Louisburg, North Carolina

THE GREAT WAR HAS MADE CIGARETTES A NECESSITY.

"Our boys must have their smokes. Send them cigarettes!" This is a familiar appeal now to all of us.

Among those most in demand is the now famous "toasted" cigarette—LUCKY STRIKE. Thousands of this favorite brand have been shipped to France. There is something homelike and friendly to the boys in the sight of the familiar green packages with the red circle.

This homelike, appetizing quality of the LUCKY STRIKE cigarette is largely due to the fact that the Burley tobacco used in making it has been toasted. "It's toasted" was the slogan that made a great success of LUCKY STRIKE in less than a year. Now the American Tobacco Co. is making 15 million LUCKY STRIKE Cigarettes a day.

A good part of this immense production is making its way across the water to cheer our boys. The Red Cross has distributed thousands of LUCKY STRIKE Cigarettes.

Next week is "Flag Week" in Franklin County and as a pledge of loyalty to "Old Glory" every man and woman has been asked to purchase at least one War Savings Certificate and every child at least one Thrift Stamp before Saturday night, April 5th.

Just at this season of the year the threat of an ice-famine holds a little terror as the reality of a coal famine.

SPRING TELLS HER FASHION SECRETS

The Popularity of Separate Waist and Skirt Increases.

THE VOGUE OF THE PLEAT.

New York, March, 30, 1918. The other night I went to a glorified Fashion Show, given in the ball room of one of the big hotels. It was under the auspices of a war charity, and so the interest was twofold. Never have I seen a more wonderful collection of clothes, and never was there more simplicity or good taste. Marvelous materials and colors, with just the proper amount of trimming, not too much and not too little. There were slim afternoon frocks, formal and semi-formal evening gowns, big coats, coat suits and summer furs, and after each one was shown, there was a general whisper, "Oh, how lovely."

A Georgette Blouse and Corded Silk Skirt

Long, straight lines, emphasizing the slim silhouette, graceful folds and drapery, skirts rather narrow around the lower edge and, mayhap, a trifle longer than we have been seeing; air went to make up the sum total of youth, simpleness—and springtime. Indeed, so simple were these fascinating models that one felt they could be made at home, if one were very careful! Tunics, long and short, straight around the lower edge or shaped, some very short on one hip and reaching the hem on the other. Satins, charmeuse, Georgette crepe, taffeta; all the lovely silken fabrics that are taking the place of wool in the wardrobe of the patriotic woman.

The Acme of Simplicity
Sleeves were short on these simple affairs, and were in a great many instances cut in one with the waist. Sometimes, as for instance, in a quaint little dress of greenish-blue taffeta, the sleeve was of Georgette crepe, attached to the long drop shoulder. Cuffs were extremely interesting, and collars, too. Indeed, the collars went from one extreme to the other, they were either very large or very narrow. The round neck with a collar about two inches wide was favored on the Eton dresses and suits. Belts, too, were either very, very wide or a mere girld of beads tied loosely twice around after the fashion of the chate-laines of old-time castles. The waist-line, of course, was very low in these frocks.

The Separate Waist and Skirt.

I wonder if there will ever be a time when there is not a place for the separate waist and skirt. They fill gaps between frocks, otherwise left painfully vacant. This year, too, there seems to be quite a vogue for the dainty little waist to wear with the tub or satin skirt. Of flesh-colored Georgette crepe was the one illustrated here, and the skirt was made of that heavy ribbed silk so much like the old-fashioned bengaline. Could anything be more simple? And there is the new silk sweater, made on huge needles, to wear with this costume; so large are the needles that the work fairly flies in clever fingers, and one has a sweater before one knows it! They are light and airy for summer, and can be made in such bewitching colors.

The Pleat of the Pleat.

The pleat seems to have come in to stay; we find it on every variety of dress, from the simple house dress to the elaborate evening gown. On collars and cuffs, on the edges of wide tucks in sheer organdie skirts, finishing off the bell-shaped sleeves and V neck of the separate waist, the pleated ruffle is taking the place of other materials. Made of the same or a contrasting material, it is fascinatingly dainty. Pleated tunics are very good form, as are pleated dresses, one-piece affairs that are such close adherents of the straight silhouette.

The One-Piece Dress of 1918

One-piece dresses are still great favorites. They are so generally becoming, and then, too, in this day of patriotic conservation of all materials, they require so little goods! The one illustrated here buttons down the front, and has only a "part-way" belt, one of the new fashion features. Her

GIRLS! HAVE A MASS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR, SOFT, GLOSSY, WAVY

A small bottle destroys dandruff and doubles beauty of your hair.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small stand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.
