-We are glad to see so many young men from the farm attending school. A farmer needs an education as much as persons of other trades. The farmer of fifty years ago is not the farmer of today, and the farmer of today will not be the farmer of twenty years hence. It costs but little to educate the boy at the present time. Money spent for education is well spent. Franklin, said 'A dollar in the head is worth two in the pocket."

-Farmers, educate your boys. You may give them money, but they may not know how to spend it in the right way. You may give them property, and they may not know how to keep it. Give them an education and they will have something that cannot be taken away-something that they can give away and still retain, something that will give them a place in society, equip them for life's battles, and may perhaps enroll their names on the pages of Old Time Corn Shucking.

Dickens lives a farmer right, Mr. James Gray Murphy. Mr. Murphy started two vears ago to practice better methods of farming. Bought a two horse plow, and sowing clover the result is one of the finest crops in that community. He gathered his corn put it in a long pile in his grove near his dwelling and invited his neighbors and friends on last Thursday to come and help him shuck it By 2 o'clock they fi ished shucking between seventy-five and one hundred barrels, and put up the shucks. There were about sixty present. Those from a distance were W. H. Allen, P. B. Griffin, J. B. Yarborough and one Automobile something you never saw at a cornshucking before. This was a sort of "Halloween" corn shucking as Thursday to come and help him advertisement of sale of a saw mill shuck it By 2 o'clock they finished of "Halloween" corn shucking, as you could see the golden winged you could see the golden winged spirits floating around the corn pile occasionally, but no one fainted, but all smilled. Mr. Ilurphey, being thoughtful and a hospitable man had prepared a most bountiful dinner of all the good things to eat that you find on the farm, excellently prepared, well served. Everybody enjoyed the dinner.

Mr. Murphey has a very interesting family of bright and intelligent girls and boys, and a beautiful home
