PARTY FROCKS FOR MAIDENS GAY

Simple Materials and Lines Are Most Effective—Dresses She May Also Wear in Summer.

New York, December 13.—Holiday time is drawing near, when the boys and girls of school age (and any age for that matter) are planning parties and all manner of good times. The question of dainty dresses for the girls has been successfully met, in many instances, by frocks of summery materials, suitable for our warm American houses and also for the summer festivities and warm days. Some of the big stores here in New York are making quite a specialty of these holiday frocks, this year, and they are refreshingly simple and dainty. The materials are, in many cases, all-over embrodery, net, Georgette crepe, muli or organdie, instead of the more elaborate silks and satins of a year or so ago, and they seem far more suited to the youthful wearer than the much-trimmed frock.

There are many ways of using wool embroidery on party frocks. Of course smocking in silk or mercerized cotton has always been popular, but I saw a stunning little dress the other day of white crepe de Chine smocked in a heavy rose wool, with an accent of black every now and then. The effect was charming and most unusual. Of course, too, there are the knitted collars and cuffs on satin and serge dresses for afternoon wear.

Youth and Beauty.

No one wants to decorate and gild a lily, and yet there are mothers who dress their fresh young daughters in velvet and other "grown-up" materials, heavily beaded and embroidered. In many instances, it is because the daughter begs so hard for them, for youth always wishes to appear older.
Long lines are as becoming to the jeune fille as to her grown-up sister, though this does not mean that she must wear skirts too long for her years.

Light colors, or darker shades that are somewhat neutralized are best, for if she takes the proper amount of exercise, her color is usually good and clear. Ribbons and sashes belong, of hereditary right, to her, from bows on her hair to her dainty satin slipper rosettes. Fine lace, Valenciennes particularly, is charming if not used too much. It is always wiser to "unload" than to "overload," in the way of trimming.

Soft and Girlish.

Batiste is always appropriate for the party frock, and the one illustrated here shows just the proper amount of trimming. Fillet lace is inserted med-all-over-wise in the waist, and the pockets, sleeves, collar and skirt have insertion and edging, all put in by hand. Wool batiste could be used also, and albatross or crepe de Chine would be equally effective. Her slippers are white canvas (these, too, she may wear later in the year), and the crush girdle and the bow on her hair or some delicate shade, blue, pink, canary or green.

Her Accessories.

She, too, knits for the soldiers and sailors, so her knitting bag is often an essential part of her costume, as unstudied as it is decorative. She loves bright colors, and so may indulge in them here to her heart's content without any fear of bad taste. She wears silk stockings for very best, either black or the sage color as her dress or ribbons, and her low-heeled slippers are without ornate buckles, a tiny bow rosette or button being considered sufficient if something is necessary.
Jewelry is not for her, unless it be a string of gold or silver beads, or the All-over Embroidery and Eyelet Work, necessary beautypins. Rings, except the small seal or crest that she delights in, are not proper, and precious stones on "little women" are very bad form. Her gloves are simple, too; she does not wear white gloves in the evening, but if the occasion be very for-mual, she has a pair for afternoon wear.
As to fans, combs or hairpins, she has no need for them, and so does not bother with them. Sometimes, a tortoise-shell barrette holds her locks in place, or a round comb or side comb of very simple workmanship supplanthe ribbon bow.

Demurely Fetching.

The square neck is always becoming to the young girl, and the dress illustrated here has the neck outlined in narrow lace. The skirt is of all-over embroidery and there is a touch of hand embroidery on the waist and sleeves. A tassel or two gives an air of careless grace.

A Chicago man has been fined for kissing his own wife. The record of the case shows that he was fined for the intent rather than the deed, he thinking he was kissing another woman. Old Davy Crockett's advice was good—"be sure you're right, then go ahead."

AIDS IN Y. W. C. A. WAR WORK.

Mrs. T. W. Bickett Speaks at Her Home Town, Louisburg.

Louisburg, Dec. 11.—To a packed house of her warm friends and admirers Mrs. Thomas Walter Bickett spoke along the line of North Carolina's part in the great drive that is now being made for the work of the Y. W. C. A., Sunday afternoon in the Methodist church.

Mrs. Bickett is at the head of the campaign in this State. In her opening words she said she felt like the little boy who had lost his way, and to the query of a friend as to what he wanted he said, "I want to go home." In starting this enterprise she felt like she wanted to come home where the people all love her and believe in her.
The address greatly moved her audience and there is not the least doubt in anybody's mind but that the Louisburg women will do their part and more in this most laudible work.

who are staying in the French capital until their home is once more wrested from German hands.

Presents For The Children

On Saturday and Monday December 22 and 24th we will have a Christmas tree at our store which will contain a present for every child in Franklin and adjoining Counties who are present to get same and every one is especially invited to come to our store on these days.

We extend our many appreciations to the people of this vicinity for the liberal share of their patronage given us during the year 1917, and hope that your Holidays will be spent amid much happiness.

We still have a few big bargains we are offering to close out before the holidays and you could do no better than call in and see them, we have many articles that will make exceptional Christmas Gifts and invite your inspection. If you like them we know you will buy, as the prices are so low they will surprise you.

Wishing you much happiness during the holidays so near at hand and hoping to see you and all your children at our store on Saturday and Monday before Christmas.
