrangements made for the big mortgage sale on November 20, he has postponed same until December 20 and 21st, when he will have beside lots of other things; more then one hundred head of horses and mules. Watch his advertisement in this paper for further and complete announcements. Bear this date in mind as his advertisement this week went to press before he had decided to postpone.

Farmers Union Work.

Appointments for J. O. Sledge for the following week: Mapleville, Monday night, November 18; Babrock, Tuesday night, November 19; Gates-ville, Wednesday night Nevember 20; Seven Paths, Thursday night November 21; Raynor, Friday night November 22. Mr. Sledge informs us that he has had fairly good attendance so far, and very good results. It is hoped that the attendance will continue to be good. Within the past week the sire for a third story in the storage house has grown so strong that special stock for this purpose has been subscribed by stockholders to the amount that it will be put on, this adds still more to the splendid house which is being rapidly built, and the amount looked for the corporation is still greater. Unionism in the county should feel encouraged.
