Water Softened With Red Devil Lye

Cleans everything instantly. Soft water makes washing easy, and just a little Red Devil Lye in a tub of hard water softens it like rain-water.

With Red Devil wash water you use less than half the soap and the daintiest fabrics will be whiter than usual—with little or no rubbing—it's the rub that ruins.

Works Wonders

throughout the home. It will keep bath-tubs, wash bowls, toilets and kitchen sinks white, clean and sanitary. It whitens and removes grease spots from floors, windows, tile or marble, and does the household dirty work in a hurry—without trouble and with little expense.

Red Devil Lye also makes wonderful soap, peels peaches in a jiffy. It is the real housekeeper's friend.

It will be many years before the hen tribe will cease boasting of the great age attained by their ancestors who flourished during the world war.

An exchange says of the great dam to be constructed on Sunday River in Africa, "will impound sufficient water to support 10,000 persons." Just how much water does it take to support a person, anyway?

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF LAND.
Under and by virtue of Deed of Trust, executed by B. J. Williams and wife, Laura Williams, on the 21st of January, 1912, to J. H. Kerr, Trustee, said deed of trust being recorded in Book 177, page 34, in the Registry of Franklin county, North Carolina, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said deed of trust and demand having been made for the foreclosure thereof, the undersigned Trustee, will on MONDAY, 29th DAY OF APRIL, 1918 at or about the hour of noon, offer for sale for cash, at public auction at the courthouse door of Louisburg, North Carolina, the following described property, to-wit:

One-fourth undivided interest in a tract or parcel of land situate in Sandy Creek township, Franklin county, State of North Carolina and bounded on N. by Little Shocco Creek; on East by lands of J. D. Alston; on South by lands of Jas. Summerville and on the West by lands of Isaac Davis, containing 50 acres, more or less known as "Lee Summerville Place."

This the 27th day of March, 1918.

Up to Parents, Not the Police.

The police department of any city is established and maintained for the purpose of enforcing the law, not for the purpose of rearing and training children. And no police department on earth, however wisely or efficiently it may be administered, can abolish delinquency in young people so long as their parents permit them to run wild.

This city has been for years literally infested with petty crime. It is a well known fact that petty larceny is practiced to a shocking degree by boys and girls and that nothing is so uncommon as honesty among the generations growing up.

Is this the fault of the police department? Can it be laid at the doors of the public schools? By no means. It is the fault of careless parents who are permitting their children to "grow." It is a severe task to rear even the best of children and ground them in the principles of right living and right thinking. Too many parents find this task too onerous for them to face.

"Oh, he'll turn out all right," says the father whose young son has been guilty of falsehood, petty theft or trespassing on a neighbor's property. "I was full of devilment when I was young and see what a fine man I've grown to be." Usually the boy does turn out all right, but sometimes he doesn't. Sometimes, little criminal instincts that are neglected by hopeful parents develop beyond the point where they can be checked by ordinary means. And the child that had a right to be well trained and safeguarded becomes through some unexpected misdemeanor a charge and ward of the state.

Parents cannot take their responsibilities too seriously, especially where their boys are concerned. The supposition that girls must be carefully trained and watched over and that boys will somehow take care of themselves is a shallow conception of parental duty.

"I wish you would write something to mothers, begging them to be more vigilant in the care of their sons," said one of our best and most substantial citizens. "If I am a decent, law-abiding man, it is because of the way my mother looked after me when I was a growing boy. I was not allowed to run around promiscuously, to loaf in pool halls and stay out late. I was taught by her to protect, not to prey upon women. I had to give as strict an account of myself as my sister did. There was no sex discrimination in our family. There was no double standard of morals. My parents never said, 'Oh, boys will be boys.' They were just as solicitous concerning my conduct and character as if I had been a girl. My mother never went to bed until I was in for the night."

Nor is this man a sissy or a mollycoddle. He is one of the most human, robust and broadminded men in Oklahoma City. He is a man of unassailable honor, one who makes no compromises with himself. He was taught only one way. He knows only one way—and that way is to go straight.

The carelessness of parents is the result not so much of indifference to the welfare of their children as to a tendency to be over-optimistic, to believe that "things will come out all right in the end." This is an essentially American tendency. It is this tendency to "hope for the best" that we must charge the folly of our dream that we would never become involved in the war. It is this same tendency that has made spendthrifts of so many people who have never thought of saving for their old age. It has betrayed us into sheltering the enemy viper in our bosom, to be tolerant to the point of foolishness. This dishonest kind of optimism that will not face facts as they are is working incalculable harm to thousands of promising American children who have a right to the most intelligent and judicious training, who have a right to be taught a philosophy of being that will stand them in hand in the years to come.

The obsessions of fathers in their business and the obsessions of mothers in outside interests have been big factor in the growth of youthful delinquency. Life has become so complex, so full of temptation; we have departed so far from the simple standards of our grandparents that it is no easy task to bring up children today. It requires an almost inexhaustible fund of sympathy, patience, love and resourcefulness to stem the tide of common protest that everybody else's children "are doing it." It is as heavy tax upon parental ingenuity to make children happy and keep them good.—Daily Oklahoman.

NOTICE.

By virtue of the power contained in a deed of Trust executed by Bryant Green and wife and duly recorded in book 177, at page 298 in the Registry of Franklin county and default having been made in the note secured by said deed in trust; at the request of the holder of said note I shall on MONDAY THE 6TH DAY OF MAY 1918 at the courthouse door in the town of Louisburg, N. C., sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash the real estate described in said deed of trust. Lot No. 1 in the division of lands of Hawkins Green, beginning at a rock Matthew Neal's corner in Perry's line, then N 55d E 58 poles to a rock corner for lot No. 2; thence N 80d W 153 poles 5 links to a rock and pine pointer Neal corner; thence S 76 1-2d E 108 poles to beginning, containing 40 acres, subject to a dower interest in said land of 10 acres described in said deed in trust; This March 27, 1918.

W. H. RUFFIN, Trustee.

LEMONS MAKE SKIN WHITE, SOFT, CLEAR

Make this beauty lotion for a few cents and see for yourself.

What girl or woman hasn't heard of lemon juice to remove complexion blemishes; to whiten the skin and to bring out the roses, the freshness and the hidden beauty? But lemon juice alone is acid, therefore irritating, and should be mixed with orchard white this way. Strain through a fine cloth the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing about three ounces of orchard white, then shake well, and you have a whole quart of skin and complexion lotion at about the cost one usually pays for a small jar of ordinary cold cream. Be sure to strain the lemon juice so no pulp gets into the bottle, then this lotion will remain pure and fresh for months. When applied daily to the face, neck, arms and hands it should help to bleach, clear, smoothen and beautify the skin.

Any druggist will supply three ounces of orchard white at very little cost and the grocer has the lemons.

NOTICE.
